Kings Settle For Tie

Times News Services

Vancouver Canucks came from behind with four power-play goals to tie Los Angeles Kings 4-4 in a National Hockey League exhibition game before 4,100 fans at Medicine Hat Sunday.

The Kings took a 4-2 lead with just six shots on goal in the first period as Ed Joyal, Bob Pulford, Ross Lonsberry and Gilles Marotte put the puck behind Vancouver netminder George Gardner. Three of the Los Angeles goals came on the power play.

Wayne Maki and Jocelyn Guevremont scored for the Canucks in the first period, with Guevremont's tally coming while the Kings were two men short.

Murray Hall tied the game 54 seconds into the third period.

LALONDE INJURED

Canuck rooke Bobbie Lalonde suffered stretched ligaments in the second period but was expected to be back on the ice today.

In other games Sunday, Detroit blanked St. Louis Blues 3-0, Buffalo whipped California Golden Seals 6-2, Toronto edged Minnesota 3-1, and Pittsburgh Penguins defeated New York Rangers 3-1.

On Saturday night, Guy Lafleur, the highly-touted Montreal rookie, had three assists as Canadiens trounced the Boston Bruins 7-4; Detroit scored its first of two shutouts over St. Louis 2-0, Philadelphia Flyers played to a 2-2 tie with Buffalo, and Toronto Maple Leafs and Minnesota North Stars settled for a 4-4 sawoff.

Lafleur sent the 18,906 fans at Montreal's Forum into a frenzy when he won the opening faceoff from Boston's Phil Esposito, who set an NHL record for points last season with 76 goals and 76 assists.

SETS UP MAHOVLICH

Forty-one seconds later, Lafleur, who scored more than 130 goals last season with Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Junior Hockey League, slid a pass to Frank Mahovlics, who scored the first of his two goals.

"I was a bit nervous before the start of the game," said Lafleur, "but it didn't take me long to get some confidence."

Lafleur also assisted on a pair of goals by Yvan Cournoyer, his other linemate. Peter Mahovlich, Marc Tardif and Jacques Lemaire scored the other goals for Montreal.

PERREAULT SCORES

Gil Perreault, last season's rookie of the year, scored with 65 seconds remaining in the game to give Buffalo its tie with Philadelphia Saturday. Richard Martin, Buffalo's first draft choice, scored the other goal. Bob Kelly and Dan Schock replied for Philadelphia.

Paul Henderson and Norm Ullman notched power-play goals Sunday as the Leafs overcame a 1-0 deficit. Guy Trottier got the other Leaf marker while Dennis O'Brien scored for Minnesota.

BEST SEAT IN THE HOUSE

Pressure Grows for Giants As Dodgers Win Twice

(Times News Services)

The San Francisco Giants won one for the road Sunday but still lost ground to the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West race and go into the final days of the season with the pressure squarely on them.

The Giants defeated the San Diego Padres, 4-1, but their lead was cut to 1½ games when the Dodgers swept the Atlanta Braves, 12-0 and 4-0. The Giants play all their remaining nine games away from home while the Dodgers play three of their last eight at home.

Hal Lanier's two-run second-inning single was the big blow for the Giants, who handed fireballer Dave Roberts his 16th loss against 13 wins. Son Carrithers went 6⅔ innings to win his fifth game for the Giants with relief help from Steve Hamilton and Jerry Johnson. It was Johnson's 65th relief appearance of the year and he earned his 18th save.

COMEBACK OF YEAR

The Dodgers, who had lost four straight games, got brilliant pitching from Al Downing and Don Sutton to sweep their doubleheader from the Braves and barge right back into the race.

Downing, virtually a sure-fire choice as the NL's comeback player of the year, pitched a three-hitter in the first game to raise his record to 19-8 while Sutton turned in a six hitter in the nightcap for his 15th win.

Willie Davis drove in three runs with a homer, double and two singles to lead a 19-hit Los Angeles attack which dealt Phil Nierko his 13th loss in the opener. Duke Sims' homer and a steal of home by Willie Crawford paced the Dodgers' attack in the second game as Ron Reed also suffered his 13th setback.

Chicago Cubs beat Philadelphia Phillies, 6-3; St. Louis Cardinals routed Montreal Expos, 11-0; New York Mets topped Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-2, and Houston Astros shaded Cincinnati Reds, 5-4, in 11 innings.

In the American League, it was Baltimore 8, Detroit 1; Oakland 6, Milwaukee 2; Boston 4, Washington 3; California 2, Chicago 0; New York 3, Cleveland 2, and Kansas City 5, Minnesota 2 after Kansas City lost, 6-3, in the opener.

Ferguson Jenkins, the favorite in the NL's Cy Young pitcher-of-the-year race, and Steve Carlton, a long-shot, starred, respectively, for the Cubs and Cardinals.

Jenkins, a five-time 20-game winner who never has won the award, scored his 22nd victory against 13 losses for the Cubs after starting a three-run ninth-inning rally with a double.

Carlton, bidding for his first 20-victory season, won his 19th game behind a 15-hit attack which included three hits each by Ted Simmons and Joe Torre. Carlton struck out two and walked five in a four-hitter as he raised his record to 19-9.

Hucul Delighted With Cats' Play

The Whites beat the Reds 6-4 but the part that pleased coach Fred Hucul the most was the "overall performance of a lot of players" in Victoria Cougars' intra-squad game Sunday at Memorial Arena.

The Western Canada Hockey League team's "sneak-peek" game attracted a turnout of 1,013 fans.

The line of Gary Donaldson, Ervie Miller and Denny McLean sparked Whites' victory. Each scored a goal. Miller also picked up three assists while Donaldson had two helpers.

Terry Puska, Ron Andruff and Ray Clarke also scored for the winners while Phil Blake, with two, Ron Poole and Rick Kennedy counted the Red goals.

Miller, Donaldson, Ron Winkler, Blake, Poole and McLean were among the most impressive forwards.

Hucul also was very pleased with the overall play of both defences, particularly Murray Kennett and Pete Kay.

Standout on goal was Dave Maynard, who started for Whites and turned away 12 shots in the first period.

Elsewhere, New Westminster Bruins split a pair of weekend exhibitions in Manitoba. Bruins edged Winnipeg Jets 5-4 Saturday behind the three-goal performance of Lorne Henning, but suffered a 6-3 loss to Brandon Wheat Kings on Sunday.

Dallas Wins Title

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Dallas Tornado won its first North American Soccer League Championshiptitle Sunday, defeating Atlanta Chiefs 2-0 to take the best-of-three final series 2-1.

Bombers Get Tie In Final Second

Jonas Kicks Field Goal To Thwart Lions

By The Canadian Press

The defence put the only touchdown on the board in Edmonton but it was all offence in Winnipeg as weekend action in the Western Football Conference turned the race for playoff spots into a two-team fight—at least for the moment.

In Winnipeg Sunday British Columbia Lions matched the heroics of Winnipeg quarterback Don Jonas and flanker Jim Thorpe to battle Bombers to a 31-31 stalemate.

In Edmonton Saturday, Saskatchewan Roughriders took advantage of an inept display by the Eskimo offence and a touchdown by tackle Ed McQuarters to win 19-3 Saturday night.

The results left Roughriders in second place in the WFC with a 5-4 record, six points behind first-place Calgary Stampeders and one point ahead of the Bombers. However, Bombers, who are 4-6-1, have played two more games than both Saskatchewan and B.C.

The loss for cellar-dwelling Eskimos, their ninth in 10 starts, further dimmed their chances of capturing one of the three playoff positions.

Bombers move to Vancouver next Saturday to renew their fight with Lions for third place in the west, while Eskimos have a rematch against Roughriders in Regina.

Jonas had a 13-point afternoon for Winnipeg with a field goal, a touchdown, three converts and a single. Thorpe scored three touchdowns. Running back Larry Highbaugh scored two touchdowns for the Lions and Fullback Jim Evenson and Lach Herron scored one apiece. Ken Phillips kicked three converts and two singles and Ted Gerela counted two singles.

Besides McQuarters' touchdown, The Roughriders had a convert and four field goals by Jack Abendschan. Dave Cutler kicked a field goal for the Eskimos.

Despite the passing of Jonas, who completed 23 of 36 tosses for 450 yards, and the catching of Thorpe, who pulled in seven aerials fir 227 yards and three touchdowns, Bombers needed Jonas' last-second field goal to gain the tie with Lions and their outstanding rookie quarterback Don Moorhead.

Lions coach Eagle Keys said Moorhead, who was making only his second start, gave the offence "more fire" than it has displayed before, "but that defence . . ."

Keys also was unhappy with an off-side penanlty that gave Jonas the chance to tie the score. With two seconds left on the clock Jonas tried one from the 33-yard line that was wide, but Highbaugh, sent in to try to scoot through and block the placement attempt, lined up offside.

Kicking again from the 28, Jonas made it good, capping a 13-point afternoon that consisted of the field goal, a two-yard touchdown run, three converts and a single on a wide field goal attempt.

Thorpe's three touchdowns came on pass-and-run plays of 82, 77 and 32 yards, and gave the former Toronto Argonaut 1,098 yards gained on 46 receptions, within 28 yards if the all-time Bomber mark set in 1959 by the late Ernie Pitts.

At Edmonton, Eskimo quarpointed 22,474 fans by throwterbacks Larry Lawrence and Bruce Timmerman disaping a total of seven interceptions. Lawrence also let a jump-pass attempt slip from sis grip at Edmonton's three-yard line and McQuarters picked it off and went in for the game's only touchdown.

Theft Record For Thornton

By The Canadian Press

The defence was again in the spotlight and a professional football record was established in weekend games in the Eastern Conference of the Canadian Football League.

Cornerback Dick Thornton got the seventh touchdown interception of his 12-year career as Toronto Argonauts clubbed the Rough Riders Sunday 26-17 in Ottawa and Hamilton Tiger-Cats rallied in the last minute at home Saturday night to edge Montreal Alouettes 10-9.

Thornton's first of three interceptions before 26,063 disgruntled Ottawa fans increased his total to one more than the six credited to Herb Adderly of Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, with whom he previously shared the record.

His performance helped the Argos improve their total to 14 points, six more than Montreal and Hamilton, tied for second with eight points each. Ottawa trails with six.

QUARTERBACKS HURT

Starting quarterbacks Greg Barton of the Argos and Rick Cassata of the Riders were both knocked out of the game by injuries.

Cassata suffered a concussion late in the first half and was taken to hospital for x-rays. He was expected to remain overnight for observation.

Barton broke a small bone in the little finger of his throwing hand, also in the opening half, and went to the sidelines after two sequences in the third quarter. This forced Argo Coach Leo Cahill to abandon his quarterback rotation and Joe Theismann directed the team for the remainder of the game.

Dave Buchanan's touchdown, converted by Tommy-Joe Coffey with eight seconds to play, provided the Ticats with victory and stopped the rush to the exits by many of the 28,871 fans at Hamilton.

"They're the luckiest team I ever saw," said Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry.

"Last time we were here we ran them all over the field and we only win 12-8. In Montreal we beat the hell out of them, but we win by only two points."

Saturday, Ticats compiled only 185 yards of offence, to Montreal's 371.

Cassata gave the Riders an early lead when he ran 58 yards for a touchdown, but this was wiped out about two minutes later by Thornton's 43-yard touchdown interception.

McQUAY SCORES

In the second quarter, Barton's pass to Leon McQuay was good for 44 yards and a touchdown. Leading EFC scorer Gerry Organ kicked a 22-yeard field goal to get Ottawa on the board, but before the half ended Barton hit Tony Moro with a short pass in the end zone.

Gary Wood replaced Cassata for the second half and threw an 18-yard touchdown pass to Hugh Oldham, after Ivan MacMillan, who converted all three Argo touchdowns, kicked a single on an attempted field goal. A single by Zenon Andrusyshyn and a field goal by MacMillan rounded out the Toronto scoring in the fourth quarter.

Quarterback Joe Zuger's touchdown pass to Dave Buchanan set up the Hamilton heroics. Coffey, who earlier managed a third-quarter field goal that tied the game, kicked the game-winning convert with eight seconds on the clock.

Justine Canale scored all the Montreal points on three field goals one in the first quarter and two in the fourth.

Upsets Spice NFL Openers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rookie quarterbacks Jim Plunkett and Archie Manning made spectacular pro debuts to spice an incredible opening Sunday in the National Football League.

Plunkett and Manning, the No. 1 and No. 2 picks in last January's pro draft, led New England Patriots and New Orleans Saints to the two most startling upsets on an opening day replete with surprises.

Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford, threw two touchdown passes as the Pats stunned Oakland Raiders 20-6.

Another rookie, cornerback Tom Hayes from San Diego State, played a major role as Atlanta Falcons humbled the favored San Francisco '49ers 20-17.

CHARGERS BEAT CHIEFS

In other surprises San Diego Chargers whipped Kansas City Chiefs 21-14, New York Giants edged Green Bay Packers 42-40, Washington Redskins overcame St. Louis Cardinals 24-17, Chicago Bears tripped Pittsburgh Steelers 17-15, Cleveland Browns routed Houston Oilers 31-0 and Denver Broncos held Miami Dolphins to a 10-10 tie.

Elsewhere, form stood up as the Super Bowl champion Baltimore Colts whacked New York Jets 22-0, Dallas Cowboys, the only unbeaten, untied club in the pre-season schedule, downed Buffalo Bills 49-37 and Cincinnati Bengals trampled Philadelphia Eagles 37-14.

Plunkett's first scoring pass in the second half was a 33-yarder to Ron Sellers and the second a 20-yarder to Tom Beer.

Four interceptions of John Brodie passes coupled with two Atlanta scoring passes from Bob Berry to Ken Burrow, helped the Falcons upset the '49ers.

ROOKIE SAVES IT

But it was the rookie "Mr. Hayes" as coach Norm van Brocklin called him, who preserved the Falcons' triumph. He scooped up a fumble in the last three seconds on a play that erupeed into a brawl as players from both benches piled on to the field.

A 26-yard run by Mike Garrett, a former Chief, gave the Chargers their victory over Kansas City. The Chiefs led 14-0 at halftime, but the Chargers rallied to tie on two touchdown passes by John Hadl before Garrett's winning scamper.

Down 42-24, the Packers almost pulled it out against the Giants, but an interception by linebacker Jim Files with 1:14 left preserved the New Yorkers' triumph.

Dan Devine, Green Bay's new coach, suffered a broken leg on the sidelines in the last quarter when Doug Hart of the Packers was shoved out of bounds near the Green Bay bench while running back an interception. Devine was caught in the pileup.

The Minnesota Vikings play at Detroit tonight in a televised game over the ABC network, at 6 p.m. PDT.

NORTH SHORE TOPS BURNABY

Bombers' Whirlwind Finish Stuns Dolphins

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Blue Bombers stormed back from a 14-0 half-time deficit and scorer three touchdowns, two of them in the final two minutes, here Sunday to tie Victoria Dolphins 20-20 in a Big Four Junior Football League game at Empire Stadium.

The result stunned the Dolphins, who led 20-6 heading into the fourth quarter and appeared to be on their way to an easy victory.

Bombers' quarterback Bob Kosch and halfback Daryl Solecki combined with a pass-and-run attack in the final few minutes which Victoria could not contain.

Kosch scored the first Bomber major on a one-yard sneak in the third quarter, and hit Solecki with 12 and 10-yard pass-and-run scoring plays late in the fourth. The final Vancouver touchdown came after the Bombers recovered their own short kickoff and moved into scoring range. Randy Buckell kicked two converts for the Bombers.

Dolphins' Rick Price stood out as the outstanding player of the game, however, as he scored two touchdowns and saw double duty at offensive thight end and defensive linebacker.

Price combined with Victoria quarterback Terry Karpiuk for a 68-yard pass-and-run scoring play early in the first quarter, and scored the other on an 83-yard run after he recovered a Vancouver fumble. Matt Flynn and Rod Crowe provided excellent blocking on both of Price's touchdowns.

Karpiuk passed to end Chris Hall for the other Dolphin major — a 34-yard pass-and-run play — and Howe converted two majors.

Mike Woods combined with Karpiuk for an attempted pass-and-run conversion after Price's second touchdown, but, according to Dolphins' head coach Frank Hindle, Woods became confused as to which line was the goal line on the play.

"Mike ran over the last white line on the field and threw the ball to an official, thinking the convert had been made," Hindle explained "We were then told that a yellow line further on was the goal line and that the convert was no good. That extra point would have won the game for us."

Hindle said he didn't want to make any alibis for the Dolphins, but suggested that his team found the artificial Tartan Turf at Empire Stadium difficult to play on.

"It was our first game on the 'carpet,' " Hindle said. "It takes some getting used to."

Hindle said the Dolphins were hurting in fourth quarter when defensive halfbacks Glenn White (sore shoider) and John Pagon (sprained hand) were forced out of the game. Hindle had praise for Pat Griffin, who intercepted three Bomber passes and was steady on defence throughout.

"It was one of our best defensive game of the year until the fourth quarter," Hindle said.

The tie gave each team one point — the Bombers' first point of the season. Dolphins fell three points back of North Shore Cougars who romped to an easy 13-3 win over Burnaby Spartans in a later game at Empire. Chris Bennett kicked two field goals and a convert to lead the Cougars, while quarterback Garry Steinbart combined with split end Al Embley on a 56-yard pass-and-run major. Jack Steele kicked a 25-yard field goal for Spartans, who are three points behind Victoria.

Victory gave Cougars a first-place tie with Vancouver Meralomas, who were idle Sunday.

Frustrations Of Indians

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

(First of a Series)

After hours of reviewing budgets and discussing specific problems of housing, sanitation and unemployment, Tsartlip band manager Tom Sampson shrugs his shoulders and smiles.

"You know, so many people ask, 'Why can't you Indians improve yourselves?' But when I look at these figures, I can't believe it. You can't ask a starving person to give you money."

Sampson's frustration is not unique. Indians are poor. They know it. Non-Indians know it. The Department of Indian Affairs knows it. Newspapers write about it, and the poverty continues.

The only difference between Sampson and most other people on the Tsartlip reserve in Central Saanich is that he knows what it would take to achieve a minimum living standard.

As band manager, it is his job to keep on top of all reserve projects, inform band members about spending priorities, maintain records for use of the band council which sets policy, and execute council decisions.

Band managers have their fingers on the financial pulse of their reserves. The pulse has been erratic for decades.

Of the 290 people living on the Tsartlip reserve at Brentwood Bay, fewer than 25 have full time jobs.

Tsartlip band members share 49 houses, sometimes three families to a unit. Only 18 of these homes have indoor plumbing.

As a boy, he remembers sleeping 20 persons to a room, getting up at 3 a.m. to catch clams for the next day's dinner, and surviving on little more than bread for weeks.

In the mid-1950s, the Tsartlip band had only one well. If a house caught fire in winter it simply burned down. Today, there is municipal fire protection.

Sampson estimates a minimum of 39 new homes must be built to bring living standards up to acceptable levels. At existing rates, it will take the Tsartlip band about 20 years before these 39 homes can be built.

The situation for the 104 persons at the Cole Bay reserve in North Saanich is little different. Band manager Don Williams says 10 more new homes are needed in addition to the three which are being built this year.

The Tsawout band with 192 members on the reserve in East Saanich has 40 homes, is building four more and has to install indoor plumbing in 16 houses.

No new homes have been built for the Tseycum reserve's 35 persons in Patricia Bay for nearly 20 years. The Indian affairs department determines housing budgets and distributes the money without consulting individual bands.

For 1971, no housing money was budgeted for the Songhees and Esquimalt bands, yet these adjacent reserves have 152 members.

Being an Indian is not a racial matter. Indian status is granted by provisions of the federal Indian Act. A total of 248

INDIANS ARE POOR and everyone knows it, says Tsartlip band manager Tom Sampson, but the only thing that comes of the knowledge is the question, "Why can't you Indians improve yourselves?" Says Sampson: "You can't ask a starving person to give you money." The financial pulse of the Tsartlip band, for one, has been barely flickering for decades with no hope of improvement. GM Layoff Hits 1,355

Firm Blames Imports

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced today it will be reducing its combined work force at five Ontario plants by about 1,355 during the winter.

Japanese competition was given as one of the main reasons.

The company said the maximum number of workers that could be affected is 1,355 of a total work force of 20,400 at the five locations.

A statement from the company said employees will be notified Oct. 1 that they will be subject to layoff beginning Nov. 1.

The reason was "production changes required in view of projected market conditions influenced importantly by sales of foreign cars, particularly Japanese."

ATTRITION CUTS TOLL

The company said that because of retirements and resignations, it is anticipated that the number to be laid off will be "substantially less than 1,300."

Nearly all employees laid off will be eligible for a company-operated layoff benefit program which, combined with unemployment insurance, brings benefits to about 90 per cent of regular pay for up to about a year.

The statement noted that sales of cars by overseas manufacturers have accounted for about 16 per cent of total sales in the United States and about 26 per cent in Canada.

GM's North American passenger car sales for August totalled 12,807 this year, up about 3.3 per cent from the previous August.

Spokesmen for Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. and Chrysler Canada Ltd. said no layoffs were planned. The Ford and Chrysler spokesmen said Canadian plants were being operated at capacity.

CHINA UN ISSUE NEARS SHOWDOWN

NEW YORK — Three major issues — the seating of Communist China, debt and naming of a new secretary-general will dominate the 26th meeting of the United Nations starting Tuesday. (See Page 2 for details.)

B.C. 'Hysteria' Study Urged

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission recommended following the controversial 1969 atomic test on Alaska's Amchitka Island that some government agency seek to learn the motivation for the "hysterical anti-test campaign in British Columbia and other parts of Canada."

Senator Mike Gravel (Dem. Alaska) made public the report on AEC public relations activities related to the test and said it confirmed his "worst suspicions about the dangerous attitude within the agency, which discounts all legitimate criticism of its programs."

Gravel, a leading critic of that test and the bigger test blast proposed for Amchitka this fall, said the report was sent to him Sept. 10 by the controller-general of the U.S. general accounting office. He had requested the office to make a report to him on the AEC's "activities in promoting the (1969) Milrow and (the proposed) Cannikin underground nuclear tests in Alaska."

The AEC report said the study of Canadian opinion should be made "as a means of judging whether similar opposition is likely in the future and perhaps to find means to counteract such opposition."

PROTEST DIRECTED?

It adds: "It seems unlikely that the activity in Canada was entirely spontaneous, or that it resulted entirely from news coverage—although as news media gave attention to developments, the activity in Canada appeared to mushroom.

"A study might reveal how the protests were inspired or financed; by whom; whether they resulted from a generally anti-U.S. attitude; or were centred entirely on AEC."

An AEC spokesman said today the report represented the views of one man, now retired, and that the recommendations have not been acted upon. It was uncovered during the investigation by the general accounting office, a congressionally-created agency with broad powers to investigate government operations.

Gravel, in a Senate speech Wednesday, said the AEC report throughout "justifies its extensive public relations ef-

TWO GIRLS WOUNDED BY POLICEMAN'S GUN

QUEBEC (CP) — Two teen-aged girls were wounded on an Upper Town street Saturday night by a bullet from the revolver of a policeman attacked by a group of youths.

The bullet, fired during the scuffle, passed through the calf of one girl bystander and lodged in the foot of the other. Both were treated in hospital.

The incident happened when a policeman, surrounded by the youths objecting to the arrest of a person jaiting a traffic sign, fired a warning shot into the air. His arm was grabbed and the second shot wounded the girls.

Star Pays Tely $10M For Subscription List

TORONTO (CP) — Publisher Beland Honderich of The Star announced today his newspaper has purchased the subscription lists of the dying Toronto Telegram for $10 million.

In a letter to shareholders published on the front page of the newspaper's night edition, Mr. Honderich said:

"Toronto Star has accepted an offer to purchase the Toronto Telegram subscription list for $10 million.

"Publisher (John) Mr. Bassett advised us that The Telegram is losing approximately $1 million a year and he has been unable to find a buyer who is prepared to take over the business as a going concern. In these circumstances, he feels he has no option but to discontinue operations."

Mr. Honderich also told shareholders The Star has decided to lease the Telegram plant and presses. He said Mr. Bassett's announcement Saturday that The Telegram is folding means a major jump in circulation and advertising volume for The Star, Canada's largest newspaper and the Telegram's chief rival in Toronto's afternoon market.

STAR EXPANDS

"To handle an expected increase in circulation and advertising volume, the company expects that it will be necessary to expand production facilities at its new plant which is now nearing completion at 1 Yonge St.

"The company has made arrangements to lease the Telegram plant until an additional press can be installed in the Star's new plant."

The Honderich letter did not say whether the $10 million included lease payments for the Telegram presses and plant.

The Star has a circulation of 376,000. The Telegram is the fourth largest English-language newspaper in Canada with a circulation of 226,000. Toronto's morning newspaper, The Globe and Mail, is second at 265,000 and Vancouver Sun third with 233,000.

Mr. Honderich's letter followed a statement earlier in the day from Mr. Bassett that the press lease was for two years.

Mr. Bassett, who announced Saturday that the 95-year-old newspaper would stop publishing in the near future because of financial losses, put a notice on the Telegram bulletin board today answering the council's charges.

"There has apparently been some suggestion that I was negotiating to sell the assets of the Toronto Telegram over

16 MILLION PAPERS KEPT OFF STREETS

LONDON (AP) — Millions of Britons were without their main daily newspapers today as publishers shut down the presses over a pay dispute. The only paper Londoners could buy was the Communist Morning Star.

The Newspaper Publishers Association ordered Britain's eight national dailies and two local London evening papers closed until a dispute is settled with a printer's union. The 10 papers have a combined circulation of about 16.5 million.

More than 30,000 printers, journalists and other newspaper employees were affected by the shutdown.

Appeal Target: 'Over the Top'

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

In just three short words — "Over the top" — realtor Eric Charman sums up his optimism about the results of the 1971 United Appeal campaign.

Correction: for optimism read conviction. The way Charman tells it, he's not, like so many appeal organizers, trying to shore up his own misgivings with brightly cheerful forecasts.

When he blandly says the campaign this year is going to reach its $758,723 goal, despite the knowledge it has done so only four times in the past 13 years, it's like a statement of fact. A positive declaration of what will happen.

And the attitude is contagious, as Charman revealed in an interview. "We have a regular slogan now among the division chairmen," he said. "When I pick up the phone they say 'Hi, it's O.T.T. here' — over the top."

Back in May, Charman promised there would be a thorough revamping of the campaign's fund-raising techniques, and now he is out to prove he meant it.

CORPORATIONS

"Take just one example, the corporations and professional people," he said. "I've sent out 3,000 letters and I'm hoping that 60 per cent or better will reply with contributions. Already the response from the lawyers and doctors is terrific."

In past years it would have taken 60 canvassers on this approach alone, with all the time-wasting effort involved in personal calls. With the new method, Charman said, all the appropriate chairmen have to do is send canvassers to those who don't reply.

"An awful lot of time has been wasted in the past. No one is going to be asked to do anything in this campaign unless I am convinced his or her time is going to be expended to the full."

Residents Evacuated As Apartment Burns

VANCOUVER (CP) — Residents of a luxury apartment building were evacuated early today as a four-alarm fire destroyed the entire centre section of The Maples, the largest of seven separate buildings in the Arbutus Gardens apartment development in the residential Kerrisdale area.

Among members of the approximately 50 families evacuated from the burning building was accountant-engineer John Hagen, who gave the following account:

"There didn't seem to be much until firemen put their axes through the roof to try to get at the fire. Then the whole thing exploded. It was pretty spectacular."

He said the fire apparently began about 5:15 a.m. in the kitchen of a second-floor suite.

From there, said Hagen, it spread up through the ceiling and into the roof. The roof over the foyer collapsed, but fire walls separating three wings of the building prevented anything more serious than smoke damage to suites in those areas.

Those evacuated from the three wings were allowed to return about 7:30 a.m. after firemen had reduced the blaze to smoldering embers.

There were no injuries.

Mrs. John Fairburn, whose house is located across the street from The Maples, provided a haven for the evacuees until they could return to their suites or arrange other accommodations.

The temperature at 6 a.m. was 45 degrees with clear skies.

IRA USING DUM-DUMS IN BELFAST SNIPING

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A sniper firing dum-dum bullets today struck a British soldier in the back, critically wounding him, a British army spokesman said.

Dum-dum bullets, outlawed by almost every nation, are softnosed bullets with cross cuts on the nose and expand when they hit an object, tearing a gaping hole.

The spokesman said it was the first known use by the IRA of dum-dum bullets in Northern Ireland. The shooting was at an observation post on the fringe of Londonderry's Bogside district.

Frustrations Of Indians

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

(First of a Series)

After hours of reviewing budgets and discussing specific problems of housing, sanitation and unemployment, Tsartlip band manager Tom Sampson shrugs his shoulders and smiles.

"You know, so many people ask, 'Why can't you Indians improve yourselves?' But when I look at these figures, I can't believe it. You can't ask a starving person to give you money."

Sampson's frustration is not unique. Indians are poor. They know it. Non-Indians know it. The Department of Indian Affairs knows it. Newspapers write about it, and the poverty continues.

The only difference between Sampson and most other people on the Tsartlip reserve in Central Saanich is that he knows what it would take to achieve a minimum living standard.

As band manager, it is his job to keep on top of all reserve projects, inform band members about spending priorities, maintain records for use of the band council which sets policy, and execute council decisions.

Band managers have their fingers on the financial pulse of their reserves. The pulse has been erratic for decades.

Of the 290 people living on the Tsartlip reserve at Brentwood Bay, fewer than 25 have full time jobs.

Tsartlip band members share 49 houses, sometimes three families to a unit. Only 18 of these homes have indoor plumbing.

As a boy, he remembers sleeping 20 persons to a room, getting up at 3 a.m. to catch clams for the next day's dinner, and surviving on little more than bread for weeks.

In the mid-1950s, the Tsartlip band had only one well. If a house caught fire in winter it simply burned down. Today, there is municipal fire protection.

Sampson estimates a minimum of 39 new homes must be built to bring living standards up to acceptable levels. At existing rates, it will take the Tsartlip band about 20 years before these 39 homes can be built.

The situation for the 104 persons at the Cole Bay reserve in North Saanich is little different. Band manager Don Williams says 10 more new homes are needed in addition to the three which are being built this year.

The Tsawout band with 192 members on the reserve in East Saanich has 40 homes, is building four more and has to install indoor plumbing in 16 houses.

No new homes have been built for the Tseycum reserve's 35 persons in Patricia Bay for nearly 20 years. The Indian affairs department determines housing budgets and distributes the money without consulting individual bands.

For 1971, no housing money was budgeted for the Songhees and Esquimalt bands, yet these adjacent reserves have 152 members.

Being an Indian is not a racial matter. Indian status is granted by provisions of the federal Indian Act. A total of 248

INDIANS ARE POOR and everyone knows it, says Tsartlip band manager Tom Sampson, but the only thing that comes of the knowledge is the question, "Why can't you Indians improve yourselves?" Says Sampson: "You can't ask a starving person to give you money." The financial pulse of the Tsartlip band, for one, has been barely flickering for decades with no hope of improvement. GM Layoff Hits 1,355

Firm Blames Imports

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) —General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced today it will be reducing its combined work force at five Ontario plants by about 1,355 during the winter.

Japanese competition was given as one of the main reasons.

The company said the maximum number of workers that could be affected is 1,355 of a total work force of 20,400 at the five locations.

A statement from the company said employees will be notified Oct. 1 that they will be subject to layoff beginning Nov. 1.

ATTRITION CUTS TOLL

The company said that because of retirements and resignations, it is anticipated that the number to be laid off will be "substantially less than 1,300."

Nearly all employees laid off will be eligible for a company-operated layoff benefit program which, combined with unemployment insurance, brings benefits to about 90 per cent of regular pay for up to about a year.

China, Debt To Dominate UN Session

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The 26th meeting of the General Assembly opens Tuesday with three widely-divergent subjects on the minds of all delegates — China, selection of a new secretary-general and debt.

Observers say that because of the debate over the entry of Communist China the three-month session could be one of the most newsworthy in many years.

But they also add that in terms of getting something done about the many problems facing the world, there is not much at the moment on the books.

In that regard, probably the most significant move will be agreement to ban bacteriological warfare.

Secretary-General U Thant, making his last report after 10 years of running the affairs of the world organization, has warned that the UN is on the verge of bankruptcy because of mounting debts resulting from past peacekeeping operations.

SAYS WAR POSSIBLE

And he warned in his report, released Sunday, that war could break out again in the Middle East, with new powers, presumably a reference to the superpowers, in danger of being dragged in.

Thant also called on the delegations—there will be 130 of them with the admission this year of three new small states —to get on with the job of getting Communist China into the organization.

Thant, long an advocate of seating Peking, apparently administered a slap at the United States' two-China policy by telling members they should not get bogged down with legalisms.

China is the greatest single matter facing the assembly. The United States is manoeuvring to retain a seat for Nationalist China.

Thant has said that the situation is so fraught with uncertainty he cannot say whether Peking will be invited in this year, but he had added that it could happen.

The debate on China will not start until mid-October. But initial skirmishing will start this week when the general committee discusses how the question will be placed on the assembly's agenda.

Meanwhile, as usual, foreign ministers from many countries will be here for the first weeks of the assembly, for public ceremonies and, more important, private talks.

U.S. State Secretary William Rogers and Andre Gromyko of the Soviet Union will be here, as will External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp of Canada.

Sharp is expected to talk with Gromyko and Foreign Secretary Alec Douglas-Home of Britain. It is not known whether he will see Rogers.

Jobs Go Begging In B.C.—McGeer

British Columbia should take over federal Canada Manpower programs in the province, Liberal Leader Pat McGeer said today.

Manpower programs should be integrated vocational school and university courses to provide a more effective job-training system, he said.

McGeer's idea would see manpower staff become provincial civil servants with Ottawa continuing to pay for their services through adjustments in transfer payments from income tax revenues.

The Liberal leader told a press conference in Victoria that 104,000 new spaces must be created in B.C.'s vocational schools and universities by 1980.

Failure to do this, he said, will mean a continuation of high unemployment among young people.

NOT ENOUGH SPENT

McGeer said "jobs are going begging in British Columbia" because Premier Bennett's government does not spend enough money on education. The number of applicants for medical schools, law schools, dentistry programs, barbering and practical nursing far exceeds the ability of provincial institutions to take them.

Only 60 places exist for medical students at the University of British Columbia, he charged. B.C. vocational schools have room for only 41 would-be barbers, and the province produces only 40 dentists per year.

PRIORITIES

McGeer blamed both the provincial and federal governments for failing to create sufficient new jobs through industrial development.

A Liberal party policy seminar at UBC last Saturday set four priorities for B.C.'s future.

McGeer said they are in order of importance, income and income security, education, environment, and medical care.

He said "no one pretends that medical care is adequate" in B.C. and government policies on the environment fail to account for future population growth trends.

The policy meeting's recommendations will be linked with publication of at least four "shadow white papers" within the next two months, said McGeer. The white papers will later be discussed at the Liberals' convention in Penticton in May, 1972.

WASTE OF MONEY

McGeer said the duplication of job-finding plans between manpower and the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen is a waste of money. He added that he did not believe Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi's claim last week that his department has found jobs for 15,034 persons during the first six months of the year.

Gaglardi's figures must be compared with month-to-month statistics on provincial welfare rolls, but the department refuses to release up-to-date figures, McGeer said.

His request for recent figures was denied by Deputy Rehabilitation Minister Ray Rickinson, he said.

KILLING . . . IN GOOD TASTE

TimesNews Services

WASHINGTON — No longer do panting U.S. Army recruits scream "kill, kill" as they rigidly drive home their bayonets into an imaginary pagrade-ground enemy.

Instead they are encouraged to yell a less bloodthirsty "yah, yah" and to thrust and cut in a less exact, free-style manner.

"We're trying to keep things modern and in good taste," says Col. W. C. Carter, in an army training specialists at Fort Monroe, Va.

The army's new training manuals discourage "shouting of indiscreet slogans' and refer to "instinctive" stabs and jabs. Today's drill sergeants tell recruits that the most important thing about the bayonet is that a vigorous shove, will do the job — in the unlikely event a nuclear age enemy ever gets so close.

At Fort Ord. Calif., the army has even gone so far as to eliminate bayonet training altogether for some recruits.

"Far as any of us can remember," says Lt.-Col. James Gabriel, "the last man to yell 'Fix bayonets' was John Wayne.

a period of time," the notice said.

"Nothing can be further from the truth.

"The decision was made to cease publication of the Toronto Telegram for the simple reason that funds were no longer available to keep the paper alive."

Mr. Bassett said a study of the mass media last year showed there is no precedent under the Combines Act to prevent sale of the subscription list.

He said the subscription agreement had not come into effect until after his decision to cease publication. Negotiations with The Star were "well into the month of September," and weren't complete until "a matter of hours" before Saturday's announcement about closure.

FIRST MEETING RECENT

In his notice today Mr. Bassett said:

"Having made this decision (to stop publishing), I had a total of three meetings with a representative of the Toronto Star, the first meeting being less than two weeks ago.

"Terms and conditions under which I was prepared to sell the circulation lists to the Toronto Star were approved in principle by Wednesday noon, Sept. 15, and in final detail the following day.

"The purchase price and revenue from the lease agreement with the Toronto Star is required to meet our commitments at the newspaper."

Mr. Bassett restated that all financial commitments, especially to employees, will be met. He stressed that settlements made to the paper's unionized workers will also be made to its non-union employees.

"I hope you will exercise some patience and care," the notice said, "no matter how difficult it is, in the days ahead, so that at least we shall finish our role as a newspaper with dignity."

fort to sell Milrow on a basis of good guys versus bad guys."

He added:

"This is not public information—it is propaganda. . . . I call this situation to the attention of the Senate not to beat ghosts of past errors, but because the issue is very much alive today. Cannikin is upon us and the selling job is all too familiar."

LESS SUCCESSFUL

Referring to the efforts of critics to arouse public opposition in Alaska prior to the 1969 test, the AEC report says they had limited success there.

"There was none of the type of impassioned protest action which was promoted in Canada and British Columbia," it adds, "with marches on U.S. consulates and attempts to block the border, which produced sensationalized newspaper, radio and TV coverage."

A number of Congressmen from Pacific states, including Hawaii, and Canada and Japan have expressed fears about the tests on the grounds they might cause earthquakes, tidal waves or radiation.

After detailing efforts to tell AEC's side of the story through press trips to the site, films demonstrating attempts to save wildlife and other projects, the report concludes:

"In retrospect, the Amchitka public affairs program was successful and provides the basis for making better plans and conducting a more effective program for future events."

"Despite the prominence of some opponents and the sensationalized scare tactics which were used, there never was an indication of widespread public opposition. This suggests the importance of not over-reacting to opposition."

From Tortillas To Treasurer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today nominated Romana Banuelos to be the new treasurer of the United States.

Mrs. Banuelos, who started her career running a tortilla stand and now is chairman of the board of directors of Pan American National Bank of East Los Angeles, will succeed the late Dorothy Andrews Kabis in the $36,000-a-year job.

Man Identified

St. boniface, Man. (CP) — Police have identified the body of a man killed in a car-train accident in the Greater Winnipeg city of St. Boniface as Daniel Lorne Stewart, 23, of Transcona. Another man in the car, Clifford Hosfield, 21, of Transcona, was reported to be in fair condition in hospital.

Charman says, but all the same the money is "rolling in." He proved his point emphatically by brandishing a $1,200 cheque which had just come in the mail.

Another change this year is that no one is being given any quotas to fulfil. The reason is he remembers only too well the time he was going great guns as division chairman and then relaxed as he got closer to his quota.

A basic problem Charman is trying to solve is to persuade Victorians to change their whole attitude towards giving. Some individuals give $3 because they have always given $3; smaller firms donate $50 or so as they were doing five years ago.

GOING UP

But if costs generally have gone up, so too have wages, Charman points out. And if the campaign is to reach its goal it means, on the basis of the $651,000 collected last year, "almost a 20 per cent across-the-board increase."

For this reason he wants individuals, corporations and everyone else to bear in mind two things:

- Are they giving so that they really feel they've given?
- Why wait until a canvasser calls to make their contribution — why not send it in straight away, with a post-dated cheque if necessary?

In one way, at least, things are being made much easier for people to give this year. When the 3,000-strong team starts the residential canvass on Saturday morning, Oct. 16, they will be armed with composite forms which include a blank cheque slip and a separate section on which they can pledge to donate a certain amount each month. Facilities have been set up for that purpose.

If no one is at home, the canvasser can leave the form in the knowledge it is self-explanatory and that he or she need not return to that address.

UNTIL STREETS

In previous years the residential canvass has been conducted on a Monday and Tuesday evening, but Charman feels it was nowhere as effective as it should have been because of the difficulties and anxieties caused by until streets.

Despite skepticism from some quarters that the Saturday morning calls are going to find most residents out shopping he is confident that, with heavy promotion beforehand, they will produce better results.

To launch the residential canvass Charman plans a breakfast rally, which he estimates will be attended by about 25 per cent of the volunteers. "It's going to be a fire-up-the-workers affair," he said.

Already some divisions are getting "interesting" results, Charman reported, and among them is the federal services division which includes the armed forces.

"The crew of one ship is pretty much unchanged from last year but they have given 190 per cent more in cash."

NEWS MEDIA

It's figures like this Charman will be citing when, by courtesy of three CPR companies, he holds a luncheon for division chairman and the news media aboard the Princess Marguerite in the Inner Harbor next Tuesday, Sept. 28.

"I'm trying to run a campaign of example and incentive," he said. "We must try to infuse everyone with a new feeling for the United Appeal, otherwise it's going to be a calamity."

With its "enormous" retirement income and general level of professional prosperity Victoria is one of the wealthiest areas in Canada, Charman believes. Which is why he thinks it "disgraceful" the city should be 48th in per capita giving throughout Canada.

"We can, we must change that," he said.

Five Killed

At least five persons were killed in accidents during the weekend in British Columbia, four in traffic mishaps and one man when struck by a train.

Three persons were killed Sunday when a station wagon carrying 11 plunged over an embankment near Stave Falls, north of Mission. Killed were chief Joachis Pierre, 45, of the Katzie Indian reserve at Pitt Meadows, his son Andrew James, 10, and his 62-year-old mother, Minnie Pierre of Surrey.

Also in the Fraser Valley, Donna Mae Englund, 20, of Aldergrove was killed Sunday when a car whe was driving went out of control and rolled into a ditch near Abbotsford.

A 77-year-old White Rock man, Peter Kady, died in hospital Sunday after he was struck by a Burlington Northern freight train northbound through White Rock.

ROME — Italians appear to be worried about their girth. That's why pasta — spaghetti, tortellini, fettuccine, vermicelli, tagliatelle, canneloni, ravioli, macaroni, lasagne, agnoletti — consumption is down to one-half of what once amounted to six million pounds a day. Now two-thirds of the daily production of 10.2 million pounds of pasta goes elsewhere. The late Fascist dictator Benito Mussolini once said: "Spaghetti is not for fighters." Eugenio Galli recently wrote: "Pasta is a form of national glory." What do Italians eat instead? Meat.

Printer Dies at 59

Jack Baxter, 59, a printer with the Victoria Times for more than 27 years and before that in Calgary and England, died Sunday in Royal Jubilee Hospital after a brief illness.

Born in Lethbridge, Baxter was raised in Calgary where he started his trade with the Calgary Albertan, leaving there in 1935 for a short stay in Victoria.

He moved to England, returning at the start of the Second World War to join the Royal Canadian Engineers.

After the war he rejoined the Times. He lived at 4308 Houlihan Place and was an avid gardener.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Gilbert Oliver of Victoria and Mrs. Eric Proehl of Parksville.

Funeral arrangements, to be handled by Sands Mortuary, have not been completed.

Oak Bay Highrise Hearing Tonight

Hundreds of Oak Bay residents are expected to attend a public hearing tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Oak Bay junior high school to discuss future development in the Windsor Park area.

Theme of the meeting will be a request from Graham Development Ltd. and Mace Homes and Investments Ltd. to have the block bounded by Windsor, Currie, Goodwin and Newport declared a development area.

The developers have approached council with plans to build two nine-storey towers on the block, with stores on the ground level and parking underground.

OPINIONS SOUGHT

The hearing has been called at the suggestion of Ald. John Goult so that opinions of residents may be heard.

The proposed bylaw is in the form of an amendment to the rezoning bylaw. Because its passage at this time would not change existing zoning of any of the properties involved a public hearing is not required under the Municipal Act.

If the block is declared a development area there will be another public hearing, as required by the act, after council and municipal officials have studied specific plans for the development.

The developers say that architectural details of the complex have not been worked out but a fairly definite plan has been submitted.

With the exception of one lot, options have been taken on all the propertieson the block, adjacent to Windsor Park. Land acquisition costs are expected to exceed $1.1 million and total development costs are expected to be about $5.8 million.

If a final contract is approved after the second public hearing is held construction is expected to begin within six months after the complex is approved.

Hazardous Intersection On Government Work List

The B.C. highways department is trying to eliminate "a very hazardous" intersection at Belmont Road and the Old Island Highway in Colwood, district engineer E. A. Lund said today.

He made the comment after Tim Brecknell, 162 Belmont, expressed concern at the weekend that the highways department wants a wedge-shaped piece of his property extending 35 feet into the one-acre lot.

Lund said the road, which is the access for Belmont Park residents and Fort Rodd Hill, will be partly re-routed. The intersection change was "primarily a safety feature."

He said the simple moving of a power pole by the Brecknell's property is expensive because it is connected with an underground electrical system. "Even if we took the pole, we would need some property, although probably not as much," he said.

ARE CONCERNED

Mr. and Mrs. Brecknell said they are concerned at the removal of trees which provide the cover for large trees behind them. They wanted to know why the power pole would not be moved to avoid taking any of their property.

"We'll have the pole sitting in a position where I doubt a week will go by without a car hitting it," said Mrs. Brecknell.

Radical Changes Goal In Water Management

The world's people must make "radical changes" in their approach to water resource management, says a University of Victoria professor who will address a United Nations seminar on the topic in December in India.

Dr. Derrick Sewell, who teaches geography and economics at Uvic, is a UN adviser on floods and has advised the Canadian and U.S. governments on water resource management.

He will deliver a paper on administrative aspects of water resources planning at the New Delhi seminar.

Sewell said today the world's supply of fresh water is being rapidly diminished and that strong steps will soon have to be taken to ensure the supply does not run out.

MORE WATER

He said the world's population is growing at a rate of 250,000 a day, meaning more water is being used, and that people's appetites for fresh water have increased because it is less accessible than it ever has been.

"Strong action will have to happen," Sewell said, if water is to remain available on earth, since the present supply is becoming more and more polluted."

He suggested an international body might be necessary to advise countries on water resource management and to arbitrate disputes between countries on pollution clean-up.

LESS WILLING

"The U.S. contributes more to pollution in the Great Lakes than Canada does," Sewell said, "but they are less willing to clean it up than we are."

The seminar in New Delhi will have delegates from 30 countries attending, with about 20 papers to be given, including Sewell's. Delegates will debate points brought up in the papers and will take back positive policies to their home countries.

Sewell said the key to cleaning up pollution in the world lies in international co-operation, particularly in areas where the polluted water is shared by two or more countries.

Another major problem is educating the citizen of a country on their own problem, since many people, like the citizens of India, do not realize the severity of their own pollution problem.

Pat Bay Highway To Get Two Lights

Hazards at two intersections on the Patricia Bay Highway will be eliminated soon by installation of traffic lights, a provincial highways department spokesman said today.

The intersections are at Haliburton Road near Beaver Lake, and Island View Road in Central Saanich.

Residents of both areas have complained that recent widening of the highway produced dangerous conditions at the two points, with cars crossing the highway forced to cut across four lanes of fast-moving traffic.

A petition from residents of the Haliburton area was sent to Highways Minister Wesley Black, but the spokesman said the action is not being taken directly as a result of the complaints.

"The department has been making studies and traffic counts ever since the highway opened," he said.

He said preparatory work on the signals will start immediately but as special equipment has to be ordered it will probably be "several weeks" before the installation is completed.

Advance flashing yellow lights may be sited along the highway near the two intersections, the spokesman added.

Pressures in the Pacific

VACUUMS TEND TO FILL quickly, particularly political vacuums in international affairs. The reversal of United States policy towards Communist China after a generation of fear and enmity has caused swirls and eddies throughout the Pacific and beyond. Both friends and foes of the United States are moving to assess and fill the gaps which Washington's sudden move has created. It is ironic that so admirable a step — the restoration of friendly relations between two giant nations — should cause such serious repercussions and hurt feelings among some of America's allies.

Japan in particular, observing a post-war policy of disarmament and resolutely remaining non-nuclear, has felt slighted by President Nixon, who gave Tokyo no advance notice of his announcement that he would visit Peking. Japan is on the periphery of China's sphere of power — as it is of Russia's — and since it has depended both directly and indirectly on United States military strength for the past two decades, a major change in the balance of forces around the Pacific Rim must be of vital importance. To learn overnight that one's chief military defender is going on a friendly visit to one's potential chief military threat must be disconcerting, to say the least.

The situation is sharpened by the fact that the United States has encouraged Japanese investment in Taiwan over the past two years — in fact there have been more yen than dollars sent to Chiang Kai-shek's island during this time. Some Japanese now wonder if they have been misled into supporting the Taiwan administration for the benefit of the United States' relations with Peking, and as a deterrent to better relations between Tokyo and the mainland Chinese.

The currency crisis has added to friction between Japan and the United States, and even Mr. Nixon's conciliatory gesture in flying to Alaska to extend a historic welcome to the Japanese Emperor is not likely to affect the main problems.

Under such circumstances it would not be unreasonable for Japan to look to the Soviet Union for solace and a counterbalance to the Washington-Peking thaw, and Moscow might welcome an approach for the same reasons. After so many years of a relatively simple East-West cold war, the Pacific situation has suddenly become very complex. A new insecurity is afflicting the great powers even though there seems to be a promising breakthrough in communication across the sea. We are at a point where statesmanship will be more essential than ever in gaining the best for the world out of the current state of international flux. The vacuums should be filled by design rather than by chance.

Coast to Coast

REPRESENTATIVES OF NEARly 90 daily newspapers from Newfoundland to British Columbia are here this week to attend the fall meetings of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association and of the directors of The Canadian Press. It is six years since this city was the site for these gatherings, which are devoted to discussions by the CDNPA of the business problems of newspapers, and by the co-operative news-gathering and distribution agency, the CP, to problems of an editorial nature.

The vital nature of those problems was amply demonstrated last week in the announcement of the 95-year-old Toronto Telegram that it would shortly suspend publication. The sudden demise of the fourth largest paper in Canada underlines the ever-present hazards of the publishing business in this country.

Newspaper reading is so ingrained a part of Canadian life, and so important a factor in the operation of democracy in this country, that the organizations and instruments through which Canadians receive their daily printed news have a national importance far beyond that of usual commercial enterprises. While each newspaper sets its own standards of service and is responsible for its own product, yet each also has a responsibility to the press of Canada as a whole and to the professional standards which Canadians have come to regard as part of the national scene.

The Victoria Daily Times, as a joint host to this week's meetings, welcomes the visiting newspaper directors and congratulates them on the policy of furthering Canadian unity and communication by convening in turn in various parts of the country.

Allende Is Alive in Chile

DESPITE ALLEGED CIA plans to overthrow his government, and the assassination of two major political figures in his country, President Salvador Allende of Chile continues on a decidedly leftist path. Reports indicate that his policies have benefited the average worker in the shoe-string South American republic.

Nationalization has proceeded apace. Firms affected include the U.S.-owned copper companies, 19 banks, and about 200 major corporations. Wages and salaries have risen 30 per cent while, through a rigorous price control system, the rate of inflation has been reduced. Land reform is continuing and there are indications that all large estates will be expropriated by the end of 1972.

Not surprisingly, there has been a flight of capital and a decrease in foreign exchange reserves. The improved condition of the Chilean masses has, however, been achieved through the fuller use of productive capacity rather than by depriving the rich. But Mr. Allende's efforts to profit by the split in the opposition Christian Democratic party are running into trouble as internal problems in his government multiply.

Chile's democratically elected Marxist president is worth close observation. Whether or not he becomes less popular as his policies become more severely socialist, the matter of his tenure should be decided by the Chileans themselves without intervention from outside.

The Santa Claus of Suez

ABOUT AS GENEROUS AN offer as has been heard for many years — possibly since back around 1939 — has emanated from President Anwar Sadat of Egypt. He says he is "ready to sacrifice a million people for the independence of our country and its liberation."

Not many modern leaders show the hearty liberal approach of President Sadat to affairs of the day, and it is plain to see that with this man in charge the interests of Egypt are in good hands.

The response of the Egyptians to this inspiring proposal is so far not reported and President Sadat has not yet, apparently, identified the lucky million by name. But it is the principle that counts, rather than the petty details — these can be straightened out later.

In the meantime President Sadat's magnanimous gesture should shame other national leaders into similar generosity. Who, we wonder, will be the first to up the bid by offering a cool million-and-a-half lives? And do we hear three million? Or was that only a 30-year-old echo?

". . . just for my sake . . . couldn't you please halt the Amchitka blast . . .?"

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Exports: Steering a Very Tricky Course

IT has become apparent that the Canadian government, in its response to the U.S. surcharges, is steering a very tricky course. The problem is to pass Scylla (the new American levies) without being wrecked on Charybdis (the U.S. anti-dumping laws). In matters of trade the government can rely on the advice of some fairly experienced seamen. For example, Ottawa invented the device of the "voluntary quota" which is accepted yearly with commendable politeness by the Japanses and certain other trading partners. But this would not be helpful in present circumstances because it is restrictive in concept, being related to a different situation, and because the Americans, in any event, have shown themselves extremely reluctant volunteers.

Western

Duties Coming?

If manufacturers exporting into the United States are to be assisted by government in scaling the surcharges, there is obvious risk that the Americans may counter the subsidies by imposing anti-dumping duties, if applicable, or countervailing duties (as permitted by Article 19 of the GATT) if they are not. Mr. Paul Volcker, U.S. undersecretary of the treasury, has indicated that American officials are studying our legislation with this in mind.

It seems prudent to assume that the Americans, like our own policy makers, have been alert to contingencies in writing their protective legislation. Thus our own remodelled law of 1969 looked beyond dumping in the strict sense, empowering the governor in council to impose surtax when satisfied that "goods of any kind, the growth, produce or manufacture of any country, are being imported into Canada under such conditions as to cause or threaten serious injury to Canadian producers. . . ."

Thus the present Canadian bill is being prudently presented as something other than an export subsidy measure. Its purpose is employmnent maintenance, the hope being that it will prove acceptable in this dress.

Such distinctions may be less clear to the layman than they are to the experts. Presumably we export primarily to maintain employment. Then, of course, our non-subsidies in the amount of some $80 million are directly linked with exports to the U.S. (a firm must normally export 20 per cent of production to qualify) and measured as percentages of the U.S. surcharges.

Arising perhaps from these coincidences, there is apprehension that our job maintenance payments may arouse the suspicions of Mr. Volcker, who seems regrettably open to suspicions. To allay any concern, Ottawa navigators are taking the line that, regardless of such links, the outlays are being tied to nothing in particular. According to Bruce Howard, a parliamentary secretary speaking for Mr. Pepin, a manufacturer could use the money to keep men busy making additions or painting the plant. The government, one gathers, will not consciously be subsidizing exports because the seven man board, as Mr. Howard explains, will not be able to check the use of funds very closely.

In this case ministers are not, apparently, looking for board members with the usual qualifications. The last thing we need are alert, hawk-eyes types who might be candidates, say, for the anti-dumping tribunal or Mr. Basford's proposed new authority for regulating business. There will be a preference for men of limited vision who should probably wear blindfolds developed under the industrial design assistance program, CSA-approved and manufactured, naturally, in Canadian plants.

So far (we hope), so good. But there is another difficulty. What if manufacturers, doing their own thing, use the money not to push exports in directions that Mr. Volcker might approve but to enlarge their share of the domestic market at the expense of other firms which perhaps could not qualify under the 20 per cent rule. At first glance this might seem acceptable since the additional competition could lower prices at home. Yet the effect would be that some firms were undercutting others with public money, a situation which would scarcely appear ethical to the business community.

Seven Nelsons

The apparent requirment is for seven Nelsons with selective vision; unable to see the funds that go for export purposes (especially if the exports are going to the United States); tolerant in the Ottawa fashion of those which go for paint and alert to any which may be used against domestic competitors. But Mr. Howard, on the basis of his reply to John Roberts (Lib.—York Simcoe) does not seem to think this very practical.

There are other problems, not necessarily of a sort to worry Mr. Volcker. In these days, when a lively and expensive curiosity is the mark of enlightened governments, will we require a task force to ascertain whether manufacturers, on government welfare, lose the incentive to export? It is, of course, possible that, if Mr. Volcker could be reassured on this point, he would look with greater apparent indulgence on the Canadian initiative.

An alternative course would be to present the program as a continuation of Opportunities for Youth, liberally interpreted. This would have the merit of bringing Mr. Pelletier into the picture and thus rendering everything incomprehensible. Mr. Volcker is bound to have difficulties in interpreting a system calculated to baffle our own experienced members of Parliament. By the time the Americans have grasped the implications of a program thus reoriented, time may have quelled the crisis and produced a world fit for Canadian manufacturers to live in, guided as always by their ever watchful government.

Readers' Opinions on the Reid Project

Solidly For

Good for Jack Scott and his forthright manner because when you do agree with him he says all you want to say in the way you would like to say it.

After perfection, which currently is less people less problems, the next best thing is the Reid Centre, Victoria-wise that is.

I suggest our very sensible Mayor Courtney Haddock circulate Jack Scott's article The Reid Centre—Time to Begin, to all Victoria and suburbs citizens, and count me another solidly for the Reid Centre.—Thelma Cooke, 304—548 Dallas Rd.

Monstrosities

I wonder if many people know that the land on Wharf Street, now owned by Mr. Reid, changed hands approximately three years ago for the price of $290,000.

Since we, the taxpayers, of this still-lovely city are in the process of buying the Ocean Cement property to be made into a waterfront park, I suggest we expropriate Mr. Reid's land in the name and interest of the people of Victoria.

The necessary monies could easily be diverted from two low-priority capital improvement projects already approved by the taxpayers through a referendum. One, to eliminate the hump at Humboldt Street and Burdett for which $360,000 has been allotted, the other to erase the hill on Cook Street near Hillside at an estimated cost of $295,000.

I am sure that the majority of the people do not want to see these cement monstrosities in the Inner Harbor. Let us act now before it is too late.—Walter Lissetz, 501 Richmond Ave.

Blight

It is regrettable that Mr. Jack Scott, in his column supporting the Reid Centre, Victoria Times, Wednesday, Sept. 15, calls the Inner Harbor a "sickening industrial junkyard" that one avoids showing to a visitor. My sons have grown up here and they and their friends, both from Victoria and from out of town, have always found that area the most interesting part of the city to explore. There, at least, is a small core of vitality in the city which isn't sustained by the tourist or the retired.

The industrial blight that I am ashamed to show visitors exists on both sides of Yates Street between Blanshard and Cook streets. There is where the revitalization should begin and it would be the proper place for more high-rise apartments.—Mrs. Elinor Palmer, 3590 Doncaster Drive.

The 'System'

On Sept. 11 your paper carried a story on the proposed Reid referendum with a quote from Alderman Ove Witt, "I suppose a referendum is a good way but I just wonder what it does to the system." To which "system" does Alderman Witt refer?

Surely he cannot refer to the democratic system under which we supposedly live, or he would realize that democracy purports to be "government of the people, for the people, by the people." The "system" to which Mr. Witt refers then can only be construed as the system of dictatorship. I, as one mere citizen of Victoria, am delighted to find out the high principles upon which municipal government is based: The electorate goes to the polls, elects freely those whom they feel will govern in their best interests, and then those elected do exactly as they please!

Congratulations Alderman Witt — you have clearly delineated your position on city council and I trust all Victorians have profited by it.

I would remind Mr. Witt and those who agree with his stand on the Reid question that renewal is not an end in itself but a means to an end whose purpose is to improve living standards and the human condition.

In answer to Mr. Witt's thoughtful question, "Will this be a precedent for more referendums when other developments are proposed on the 55 acre downtown site scheduled for urban renewal?" I surely hope that is just what it will be!

Unless city council is prepared to go to the people for their decisions on controversial issues, council remains a hollow mockery of the whole voting system.

A mayor and his aldermen are not likely to succeed unless they remember they are indeed the directly elected representatives of all the people in the city and that they are in office (not power) to serve, not to dictate! — Mavis DeGirolamo (Mrs.), 140 Medana St.

Ol' Vic Says:

Home to Roost

Canada's anti-American chickens have finally come home to roost! Even the Yanks, like a jilted lover, have at last come to realize that their supposed good friends, the Canadians, have been taking their money, insulted them at every turn, and then crawled into bed with the Communists.

Naturally the experts will poo-poo the suggestion, but it is conceivable that the Americans would have looked with a bit more favor on Canada and exempted it (as they've done before) from the stringent economic measures — aimed primarily at Japan and West Germany — had not Canadians in high places consistently persisted in stabbing Uncle Sam in the back.

It just so happens that the Americans are our blood relatives, our best customers and our first line of defence. And Canadians will rue the day if they allow their government to alienate our friends to the south. The handwriting, in lost jobs, is already beginning to appear on the Canadian wailing wall.

Mel Watkins and Walter Gordon, where are you now that we need you? You are strangely quiet! Your ultra-nationalism (against the U.S.) seems to have backfired. Or was that the opening salvo of an all-out trade war aimed at the dastardly Yanks who dared to do this to us! And, who knows, maybe Moscow and Peking will come to our aid, now that we're all pals together! — L. W. Meyers, Vancouver, B.C.

Traffic

I am alarmed at the proposal to strike a "small committee of technical officials" to tackle our traffic congestion. (Victoria Daily Times of September 7.) God preserve us from the undiluted ministrations of the experts! Let us have a leavening of ordinary citizen representation in order to avoid driving to Sooke via Deep Cove, or find ourselves marooned on a concrete island, with inventory and investment, while the traffic hums by half a mile away. I hope, too, that the committee of technical officials will not include those who could not, and still cannot, complete the Blanshard Street extension, and have never told us why. Do they know that Finlayson Street still ends in a hole in the rocks, and Hillside Avenue in the Lansdowne bottleneck?

What has happened to all the existing proposals to free traffic up, down and across town?

Is this proposed committee to go into labor only to bring forth a newly dusted mouse?

One still takes one's life in one's hands in crossing Blanshard from Finlayson, entering Tolmie from Douglas, and crossing Burnside from Jutland, during the rush hour.

Nobody has mentioned the serious decrease in bus passengers following the increase in fares, and strangely enough, again following the B.C. Hydro strike. In this city of limited incomes the cost of bus travel is too high, and those who cannot drive or afford a car are being held to ransom.—A. G. Coning, 3152 Richmond Rd.

Register and Vote

It was heartening to learn, after a period of apparent public apathy with regard to civic affairs, that a group of interested citizens is making a concerted effort to bring out suitable condidates to contest Victoria's December civic elections.

There is still time (though none too much) for candidates to declare themselves and their policies and to become known to the voting public; if they fail to do so, the said public will certainly follow its usual practice and vote (if they vote at all) for the names familiar to them; and there is no doubt that the city council should be more widely representative of all sections of the community than it is at present, and should include at least one "alderwoman."

The recent regrettable illnesses which have kept the Mayor and Alderman Baird out of action have placed a heavy burden on the remaining members of Council, with which they do not seem to have coped very successfully. We should have a system of relief aldermen who could take their place in an emergency and who could be elected in precisely the same way as the regular members.

It is regretted, though understandable, that the Returning Officer could not see his way to deputize members of the Capital Region Tenants Association to enumerate resident electors; it is even more regrettable that the Mayor, in a radio pronouncement, appeared to have entirely misunderstood what the Association wished to do.

Certainly, it is open to anyone to try and persuade a qualified person, who has not registered, to do so; and if this were done the voters' list would be more truly people oriented than it is at present. But time is short.— N. T. Porter, 245 Linden Aave.

60 Years Ago

From the Times of Sept. 20, 1911:

Before another issue of the Times goes to press the battle will be in full heat throughout Canada. The generals, colonels, captains and lieutenants have done their work in planning the attack and directing their forces. It now remains for the men with the bullets (ballots) to break all previous records and score a victory for reciprocity.

The Times has maintained — without successful contradiction — that reciprocity must result in cheaper meats, fish and vegetables for the bread-winner of the family.

ATTICA: When Prisoners Become Just Numbers . . .

By TOM WICKER
New York Times

After the massacre at Attica, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller issued a statement that began with this sentence:

"Our hearts go out to the families of the hostages who died at Attica."

Much of what went wrong at Attica — and of what is wrong at most other American prisons and "corrections facilities" — can be found in the simple fact that neither in that sentence nor in any other did the governor or any official extend a word of sympathy to the families of the dead prisoners.

True, at that time, it was thought that the deaths of the hostages had been caused by the prisoners, rather than — as is now known — by the bullets and buckshot of those ordered by the state authorities to go over the walls shooting.

But even had the prisoners, instead of the police, been the killers of hostages, they still would have been human beings; certainly their mothers and wives and children still would have been human beings. But the official heart of the State of New York and its officials did not go out to any of them.

That is the root of the matter; prisoners, particularly black prisoners, in all too many cases are neither considered nor treated as human beings. And since they are not, neither are their families. Thursday, the families of 16 Attica inmates, gathered outside the medical examiner's office in Rochester, could not find out whether their husbands and sons were dead or alive. Since the previous Thursday they had not even been able to find out whether the men were involved in the prison rebellion, because the state would not bother to tell them.

Dead hostages, for another example, were sent to the morgue tagged with their names: dead prisoners went tagged "P-1," "P-2" and so on. That is an almost unbearable fact to those who heard an eloquent prisoner shouting in the yard of D-block: "We no longer wish to be treated as statistics, as numbers. We want to be treated as human beings" but even in death, they were still just numbers.

Time and again, members of the special observers group that tried to negotiate a settlement at Attica heard the prisoners plead that they, too, were human beings and wanted above all to be treated as such. Once, in a negotiating session through a steel-barred gate that divided prisoner-held and state-held territory, assistant corrections commissioner Walter Dunbar told the prisoner leader, Richard Clark, "in 30 years, I've never lied to an inmate."

"But how about to a man?" Clark said quietly.

The physical aspect of a place like Attica — the grim walls, the bare yards, the clanging steel, bespeaks the attitude that prisoners are wild animals to be caged. Entering a tier in cell block C, where prisoners were under control, the observers were struck by the pathetic sight of shaving mirrors popping instantly from the window of each steel door; the windows are too small for the cells' occupants to see anywhere but straight ahead, and only the mirrors can show the prisoners what is happening in their "home."

Attica — like most prisons — is not a "correctional facility" at all; the phrase is a gruesome euphemism. No "corrections officer" there has any real training in correcting or teaching or counselling men; rather, they are armed guards set to herd animals.

Senselessly, every guard at Attica is white, save one reported Puerto Rican no observer ever saw; but the prisoners are 75 per cent, or maybe 85 per cent — no one seems to know for sure — black and Puerto Rican. There is no Spanish-speaking doctor. All work for 30 cents a day, and one of their grievances claimed that they often were bilked of that.

The emphasis on guns and clubs during the crisis was incredible; it had to be seen to be believed. Once, standing alone and unarmed at the steel gate, Richard Clark refused to negotiate any further because the room behind was packed with so many men bearing clubs, rifles, pistols, shot guns and tear-gas launchers. Three or four blocks from the prison, tourists were stopped at roadblocks by as many as four uniformed men, each carrying a club, a pistol, a rifle. So much weaponry was bound to be used sooner or later, and indiscriminately. And it was.

These guns, moreover, were in the hands of men who left no doubt they wanted to use them. Corrections Commissioner Oswald's long delay of the assault and his efforts to negotiate were met with impatience and anger by the prison staff; the observers who were trying to prevent bloodshed saw hostility at every turn. A guard bringing them a box of food said as he put it down, "if I'd known it was for you people, I wouldn't save brought it."

The observers, after all, were standing between the men with the guns and the prisoners, who had none. Even the strong belief that an assault on the stronghold in block D would cause the prisoners to kill their 38 hostages seemed to make little difference to those who had the guns; they wanted to go in.

The observers knew that. They said so to Oswald and Rockefeller, forcefully and in every way they could. They predicted a massacre. They said that waiting, while it might not ultimately prevent the slaughter, could hardly cause it; while attacking could result in nothing else.

But time is for men, not for prisoners and animals. Now the dead lie tagged in the morgue, and the men with the guns are counting their kill. They may even be looking forward to the same highly practical form of amnesty American society has already granted to the killers at Kent State, and Orangeburg, and Jackson State.

'Never' Hostage Bargain

By NICHOLAS VON HOFFMAN
Washington Post

Clenched fists of solidarity

The talk turns to death. Forty-one at Attica, N.Y., five at San Quentin. There would be more talk about more deaths, but the other killings of guards and inmates are less well publicized. Prisons have never been safe places, but since the passions of politics and the fashions of militancy have gotten through the gates, there has been more trouble and more death.

Usually the deaths come in trickles of one here or there, or occasionally there are three or four at a burst, but at Attica there were so terribly many. The cry for reform will be very loud, but calling for prison reform is a way we have of kidding ourselves. It's like calling Attica or San Quentin a "correctional facility."

A jail's a jail, and from the prisoners' standpoint the only really worthwhile reform is freedom, the one thing we're not about to give because we don't want these men loose on the streets. Prison reform's main object is to make the reformers feel good. It makes the rest of us non-reformers feel good too since our purpose isn't to starve and beat the wretches we keep in cages but just to get them out of circulation.

The only way to reform a prison is to build a society that makes far fewer criminals than ours does. That remark gets bitter reinforcement from the fact that all the guards at Attica are white and something like 85 per cent of the prisoners are black or Puerto Rican.

So you might say that every time Nixon does his fandango on school busing he's setting up some more prison killings a few years down the line.

Most of the prisoners taking a leading part in the Attica insanity were just entering grammar school the year the Supreme Court ruled school segregation unconstitutional. You can't help but speculate about what might have happened to these men if America had actually decided to make that ruling come true.

Long Sentences

It's on grounds such as these that the rebellious inmates are political prisoners, but they're also criminals. Probably some of them weren't very serious criminals. Anybody who cares to be aware of the fact knows a lot of young black men get very long sentences for some very small crimes.

But not all. There are also a lot who shoot, rob, rape, mug and commit other frighteningly, anti-social crimes of violence. Even though it's true, it does no good to argue they commit these crimes because they're disfigured by the grotesqueries of the existence whites have given them.

Perhaps through no fault of their own they are what they are, which is dangerous criminals. We had our chance to bring them up right. But we refused even so much as to try, and now we're stuck with the consequences of what we did.

We might as well write them off, forget 'em. Now, years too late, we have nothing to offer them except a clean jail cell, decent food, and as humane treatment as is possible in the inhuman condition of total captivity.

Our rehabilitation, educational and psychiatric procedures for human restoration have no demonstrable efficacy; it's just stuff to make reformers feel good. The only known curative agent for people who commit violent crimes is time; guys in their lates 20s and early 30s taper off.

So we're going to stay in the jail business, and jails are going to stay pretty much as they are. We have no choice. Having failed to love our brother, we must fear him and keep him in jail.

And that brings us to Attica and the criticism that's dumping down on Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and his commissioner of corrections, Russell G. Oswald. Bobby Seale and the radical lawyer, William M. Kunstler, have called them murderers; the imprisoned guards have as much as said that they are hardhearted men who left them to die; the liberal politicians and the kindhearted social worker types are saying that Oswald and the Gov. should have continued the negotiations, that something ultimately would have been worked out.

But if you stand back and look at the situation, and remember that nobody has an immediate alternative to jails, you can see that the real fault of these two men is that they were poor administrators, inattentive to their duties and weak when they should have been intransigently strong.

They shouldn't have been running a jail that was more racist than the society which sent the inmates to Attica; they shouldn't have been running a jail where the food and conditions were as lousy as has been alleged; and they certainly shouldn't have been running one where it was easy to scoop up and capture 28 hostages.

All of that, however, comes under the heading of poor administration and inattention to their duties. Their weakness began to show once the prisoners had grabbed the guards and were holding them, threatening to kill them.

Rule number one in running one of these joints is that you never bargain with inmates holding hostages. Never, not ever. The reason is that jail guards — unless they're on the walls or in some other inaccessible place — must work unarmed. That's because they're always in mixing with the prisoners and can be disarmed and made hostage too easily. Their one protection is making it absolutely, unshakably clear to the inmate population that grabbing a guard will do no good.

Agree Under Duress

Thus Rockefeller and Oswald should have said we won't discuss anything until all the hostages are released unharmed, and that's it. Not only did they fail to do that, but they entered into negotiations and, incredible as it is, actually agreed under duress to 28 or 30 prisoner demands. A clear sign to the inmates in the rest of the New York penal system that, if they don't push things too far, that they also can extort concessions.

Then these two high officials seem to have taken leave of their senses. They proceeded to encourage the inmates to resist. They did this by allowing ministers, politicians, social workers, newsmen and Bobby Seale and William Kunstler to come and mush around as public observers, neutral interveners or third-party intermediaries.

Their presence could only have the effect of convincing the jailees that their jailors were under terrific public pressure to back down and grant their demands. Permitting Seale and Kunstler in the place is hard to believe even now. What could Rockefeller have been thinking of?

He himself issued a statement after 41 human lives had been lost blaming it on "the highly organized, revolutionary tactics of militants . . ." Well, I should think so. He passed one of the nation's most famous and intelligent militants inside the penitentiary. Seale must think that Rockefeller and Oswald are fools.

To make this criticism of the two men in charge of this operation is not to attack Kunstler and Seale. They are radical politicians fighting an uphill battle wherever and however they can. If the governor of New York wants to hand them a huge tactical advantage free of charge, why should they be as stupid as he and refuse to take it?

But Nelson Rockefeller ought to know that, although you may or may not play politics with the prison issue with the voters, you don't play it inside the prison. Those guys in there can't vote; they don't have any civil rights to speak of; they've been consigned against their will to exist in a super-authoritarian institution where politics are strictly verboten. To introduce a man as talented and as adept politically as Seale is to incite the prisoners to further resistance.

Folly Cost Lives

What were they to make of the sudden appearance of Bobby G. Seale, the chairman of the Black Panther party, right inside the walls? Just because they're crooks doesn't mean they're dumb, and any halfway intelligent man would conclude that Rockefeller was bending so badly under the force of public opinion that he had to let in Seale, the ne plus ultra militant. What else should they think when he can come and orate to television cameras, and they themselves are being interviewed by all sorts of newsmen.

And mind you, this folly didn't go on for just a few hours but for days . . . from Thursday through Sunday. In all likelihood it cost the lives of many of the men who're now dead. Had Rockefeller and Oswald moved Thursday or just as soon as they could have assembled a force large enough to to the job, nothing like 41 human beings would have perished.

Doubtless both men will defend themselves by saying they were trying to save lives and meet the inmates' just complaints. True, true, but Rocky's been governor for many years. He's had 12 of them to improve the food at Attica, and for the rest, you don't save lives by encouraging people to resist in a situation where you must have their unconditional surrender.

That's what it takes to run a jail, the total deprivation of the inmates' dignity . . . unconditional surrender every day. It's a dirty business, but there's no other way to run a maximum security penitentiary. There just aren't any good ones or any happy ones, and if we don't like the idea, then we'd best hasten to build an America that doesn't need them.

Prisoners' arsenal

'Animals Are Treated Better'

By CHARLES LANKFORD

I served nearly three years in Attica State Prison. I know what they do there. It is common to say that prisoners are treated like animals. But if you think about it, many animals are treated better.

I've seen blood ooze from the heads of Attica inmates hit by guards with sticks. I've watched stomachs caved in by the clubs of the "hacks." I've seen inmates fall, only to be kicked in the ribs, all for no justifiable reason. I've eaten the slop called food, and I've participated in "peaceful sit-down strikes" to draw attention to the lousy chow.

I've lain on the floor in "segregation" (solitary confinement). And I've listened to prisoners who had been gassed, "just for the fun of it."

So I understand most of what they were complaining about. It's a lousy life. And when there isn't misery, there's monotony. Lots of it. Year in, year out. It's generally the same daily schedule. It runs like this:

7:00—Back to cell.
7:30—Sick call.
7:45—Work call.
8:00—Work.
Noon lunch.
12:30—Back to cells and be counted.
1:00—Back to work.
3:00—Lights flash. Time to quit work. Line up.
3:15—Back to cells and-or the yard for recreation.
4:00—Line up for supper.
4:15—March to mess hall.
5:00—Lock-up for the rest of the night. Be counted.
7:30—Bell rings. No more talking for the rest of the night.
10:00—Lights out.
11:00—Radio earphones off.

Once I was punished for whispering to another inmate after 7:30 at night; I had asked him for a match. The rules must be followed, they tell you: don't open your mouth after 7:30, only to breathe.

Yard time usually starts at 9 or 10 a.m. on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. Each cell block has its "own" yard, approximately 100 yards square, like a box. Each block has 450 to 500 inmates, and what they do during yard time is just to walk around and around and around and around.

If you find misery and monotony, what you don't very much find are fairness or decency. They made me serve an extra year because I had made out a writ for another inmate who could barely write his own name. I had my cell torn apart, and my writs, for myself, ripped and flushed down the toilet because I resisted their almighty power. And I've heard the state parole board, without even waiting to hear me, tell me, "Lankford, there's nothing in here for you. What are you, a jailhouse lawyer? Get out!"

Regardless of whether an inmate is right or wrong in any dispute over the rules the guard is always deemed to be in the right. That's always understood. You either do as you're told or else. The "or else" is usually a wallop on the head or maybe a little tear gas or maybe time in the hole.

I don't know why things had to happen the way they did. I don't condone what the inmates did, not the way they tried to achieve their end. Neither do I condone the shameful way they were killed. Negotiations were in progress and could have gone on.

If force was going to be used with a minimum of injury, it should have been used within minutes after the episode began. If negotiations were allowed to start, there should have been a continuing parley. Again, the attitude persists: Do as we say — or else!

May God forgive those who did not have the courage nor the common sense to follow through on a situation that could have been resolved without killing. Those inmates had a legitimate beef. The others still have a beef. They want to be treated as humans.

Big Problem Is Apathy

Greater Victoria Indians live off the reserve. According to Indian affairs statistics, 773 live on reserves.

The six Greater Victoria reserves have been brought under the jurisdiction of a section of the Indian Act which gives them a token responsibility over their financial affairs.

In practice this means a band is told how much money it will receive, and it allocates the money as the band council sees fit. This small amount of independence is only a small improvement compared with conditions five years ago when all financial decisions were made by the department.

Under a subsidy housing scheme, the government will build a home for $8,500. Only a minimal down payment is required.

The Tsartlip Indians have so many housing problems that the band council decided to use part of 1970-71's housing budget — $24,000 — for sanitation.

This means a needy family must wait at least another year for a home while other families with homes get plumbing.

Walter Barnes, department supervisor for the south Island district, concedes that subsidy housing does not meet the Indians' needs.

But he praises another program which allows Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. financing for off-reserve housing. Indians are seldom able to negotiate mortgage money on the open market.

Since the off-reserve housing plan began four years ago, 48 homes in the district have been purchased. Only one mortgage defaulted.

About 25 per cent of the Indians in Greater Victoria live off reserves. The provincial average is 32.5 per cent.

The Tsartlip budget for 1970-71 is $31,000. The band will increase this amount by about $4,000 from its campsite, boat ramp and a walkathon.

The Cole Bay and Patricia Bay bands have no outside income sources. The Songhees have a trailer camp, and the East Saanich band has two campgrounds and a gravel pit.

The gravel pit was a boon, for it gave the band enough money to clear the reserve of old cars, install plumbing and heating for 16 homes and paint all homes before next summer.

Band manager Gus Underwood Jr. says apathy has been a big problem, but he expects a dramatic improvement in band morale once his people see the benefits of extra income.

The gravel pit will be levelled this winter and turned into soccer, softball and lacrosse fields.

Unemployment is not as high on the East Saanich and Cole Bay reserves as on the other four, but most young Indians are out of jobs and out of school.

Indians here hold land on several Gulf Islands, and they say developers continually approach them with leasing and development schemes.

Developers are invariably sent packing.

"I haven't been approached by one developer who didn't want 100 per cent profit. They want a good lease for long terms and very low rates," says Don Williams, band manager at Cole Bay.

"I just laugh when I hear their ideas. They're insulting themselves. Indians are becoming very shrewd businessmen."

Fears of losing reserve land run deep. But Williams says Indians cannot hope for more money from the government and must turn to their own assets, whatever they happen to be.

He points out that Indians on the Saanich Peninsula hold beaches of great recreational value.

"But we will develop our reserve in our own way and on our own time."

(Indians do not actually own their lands. The title is held in trust by the Crown according to provisions of the Indian Act.)

B.C. Indians do not want their reserves taxed by the provincial government. Should Indians ever receive title to their lands, the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs has vowed to fight any attempt to bring reserves under the provincial land registry system.

Unemployed Indians on reserves get federal welfare at rates identical to provincial scales. Registered Indians living off reserves receive welfare from provincial or municipal agencies. The federal government then reimburses the province.

Medical care is covered under the B.C. Medical Plan, and reserves here have made arrangements with local dentists to treat groups of children several times a month.

In 1970, the department began a program of budget review with the 29 south island district bands. For the first time, Indians learned how well they fared compared with neighboring bands.

The department told the Indians they could divide some parts of the district budget among themselves. Sampson said this was heartbreaking, because it pitted more aggressive band managers against others. Again the problem was too little money.

"It forced them to play against the ignorance of other bands, and we don't like to do this to each other," Sampson said.

He said band officials were told nothing could be done to revise over-all budgets, because they were part of a five-year plan. He left the meeting convinced it was a charade.

Sampson surveyed the economic needs of 19 south Island district bands in 1970 for the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs and the Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation.

His study indicated $6 million is needed to meet minimum housing, sanitation, road and operating cost requirements.

More than $3.7 million was needed for housing, but the department budgeted only $223,000 for this purpose in 1971. And $682,425 was needed for plumbing and sanitation. Department budget for 1971 for all 29 reserves is $22,000.

In all, 7,077 Indians live in the south Island district. On a per capita basis, the government is spending 34 cents in 1971 for their plumbing and sanitation needs.

"When you look at these figures in terms of money divided among yourselves, it's just nickels and dimes," says Sampson.

CBS HEAD LAUDED

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, has been chosen as recipient of the Paul White Memorial Award for the most significant contribution to the advancement of broadcast journalism in 1971.

The Radio Telvision News directors Association will present the award to Stanton for his "courageous and determined efforts in defending the broadcast journalists' constitutional rights in the face of a proposed contempt of Congress citation, arising from the subpoenaing of non-broadcast material used in preparation of the documentary, The Selling of the Pentagon."

It will be the second Paul White award for Stanton, who moves up to vice-chairman of CBS Oct. 1. He first was honored in 1957.

Locusts Spread

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuter) — Locust eggs spread over a 20,000-square-mile area of neighboring New South Wales could threaten Victoria state with the worst plague in its history, Agriculture Minister Gilbert Chandler said Monday. The Victoria state cabinet approved daily helicopter patrols to pinpoint the incubating eggs prior to a massive air-spray operation by the two Australian states.

Highrises Hit Agility, Dexterity

TORONTO (CP) — A study recently completed in the Metropolitan borough of North York could provide more ammunition for the growing number of people in Toronto and elsewhere who are stiffening their opposition to highrise apartment developments.

The study found there is a marked difference in the development of motor skills in boys living in highrise apartments. In three areas—agility, dexterity and sense of balance—boys from single-family homes significantly outscored their chums living in highrises.

The study does not attempt to explain its findings, but did discover that boys living in significantly greater amounts of their time at outdoors play.

The study was commissioned by the North York board of education because trustees were concerned about the possible effects of the changing nature of the community. Almost half of North York's population of 470,000 now lives in highrise buildings. In recent years, highrise construction has far outstripped construction of single-family homes.

The agility test involved running as fast as possible along a zig-zag course without hitting the markers set at each turn. The dexterity test involved throwing a ball against a wall, catching it with the other hand, then throwing and catching again with the opposite hands. The balance test involved standing on one foot for as long as possible with eyes closed, then changing feet and repeating.

The study found no significant difference between the two groups in scholastic achievement and behavior or in the childrens' sense of self-esteem.

It tended to confirm the results of similar studies carried out a few years ago in Sweden and Yugoslavia. Similar studies in North America are either rare or non-existent or the results have not been published. It is believed the North York study was the first of its kind in Canada.

FOUR GROUPS

The final report suggests further study in the area of motor-skill development among boys living in highrise buildings.

The study involved about 300 students split into four approximately equal groups: Grade 1 and Grade 5 students from highrise apartments and Grade 1 and Grade 5 pupils living in single-family homes. The students living in apartments had all lived above the fourth floor for at least two years.

While boys living in highrises tended to play less out of doors, there was no significant difference in the amount of time spent at organized sports.

Boys from highrises reported helping their parents much less than boys in single-family dwellings, while there was no difference between the girls. But only a few of each reported the lack of chores as one of the things they liked about apartment living.

Many boys reported that one of the advantages was the opportunity to play in the halls and elevators. Not everyone thinks this is such great sport, however. Many boys also reported that one of the disadvantages is that they disliked the superintendent.

Wait-and-See Game Played by Premier

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis played a wait-and-see game last week as his rivals in the campaign for the Oct. 21 Ontario election slammed his government on the issues of unemployment and the high cost of living.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon's campaign came unglued for a time when he erupted with a charge of news-media bias, but that and a tough statement suggesting a limited form of price controls helped tone down the shadowman image he's trying to beat.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, came on strong on his party's traditional bread-and-butter issues, and managed to get a mention in Commons debate because a woman reporter was barred from an impromptu news conference held in a sauna bath.

Although the campaign itself was off and running Monday with the announcement of an election date, Mr. Davis followed the precedent set by his forerunners during 28 years of unbroken Progressive Conservative rule and lay low most of the week.

As the campaign entered its second week, the political pundits had Mr. Davis well out in front of his opponents with the Liberals engaged in a desperate battle to retain their position as the official opposition.

LEFT A LEGACY

The premier's strength was due partly to the legacy of power left by his predecessors and partly to the blizzard of legislation introduced after he succeeded retired premier John Robarts in March. The 131 bills introduced by the "New Wave" Tories had something for everybody, from old-age pensioners to teen-agers.

The Tories held 68 seats in the 117-seat legislature when the election was called. The Liberals held 27, the NDP 21 dent.

and there was one indepen-

Both the Liberals and NDP made gains in the election—the first year the Tory rule showed signs of slipping — but the Liberals now are seen as lacking the intensity of the sort needed to attract votes.

The NDP is confident under new, youthful leadership and the fact that in six of the eight provincial elections held in Canada during the last two years, the incumbent party was dumped. Of those, Manitoba and Saskatchewan went NDP.

Premier Davis, who has limited his public speeches to 10 minutes of generalities, says he won't be making any promises during his campaign, which opens formally in Belleville on Tuesday.

'Serious Imbalance'

CALGARY (CP) — An increase in smelter capacity coupled with a softening in demand has created a serious imbalance in the international aluminum business, says a senior industry executive.

Dennis Fredjohn, board chairman of Indal Canada Ltd., a major Canadian Fabricator, said the short-term solution lies in reducing production and, in the long term, stimulation of demand.

He said Kuhn, Loeb and Co., a major Wall Street securities firm, has said that unless free world consumption increases at a substantially higher rate than in the past production capacity will exceed requirements into 1973.

The segment of the industry most affected are companies with large smelter operations which face fixed cost in some areas regardless of production levels.

Let's Talk Real Estate by Jack Mears

When we list a home for sale, our first action is to present its possibilities to everyone on our sales staff, as we find that by full co-operation and by putting the whole team to work, we often have a buyer already on our books.

This co-operation effort which I demand from every member of my staff pays large dividends not only to us, but also for both buyers and sellers.

The prospective buyers know that they are getting preferential treatment before the property is advertised. The sellers know that their property is being shown to a properly qualified and selected prospective purchaser, ready, willing and able to buy.

LIST WHERE THE ACTION IS, YOU KNOW IT MAKES SENSE.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

Harding

Earnings on a share basis improved 17 per cent in the nine months ended July 31, although total earnings including federal aid fell 3 cents from 47 cents a share, reports Harding Carpets Ltd.

The company said only three cents a share are represented by the designated area grant this year compared with 12 cents a year ago.

Sales went up 18 per cent from just over $7 million to $8.4 million in the third quarter, and 4 per cent in the nine months from $22.5 million to $23.5 million.

In the third quarter net income rose 65 per cent to $298.9 million ($181 million) and in the nine months dropped from $745.9 million to $714.33 million.

Maher

Net earnings slipped three cents a share to 81 cents on 9.7 per cent higher sales, reports Maher Shoes Ltd. for the first half of 1971.

Sales rose from $6.9 million to $7.57 million, producing net earnings of $217,500 vs. $214,300, but there were more shares outstanding this year than a year ago.

Eight new retail outlets opened and three stores were closed during the six months, and another seven openings are planned this year.

Consolidated

An offering of 55 per cent of its common stock to the Canadian public will be made by the Calgary-based subsidiary of Northern Natural Gas Co., of Omaha, when it has completed financing of a 130-mile pipeline from Montana to Saskatchewan.

The gas from Montana will be taken into the Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. system and with Canadian gas be re-directed to the U.S. north-central market area via Emerson, Man.

Northern's Canadian subsidiary is Consolidated Natural Gas Ltd., which has its export application pending before the National Energy Board.

Campeau

Amalgamation of two branches of Campeau Corp. Ltd., Ottawa, will provide uniform operations in Canada and the U.S. for structural truss manufacturing.

The divisions are Trans Canada Truss and Templin Associates Inc., of Florida, which Campeau bought early this year.

They will function under the name TCT Engineering Inc. and TCT Engineering.

Tanzilla

Drilling is expected to start by the end of the month on Dease Lake property of Tranzilla Explorations Ltd., adjoining Lytton Minerals Ltd. claims.

Based on a recent induced polarization survey, targets are established on an anomalous zone 3,000 feet by about 3,200 feet.

Heist

A public offering of 300,000 shares of common stock will be made by C. H. Heist Corp., of Buffalo, and stockholders group.

Of the total, 150,000 shares will be sold directly from the treasury, proposed proceeds going to expansion and construction of Gulf coast operations, production and purchase of new equipment and working capital.

Refineries, petrochemical plants, mines, smelters, generating stations and distillers are the main customers for the company's mobile, high-pressure pumps.

Interest Rate To Go Higher

The Canadian Press

If you anticipate borrowing money in the near future, this might be a good time to make arrangements. Indications are that interest rates will go up again in the near future.

There is some thought that rates might decline slightly for a few months, but it would take fancy timing to catch them at the bottom.

Financial observers feel that rates will soon start an upward trend. The long-range view is that they will continue on the upturn for some time, and there is even speculation that rates will hit record highs during 1972.

There are a number of reasons for this view. The recent United States economic moves are part of it, but also the expectation that the U.S. will move toward an expanded money supply to stimulate business.

INFLATION UPS RATES

This would be inflationary in character and inflation eventually leads to higher interest rates.

John Mackenzie, vice-president of Canada Permanent Trust Co. of Toronto, says the U.S. price and wage freeze will add to the inflationary pressure in the long run.

"Unions and business cannot be expected to lose their competitive enthusiasm for higher wages and higher profits during the period of the freeze. Indeed, the best that can be reasonably hoped for is that when it is over both sides will not aim for quite as much as they would in the normal course.

"If we believe that the Nixon policy will do little more than cause a delay in the cost-push inflationary spiral, then we cannot look for lower interest rates."

He predicts interest rates will decline for a short time, but by the second or third quarter of 1972 will rise again.

The Mortgage Insurance Co. of Canada notes that a trend toward a slightly tighter money supply and "upward adjustments in rates" was already evident in August.

At the moment, however, rates are a bit below the levels of a year ago. The yield for the new 1971-72 Canada Savings Bonds will be 7.19 per cent if held to maturity, down from 7.75 per cent for the previous year. Every issue since 1966 has offered the investor double his money back, or better, but the 1971-72 issue will yield only $187 at maturity for each $100 invested.

A Toronto banking spokesman, however, agreed with Mackenzie that rates will eventually turn upward.

"It seems certain the U.S. will have a bout of inflation again after the freeze and that will bring price increases. These will apply to money as well as goods.

"There will be a rush to market, and that will bring the demand for more money. The government won't want to let inflation get out of hand and will have to apply the brakes again and squeeze the money supply. That will bring the rates up, perhaps higher than a year or so ago."

Lord Vancouver Sets Woodbine Track Mark

(Times News Services)

Responding to a well-planned move by jockey Frank Inda, Grand Bolero slipped through on the rail to win the $11,250 Sir Winston Churchill Memorial Handicap Saturday at Vancouver's Exhibition Park.

The Kentucky-bred, five-year-old owned by George Biely got up to beat favored Silver Double by a head in the 1⅛-mile affair. The winning time was 1:51 1/5.

Aladian was another length back in third place.

Also winner of the Longden $6,000 in June, Grand Bolero won $7,175 to boost his season's earnings to more than $20,000.

Gentleman Conn, ridden by Sandy Hawley, won the $25,000 Coronation Futurity Stakes at Toronto's Woodbine Park on Saturday. Victoria Song was second, a half length behind, while Presidial was third.

On Sunday, Lord Vancouver won the $16,735 Kingarvie Stakes, setting a Woodbine track record of 1:56 4/5 for the 1 3/16-mile. Owned by Conn Smythe, Lord Vancouver now will fly to Vancouver for next Saturday's $25,000-added B.C. Derby at Exhibition Park.

The Derby field also includes Shadows Divided, owned by Victoria's Tom and Joan Druce.

Elsewhere with the sport of kings, Meadow Stable's Riva Ridge, almost sidelined for the season by a high fever earlier in the year, won his second consecutive stakes Saturday by taking the $153,060 Futurity at Belmont Park.

Riva Ridge taking a big step toward the two-year-old championship, scored by 1½ lengths over Ceasar P. Kimmel's Chevron Flight in running his record to four victories in six starts. Hold Your Peace was third.

The winner covered the 6½ furlongs under Jockey Ron Turcotte in 1:16 3/5.

Turcotte, coming off a 10-day suspension, started making up for lost time — and money — in a hurry with his 10 per cent of the $87,636 first price.

At Atlantic City, N. J., Run The Gauntlet vindicated his trainer's decision to run him instead of defending champion Fort Marcy by galloping to victory by 1½ lengths in the $100,000 United Nations Handicap.

Ridden by Bobby Woodhouse, the three-year-old son of Tom Ralfe took the lead with an eighth of a mile to go and won driving over Twice Worthy, with Chompion third and Forum fourth in the field of 11 three-year-olds and up.

Woodhouse completed the first father-son combination to win the UN. His dad, Hedley, won on the record-breaking Flit-To four years ago. The senior Woodhouse was born in Vancouver.

At Chicago, Blue Tytes charged around the leaders on the stretch turn to win the $29,800 Indian Maid Handicap at Hawthorne. Loco Spring finished second, 2½ lengths behind, and Jaimsie ran third in the one-mile turf race for fillies and mares.

Lester Piggott, British champion jockey for the last seven years, Saturday was suspended for three days after his mount Juggernaut finished second to odds-on Spoiled Lad in a two-horse race for the Santio Stakes at Kempton Park in London.

After examining the official film of the race, the stewards decided Juggernaut had seriously interfered with Spoiled Lad and suspended Piggot for failing to keep a straight course. Piggott is well ahead in this year's jockey's championship competition in Britain.

Green Belt, ridden by Wayne Green, caught Fabe Count in the home stretch Sunday and won the 22nd running of the $34,165 Quebec Derby at Montreal's Blue Bonnets track. Great Gabe finished third in the richest race ever run in Quebec.

Arthur W. Stollery's Canadian-bred Lauries Dancer rallied from last in a field of eight three-year-old fillies to score a smashing victory Sunday in the $59,050 Delaware Oaks at Delaware Park.

Racing over a good track the daughter of Northern Dancer finished the 1⅛ miles in 1:50 4/5 to take the $38,382 winner's share by 2¼ lengths. Secret Retreat, unbeaten in three starts this year in Ohio, was second by a head over Forward Gal. It was Lauries Dancer's fifth stakes win of the year.

B.C. PULLS OUT WIN WITH LAST-GASP KICK

NEWPORT, Wales (Reuter) — The British Columbia Rugby Union team opened a five-match tour of Wales Saturday with a last-gasp 17-15 win over a Monmouthshire under-25XV.

The Welsh team led 12-6 at half time.

The Canadians were trailing by one point in the last minute. Then fullback Barry Burnham landed his third penalty goal with the final kick of the match to clinch a splendid win.

After Burnham and Welshman Robin Williams had taken the score to 6-6 with two penalty goals each, Monmouthshire took a first-half lead through a try by Newport flanker Geoff Evans which Williams converted.

The Canadians went ahead 14-12 in the second half through two fine tries by three-quarters Charlie Pleter and Spence McTavish before Monmouthsire regained a one-point lead 10 minutes from the end.

Foes Not Swayed By Reputations

Defending provincial rugby champions discovered Saturday in exhibition play that some of their rivals aren't impressed by last season's clippings.

University of Victoria Vikings, who won the provincial first-division title last season, were held to a 4-4 draw by Vancouver Kats at the University of Victoria.

In an earlier game, Uvic Norsemen edged the Kats' second squad, defending champions of the provincial second-division, 10-7.

All scoring in the Vikings-Kats match came in the second half. Utilizing the new four-point try, John Garland dove over for Vikings at the 12-minute mark. Kats, provincial champions for 15 years before being beaten 6-3 by Vikings in the final last year, tied the game after 25 minutes when Gordon McRae crossed over for a try.

Norsemen collected a penalty goal from Doug Pettman in reply to a penalty kicked by Bob Wilde to deadlock the second-division match 3-3 at the half.

Dave Smirl scored a try for Norsemen and Bruce Allerdyce answered for Kats early in the second frame and it looked like the match might end in a 7-7 draw — until Pettman sent over his second penalty goal with only five minutes remaining.

Seattle defeated Velox Firsts 16-0 but bowed to Velox Seconds 20-12.

Doug Archibald led Velex II with a try and two converts while other trys were added by Pat Griffin, Mark Hume and Steve Hume.

Kiniski Beaten By Little Bear

KELOWNA SKIER . . . . . OVERALL CHAMP

Athans World's Best

BANALOS, Spain (CP — George Athans, 19-year-old student at Sir George Williams University in Montreal, emerged as a star of the world water ski championships, winning the gold medal for men's over-all events, and placing well in individual competitions.

Athans, from Kelowna, amassed 2,719.169 points in the combination events, to outscore Mike Suyderhoud of the United States, 2,657.35 points, and Ricky J. McCormick, U.S., 2,533.90.

In decisions reached Sunday, the last day of competition, Athans took silver medals in both jumping and slalom.

Suyderhoud won the jumping with 1,102.3 points, to 1,089.3 for Athans. The American also took the men's slalom, with 72 points to 70.5 for Athans.

Kim Reid, 16-year-old from Selkirk, Man., finished in a tie for seventh in the slalom, with 56 points.

On Saturday, when Athans was announced was over-all medal winner, MacCormick took the figures — or tricks — title, Athans finished fourth in this event, with 8,658.66 points to 10,294.53 for MacCormick.

Christy Freeman of the U.S. won the women's slalom title Sunday and Christy Lynn Weir of the U.S. took the women's jumping gold medal.

The women's over-all title went to Miss Weir and the women's tricks title to W. J. Thale of Holland.

The United States placed first in the team standings with 8,582 points, followed by Australia with 7,586, France with 6,936, Canada with 6,839, Italy with 6,527 and Britain with 6,331. Other teams were from West Germany, Switzerland, Finland and Holland.

U.S. skiers won 11 medals in all, six of them gold. Holland had two gold and two bronze. Then came Canada's one gold and two silver, all won by Athans.

Bogota, Colombia, was picked as the site of the 1973 water ski championships, held every two years. Franco Carraro of Italy was re-elected president of the Water Ski International Federations.

Athans is the first Canadian ever to win the world over-all ski title. He holds Canadian records in slalom, jumping and tricks.

MINTO CUP ARGUMENT ALL SQUARE

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Peterborough PCOS gained a new life in the Canadian junior lacrosse final for the Minto Cup Saturday with a 12-8 victory over Richmond Roadrunners before 3,468 fans.

Each team has won two games in the best-of-seven final with the fifth game scheduled here tonight.

Richmond took the first two games of the series but thanks to the fine play of goalie Greg Thomas and rookie Jim Johnston, the Ontario team has come on in the last two.

Johnston counted four goals to lead the PCO attack while unheralded Jan Magee scored three times. Gord Floyd had two goals and assisted on three, while singles went to Jim Gow, Steve Plunkett, and Ron Ryan.

Brian Tasker, Dave Tasker and Dave Durante had two goals each for Richmond while Tom Penway and Harvey Olsen notched singles.

Coach Ron Phillips of Richmond cited bad passing, bad shooting, no running and a lack of checking as the reasons for his team's loss.

FIRST MANN CUP . . . . . IN FOUR STRAIGHT

Brantford Reigns

BRANTFORD (CP) — Brantford Warriors won their first Mann Cup by defeating New Westminster Salmonbellies, 17-13, Saturday to sweep the best-of-seven series for the Canadian Senior A lacross championship.

The Salmonbellies took a 5-2 lead early in the first period but Warriors came back to tie the score 6-6 before the period ended, and never looked back.

Brian Wilson led the Warriors with five goals. Ted Howe, Rick Dudley, Gaylord Powless, Ron MacNeil and John McKenna scored two goals each.

New Westminster was led by Wayne Goss with four goals. Paul Parnell scored three and Ed Goss two.

Bob McCready, the Warriors' 31-year-old goaltender from St. Catharines was named outstanding player of the series. He was presented with the Mike Kelly Trophy.

BURNABY AVOIDS SWEEP

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Burnaby Kokanees forced a fifth game in the Canadian senior "B" lacrosse final by upsetting Windsor Warlocks 9-8 here Sunday. The Kokanees, who were beaten 18-13 Saturday, trail 3-1 in the best-of-seven series.

Jack Barclay, Dave Thwaites and Bill McMurchie scored two goals each for Burnaby in Sunday's game, with Brian Thompson scoring three goals and Joe Krasnaj two for Windsor.

Sunday's victory was mostly a result of the Kokanees becoming "acclimatized" to playing in Windsor, to the arena, to the Warlocks' style of play and to the refereeing, Burnaby coach Jack Dale said.

Kings Settle For Tie

Times News Services

Vancouver Canucks came from behind with four power-play goals to tie Los Angeles Kings 4-4 in a National Hockey League exhibition game before 4,100 fans at Medicine Hat Sunday.

The Kings took a 4-2 lead with just six shots on goal in the first period as Ed Joyal, Bob Pulford, Ross Lonsberry and Gilles Marotte put the puck behind Vancouver netminder George Gardner. Three of the Los Angeles goals came on the power play.

Wayne Maki and Jocelyn Guevremont scored for the Canucks in the first period, with Guevremont's tally coming while the Kings were two men short.

LALONDE INJURED

Canuck rooke Bobbie Lalonde suffered stretched ligaments in the second period but was expected to be back on the ice today.

In other games Sunday, Detroit blanked St. Louis Blues 3-0, Buffalo whipped California Golden Seals 6-2, Toronto edged Minnesota 3-1, and Pittsburgh Penguins defeated New York Rangers 3-1.

On Saturday night, Guy Lafleur, the highly-touted Montreal rookie, had three assists as Canadiens trounced the Boston Bruins 7-4; Detroit scored its first of two shutouts over St. Louis 2-0, Philadelphia Flyers played to a 2-2 tie with Buffalo, and Toronto Maple Leafs and Minnesota North Stars settled for a 4-4 sawoff.

Lafleur sent the 18,906 fans at Montreal's Forum into a frenzy when he won the opening faceoff from Boston's Phil Esposito, who set an NHL record for points last season with 76 goals and 76 assists.

SETS UP MAHOVLICH

Forty-one seconds later, Lafleur, who scored more than 130 goals last season with Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Junior Hockey League, slid a pass to Frank Mahovlics, who scored the first of his two goals.

"I was a bit nervous before the start of the game," said Lafleur, "but it didn't take me long to get some confidence."

Lafleur also assisted on a pair of goals by Yvan Cournoyer, his other linemate. Peter Mahovlich, Marc Tardif and Jacques Lemaire scored the other goals for Montreal.

PERREAULT SCORES

Gil Perreault, last season's rookie of the year, scored with 65 seconds remaining in the game to give Buffalo its tie with Philadelphia Saturday. Richard Martin, Buffalo's first draft choice, scored the other goal. Bob Kelly and Dan Schock replied for Philadelphia.

Paul Henderson and Norm Ullman notched power-play goals Sunday as the Leafs overcame a 1-0 deficit. Guy Trottier got the other Leaf marker while Dennis O'Brien scored for Minnesota.

BEST SEAT IN THE HOUSE

Pressure Grows for Giants As Dodgers Win Twice

(Times News Services)

The San Francisco Giants won one for the road Sunday but still lost ground to the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West race and go into the final days of the season with the pressure squarely on them.

The Giants defeated the San Diego Padres, 4-1, but their lead was cut to 1½ games when the Dodgers swept the Atlanta Braves, 12-0 and 4-0. The Giants play all their remaining nine games away from home while the Dodgers play three of their last eight at home.

Hal Lanier's two-run second-inning single was the big blow for the Giants, who handed fireballer Dave Roberts his 16th loss against 13 wins. Son Carrithers went 6⅔ innings to win his fifth game for the Giants with relief help from Steve Hamilton and Jerry Johnson. It was Johnson's 65th relief appearance of the year and he earned his 18th save.

COMEBACK OF YEAR

The Dodgers, who had lost four straight games, got brilliant pitching from Al Downing and Don Sutton to sweep their doubleheader from the Braves and barge right back into the race.

Downing, virtually a sure-fire choice as the NL's comeback player of the year, pitched a three-hitter in the first game to raise his record to 19-8 while Sutton turned in a six hitter in the nightcap for his 15th win.

Willie Davis drove in three runs with a homer, double and two singles to lead a 19-hit Los Angeles attack which dealt Phil Nierko his 13th loss in the opener. Duke Sims' homer and a steal of home by Willie Crawford paced the Dodgers' attack in the second game as Ron Reed also suffered his 13th setback.

Chicago Cubs beat Philadelphia Phillies, 6-3; St. Louis Cardinals routed Montreal Expos, 11-0; New York Mets topped Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-2, and Houston Astros shaded Cincinnati Reds, 5-4, in 11 innings.

In the American League, it was Baltimore 8, Detroit 1; Oakland 6, Milwaukee 2; Boston 4, Washington 3; California 2, Chicago 0; New York 3, Cleveland 2, and Kansas City 5, Minnesota 2 after Kansas City lost, 6-3, in the opener.

Ferguson Jenkins, the favorite in the NL's Cy Young pitcher-of-the-year race, and Steve Carlton, a long-shot, starred, respectively, for the Cubs and Cardinals.

Jenkins, a five-time 20-game winner who never has won the award, scored his 22nd victory against 13 losses for the Cubs after starting a three-run ninth-inning rally with a double.

Carlton, bidding for his first 20-victory season, won his 19th game behind a 15-hit attack which included three hits each by Ted Simmons and Joe Torre. Carlton struck out two and walked five in a four-hitter as he raised his record to 19-9.

Hucul Delighted With Cats' Play

The Whites beat the Reds 6-4 but the part that pleased coach Fred Hucul the most was the "overall performance of a lot of players" in Victoria Cougars' intra-squad game Sunday at Memorial Arena.

the line o fGary Donaldson, Ervie Miller and Denny McLean sparked Whites' victory. Each scored a goal. Miller also picked up three assists while Donaldson had two helpers.

Terry Puska, Ron Andruff and Ray Clarke also scored for the winners while Phil Blake, twith two, Ron Poole and Rick Kennedy counted the Red goals.

Miller, Donaldson, Ron Winkler, Blake, Poole and McLean were among the most impressive forwards.

Hucul also was very ;leased with the overall play of both defences ,particularly Murray Kennett and Pete Kay.

Standout on goal was Dave Maynard, who started for Whites and turned away 12 shots in the first period.

Elsewhere, New-westminster Bruins split a pair of weekend exhibitions in Manitoba. Bruins edgtd Winnipeg Jets 5-4 Saturday behind the three-goal performance of Lorne Henning, but suffered a 6-3 loss to Brandon Wheat Kings on Sunday.

Dallas Wins Title

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Dallas Tornado won its first North American Soccer League Championshiptitle Sunday, defeating Atlanta Chiefs 2-0 to take the best-of-three final series 2-1.

Bombers Get Tie In Final Second

Jonas Kicks Field Goal To Thwart Lions

By The Canadian Press

The defence put the only touchdown on the board in Edmonton but it was all offence in Winnipeg as weekend action in the Western Football Conference turned the race for playoff spots into a two-team fight—at least for the moment.

In Winnipeg Sunday British Columbia Lions matched the heroics of Winnipeg quarterback Don Jonas and flanker Jim Thorpe to battle Bombers to a 31-31 stalemate.

In Edmonton Saturday, Saskatchewan Roughriders took advantage of an inept display by the Eskimo offence and a touchdown by tackle Ed McQuarters to win 19-3 Saturday night.

The results left Roughriders in second place in the WFC with a 5-4 record, six points behind first-place Calgary Stampeders and one point ahead of the Bombers. However, Bombers, who are 4-6-1, have played two more games than both Saskatchewan and B.C.

The loss for cellar-dwelling Eskimos, their ninth in 10 starts, further dimmed their chances of capturing one of the three playoff positions.

Bombers move to Vancouver next Saturday to renew their fight with Lions for third place in the west, while Eskimos have a rematch against Roughriders in Regina.

Jonas had a 13-point afternoon for Winnipeg with a field goal, a touchdown, three converts and a single. Thorpe scored three touchdowns. Running back Larry Highbaugh scored two touchdowns for the Lions and Fullback Jim Evenson and Lach Herron scored one apiece. Ken Phillips kicked three converts and two singles and Ted Gerela counted two singles.

Besides McQuarters' touchdown, The Roughriders had a convert and four field goals by Jack Abendschan. Dave Cutler kicked a field goal for the Eskimos.

Despite the passing of Jonas, who completed 23 of 36 tosses for 450 yards, and the catching of Thorpe, who pulled in seven aerials fir 227 yards and three touchdowns, Bombers needed Jonas' last-second field goal to gain the tie with Lions and their outstanding rookie quarterback Don Moorhead.

Lions coach Eagle Keys said Moorhead, who was making only his second start, gave the offence "more fire" than it has displayed before, "but that defence . . ."

Keys also was unhappy with an off-side penanlty that gave Jonas the chance to tie the score. With two seconds left on the clock Jonas tried one from the 33-yard line that was wide, but Highbaugh, sent in to try to scoot through and block the placement attempt, lined up offside.

Kicking again from the 28, Jonas made it good, capping a 13-point afternoon that consisted of the field goal, a two-yard touchdown run, three converts and a single on a wide field goal attempt.

Thorpe's three touchdowns came on pass-and-run plays of 82, 77 and 32 yards, and gave the former Toronto Argonaut 1,098 yards gained on 46 receptions, within 28 yards if the all-time Bomber mark set in 1959 by the late Ernie Pitts.

At Edmonton, Eskimo quarpointed 22,474 fans by throwterbacks Larry Lawrence and Bruce Timmerman disaping a total of seven interceptions. Lawrence also let a jump-pass attempt slip from sis grip at Edmonton's three-yard line and McQuarters picked it off and went in for the game's only touchdown.

Theft Record For Thornton

By The Canadian Press

The defence was again in the spotlight and a professional football record was established in weekend games in the Eastern Conference of the Canadian Football League.

Cornerback Dick Thornton got the seventh touchdown interception of his 12-year-career as Toronto Argonauts clubbed the Rough Riders Sunday 26-17 in Ottawa and Hamilton Tiger-Cats rallied in the last minute at home Saturday night to edge Montreal Alouettes 10-9.

Thornton's first of three interceptions before 26,063 disgruntled Ottawa fans increased his total to one more than the six credited to Herb Adderly of Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, with whom he previously shared the record.

His performance helped the Argos improve their total to 14 points, six more than Montreal and Hamilton, tied for second with eight points each. Ottawa trails with six.

QUARTERBACKS HURT

Starting quarterbacks Greg Barton of the Argos and Rick Cassata of the Riders were both knocked out of the game by injuries.

Cassata suffered a concussion late in the first half and was taken to hospital for x-rays. He was expected to remain overnight for observation.

Barton broke a small bone in the little finger of his throwing hand, also in the opening half, and went to the sidelines after two sequences in the third quarter. This forced Argo Coach Leo Cahill to abandon his quarterback rotation and Joe Theismann directed the team for the remainder of the game.

Dave Buchanan's touchdown, converted by Tommy-Joe Coffey with eight seconds to play, provided the Ticats with victory and stopped the rush to the exits by many of the 28,871 fans at Hamilton.

"They're the luckiest team I ever saw," said Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry.

"Last time we were here we ran them all over the field and we only win 12-8. In Montreal we beat the hell out of them, but we win by only two points."

Saturday, Ticats compiled only 185 yards of offence, to Montreal's 371.

Cassata gave the Riders an early lead when he ran 58 yards for a touchdown, but this was wiped out about two minutes later by Thornton's 43-yard touchdown interception.

McQUAY SCORES

In the second quarter, Barton's pass to Leon McQuay was good for 44 yards and a touchdown. Leading EFC scorer Gerry Organ kicked a 22-yeard field goal to get Ottawa on the board, but before the half ended Barton hit Tony Moro with a short pass in the end zone.

Gary Wood replaced Cassata for the second half and threw an 18-yard touchdown pass to Hugh Oldham, after Ivan MacMillan, who converted all three Argo touchdowns, kicked a single on an attempted field goal. A single by Zenon Andrusyshyn and a field goal by MacMillan rounded out the Toronto scoring in the fourth quarter.

Quarterback Joe Zuger's touchdown pass to Dave Buchanan set up the Hamilton heroics. Coffey, who earlier managed a third-quarter field goal that tied the game, kicked the game-winning convert with eight seconds on the clock.

Justine Canale scored all the Montreal points on three field goals one in the first quarter and two in the fourth.

Upsets Spice NFL Openers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rookie quarterbacks Jim Plunkett and Archie Manning made spectacular pro debuts to spice an incredible opening Sunday in the National Football League.

Plunkett and Manning, the No. 1 and No. 2 picks in last January's pro draft, led New England Patriots and New Orleans Saints to the two most startling upsets on an opening day replete with surprises.

Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford, threw two touchdown passes as the Pats stunned Oakland Raiders 20-6.

Another rookie, cornerback Tom Hayes from San Diego State, played a major role as Atlanta Falcons humbled the favored San Francisco '49ers 20-17.

CHARGERS BEAT CHIEFS

In other surprises San Diego Chargers whipped Kansas City Chiefs 21-14, New York Giants edged Green Bay Packers 42-40, Washington Redskins overcame St. Louis Cardinals 24-17, Chicago Bears tripped Pittsburgh Steelers 17-15, Cleveland Browns routed Houston Oilers 31-0 and Denver Broncos held Miami Dolphins to a 10-10 tie.

Elsewhere, form stood up as the Super Bowl champion Baltimore Colts whacked New York Jets 22-0, Dallas Cowboys, the only unbeaten, untied club in the pre-season schedule, downed Buffalo Bills 49-37 and Cincinnati Bengals trampled Philadelphia Eagles 37-14.

Plunkett's first scoring pass in the second half was a 33-yarder to Ron Sellers and the second a 20-yarder to Tom Beer.

Four interceptions of John Brodie passes coupled with two Atlanta scoring passes from Bob Berry to Ken Burrow, helped the Falcons upset the '49ers.

ROOKIE SAVES IT

But it was the rookie "Mr. Hayes" as coach Norm van Brocklin called him, who preserved the Falcons' triumph. He scooped up a fumble in the last three seconds on a play that erupeed into a brawl as players from both benches pilled on to the field.

A 26-yard run by Mike Garrett, a former Chief, gave the Chargers their victory over Kansas City. The Chiefs led 14-0 at halftime, but the Chargers rallied to tie on two touchdown passes by John Hadl before Garrett's winning scamper.

Down 42-24, the Packers almost pulled it out against the Giants, but an interception by linebacker Jim Files with 1:14 left preserved the New Yorkers' triumph.

Dan Devine, Green Bay's new coach, suffered a broken leg on the sidelines in the last quarter when Doug Hart of the Packers was shoved out of bounds near the Green Bay bench while running back an interception. Devine was caught in the pileup.

The Minnesota Vikings play at Detroit tonight in a televised game over the ABC network, at 6 p.m. PDT.

NORTH SHORE TOPS BURNABY

Bombers' Whirlwind Finish Stuns Dolphins

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Blue Bombers stormed back from a 14-0 half-time deficit and scorer three touchdowns, two of them in the final two minutes, here Sunday to tie Victoria Dolphins 20-20 in a Big Four Junior Football League game at Empire Stadium.

The result stunned the Dolphins, who led 20-6 heading into the fourth quarter and appeared to be on their way to an easy victory.

Bombers' quarterback Bob Kosch and halfback Daryl Solecki combined with a pass-and-run attack in the final few minutes which Victoria could not contain.

Kosch scored the first Bomber major on a one-yard sneak in the third quarter, and hit Solecki with 12 and 10-yard pass-and-run scoring plays late in the fourth. The final Vancouver touchdown came after the Bombers recovered their own short kickoff and moved into scoring range. Randy Buckell kicked two converts for the Bombers.

Dolphins' Rick Price stood out as the outstanding player of the game, however, as he scored two touchdowns and saw double duty at offensive thight end and defensive linebacker.

Price combined with Victoria quarterback Terry Karpiuk for a 68-yard pass-and-run scoring play early in the first quarter, and scored the other on an 83-yard run after he recovered a Vancouver fumble. Matt Flynn and Rod Crowe provided excellent blocking on both of Price's touchdowns.

Karpiuk passed to end Chris Hall for the other Dolphin major — a 34-yard pass-and-run play — and Howe converted two majors.

Mike Woods combined with Karpiuk for an attempted pass-and-run conversion after Price's second touchdown, but, according to Dolphins' head coach Frank Hindle, Woods became confused as to which line was the goal line on the play.

"Mike ran over the last white line on the field and threw the ball to an official, thinking the convert had been made," Hindle explained "We were then told that a yellow line further on was the goal line and that the convert was no good. That extra point would have won the game for us."

Hindle said he didn't want to make any alibis for the Dolphins, but suggested that his team found the artificial Tartan Turf at Empire Stadium difficult to play on.

"It was our first game on the 'carpet,' " Hindle said. "It takes some getting used to."

Hindle said the Dolphins were hurting in fourth quarter when defensive halfbacks Glenn White (sore sholder) and John Pagon (sprained hand, were forced out of the game. Hindle had praise for Pat Griffin, who intercepted three Bomber passes and was steady on defence throughout.

"It was one of our best defensive game of the year until the fourth quarter," Hindle said.

The tie gave each team one point — the Bombers' first point of the season. Dolphins fell three points back of North Shore Cougars who romped to an easy 13-3 win over Burnaby Spartans in a later game at Empire. Chris Bennett kicked two field goals and a convert to lead the Cougars, while quarterback Garry Steinbart combined with split end Al Embley on a 56-yard pass-and-run major. Jack Steele kicked a 25-yard field goal for Spartans, who are three points behind Victoria.

Victory gave Cougars a first-place tie with Vancouver Meralomas, who were idle Sunday.

FATALITY MARS MOSPORT EVENT

An unusual accident claimed the life of Wayne Kelly of Ottawa Sunday in Shoppers World Championship race at Mosport race track, near Toronto. An ambulance had gone out on the track to pick up an injured driver from a previous pile-up when Kelly, rounding a turn in the track, was unable to stop. He slid under the ambulance, lifting it in air, and was decapitated.

Grand Prix Marred By Driver's Death

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Jackie Stewart of Scotland did the expected Sunday, winning the Grand Prix of Canada and stretching his 1971 string of Formula 1 victories to six.

The long-haired Stewart, dubbed the Flying Scot for his speed and the Mod Scot for his far-out dress, won the world driver's championship Aug. 1 with his victory in the German Grand Prix.

So his win Sunday in a Ford-powered Tyrrel was just frosting on the cake—plus $14,000 in prize money and the Player's award.

Speeds in the actual race were nothing like those in Friday and Saturday qualifying trials when Stewart won the pole position in a field of 24 with a top lap speed of 117.56 miles an hour.

LEAD CHANGES HANDS

Stewart held his lead Sunday for the first 17 laps, then lost it to Ronnie Peterson of Sweden driving a British March. For another 13 laps the Swede held his lead but Stewart passed him on lap 31. Peterson finished 38.3 seconds behind the Scot.

Mark Donohue of Media, Pa., driving a McLaren in his first Formula I bid, was third, about a minute and a half behind the winner.

A fatality in a preliminary race—only the eighth in Mosport's 11 seasons of operation — delayed the start of the Grand Prix 100 minutes beyond the scheduled 2:30 p.m. EDT beginning.

Wayne Kelly of Ottawa, renowned as a builder and developer of racing cars as well as a driver, crashed into an ambulance called out on the track for an earlier accident.

He died in the wreckage of his little Formula Ford racer and the race was abandoned. Provincial police held up further racing until the accident was thoroughly investigated.

By that time heavy rains had begun and the Formula I cars had to have a warm-up session to test their tire adhesion in the wet.

VISIBILITY POOR

Officials decided to stop the race at lap 64 when corner they could not see from one marshals, who supervise the running of a race, reported corner to the next as a heavy mist followed the rain.

The race, with $155,000 in prize money, was the 10th in a world-girdling series of 11 races which will end Oct. 3 with the Grand Prix of the United States at Watkins Glen, N.Y.

Points toward the world driver's championship are awarded on a 9-6-4-3-2-1 basis for the first six places. Stewart racked up 51 points by winning the events in Spain, Monaco, France, Britain and Germany and placing second in the South African race.

Peterson's six points for second place Sunday gave him a solid hold on runner-up spot for the world championship. No matter what happens at Watkins Glen no one now can catch him.

Leading Hornets Belt Bays 55-0

Saanich Chew Excavating Hornets retained a two-point lead in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League by smashing Oak Bay Farmer Construction 55-0 Sunday at Centennial Stadium.

James Bay Athletic Association Mustangs received a little help from the clock to remain in second spot with 21-19 win over Cowichan Timbermen on the same field.

Hornets completely dominated their game, piling up a whopping 500 yards rushing.

Quarterback Jerry Kustaski played only the first half but led Hornets to a 24-0 advantage at the break by passing for three touchdowns. Kustaski's record for the two quarters was 12 completed passes out of 18 for 184 yards.

Mike Taylor, Jack Munch and Sean Flynn scored majors in the first half while Norm Baker kicked a 27-yard field goal and converted all TDs.

Flynn scored two more touchdowns in the second half while single majors were added by Jack Harold and Ron Kerr. Dave Coulter booted a 55-yard single and Baker converted all four TDs. Hornets also collected on a "rouge."

All three Mustangs touchdowns came in the first half from Dave Stapleford while Frank Morris completed all conversions to pace the JBAA squad to a 21-0 half-time lead.

Then Cowichan exploded but time ran out before the fired-up Timbermen could complete the comeback charge.

Cross-Country Run Dominated By Mainlanders

Ken French of the University of British Columbia placed first Saturday in the opening race of the five-event B.C. Cross-Country League series at the University of Victoria.

French went through the 6¼-mile course in 34:08 minutes to finish nine seconds ahead of runner-up Rick Nicaud of Simon Fraser University. Gary Cumiford of Vancouver Optimist Striders placed third in 34:44.

Bob Ross, a freshman, had the best showing for Uvic runners among the 64 entrants that finished the race. Ross finished ninth.

Other clubs participating were Vancouver Olympic Club, Victoria Evergreens, British Columbia Institute of Technology, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Brigade (Victoria) and Lions Gate Roadrunners (Vancouver).

Second race of the series is scheduled for Dec. 4 at Simon Fraser University.

Pentathlon Mark Falls

Tony Putzi's record-smashing performance in the men's pentathlon highlighted the two-day Vancouver Island track and field championship meet, which was concluded Sunday at Duncan.

Competing in Saturday's portion of the meet at Centennial Stadium, Putzi cracked the seven-year-old national pentathlon mark as he won four of the five events.

The Richmond athlete, recently returned from a European tour with the Canadian track and field team, chalked up a total of 3,171 points to better the record set in 1964 by Bill Gairdner of Ontario.

SENATOR OWNER PLANS SURPRISE FOR MEETING

BOSTON (AP) — American League baseball club owners are scheduled to meet in Boston Tuesday amid indications they'll give Bob Short the necessary votes to move Washington Senators to Dallas-Fort Worth, if he asks for them.

Short would need nine of the 12 votes, including his own, and the Associated Press has learned that he has them.

The controversial owner indicated Saturday, however, that he might not make the request to switch locations, adding he might not be in the baseball business by the end of the meeting.

"I may be the owner when the meeting begins, but probably not when it ends," Short said.

"There's not a person here or person coming to that meeting who knows what's going to happen," Short said, adding that he has not received a firm offer for the team.

Asked to confirm published reports that he would not ask for permission to move the team, Short said: "Anything is possible, but I don't think I will ask."

Squash Favorites Find Going Rough

Seconded-seeded Neil Desaulnier toppled top-seeded George Morfitt in an all-Vancouver "A" division final, 3-2; unseeded Elliot Walters of Seattle bounced top-ranked Doug Hawkes of Victoria 3-1 to win the "B" veteran's title; and second-seeded Pat Richardson of Vancouver scored a 3-1 upset over Victoria's Guy Screech in the "C" division final.

Semi-final results:

"A" CLASS

"B" CLASS

John Dowling (Victoria) def. Godhue Livingston (Seattle), 3-1.

Hugh Irving (Victoria) def. Stan Heard (Victoria), 3-1.

"B" VETERANS

Elliot Walters (Seattle) def. Bill Bell (Victoria), 3-1.

"C" CLASS

Guy Screech (Victoria) def. Geoff Smith (Vancouver), 3-0.

Pat Richardson (Vancouver) def. Dave Price (Victoria), 3-1.

"D" CLASS

Jim Laing (Victoria) def. Mike Desaulniers (Vancouver), 3-1.

Bob Croll (Victoria) def. Mike Morrison (Victoria), 3-0.

Geoffrion Signs

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Remparts today announced the signing of leftwinger Robert Geoffrion for the 1971-72 Quebec Junior A Hockey League season.

Geoffrion, a five-foot, 11-inch leftwinger, is the son of Bernard (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion, a former National Hockey League star with Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers.

Van de Water Gains Ground

Van de Water scored the first sweep of the season and picked up a total 139 points for his performance in time trials as well as victories in the fast heat and main event. He also won the trophy dash which does not figure in point accumulation.

The productive night boosted Van de Water's total this season to 1,434 points.

MECHANICAL WOES

Pollard ran into mechanical difficulties and only picked up 10 points during the time trials to bring his total to 1,440. The leader was forced out of the fast heat and did not enter the main event.

Van de Water beat out Larry's father, Earl, and Orton Ker to win the 25-lap main event.

Now all hinges on next Saturday's final meet when double points will be offered in the main event for the stock car championship race.

Also to be decided next week will be the Corby Cup for the driver who has won the most main events during the season.

EACH HAS SEVEN

Rick O'Dell remained in a tie with Van de Water Saturday by winning the 35-lap super-stock main. O'Dell, who has already clinched the super-stock championship won the trophy dash as well before winning his seventh feature race.

Ross McIntyre roared from behind in the third section of the program to score a crowd-pleasing victory over Jo Steinicke and Neil Gustafson in the 25-lap foreign stock championship race.

Gustafson had led from the third to the 23rd lap before McIntyre took over and Steinicke slipped through to grab second place.

Results:

FOREIGN STOCKS

Saanich Teams Set Bantam League Pace

Saanich Chargers rolled to a 41-20 victory over Juan de Fuca Tigers on Sunday to maintain a one-point hold on the Vancouver Island Bantam Football League lead.

In the other Royal Athletic Park encounter, runner-up Saanich Hornets humbled Cowichan Chiefs, 22-7.

Rick Jones and Tom Sullivan paced Chargers with two touchdowns each while single majors were scored by Bill Galego and Scott Woodburn. Don Frinette kicked five converts.

Brad Propp, Rod Liddicoat and Malcolm Moscrop scored majors for Tigers and Moscrop booted two converts.

Iggy Kadar led Hornets to victory with an accurate toe — producing three field goals and a convert. Touchdowns were scored by Kerry Lacroix and Cal Nault.

MISFORTUNE FOLLOWS CITY CARS TO TRACK

Joe Macmurchie enjoyed the greatest fortune, finishing sixth in the 100-lap main event which was won by Don Dowdy of Yakima.

Garry Kershaw was knocked out on the 12th lap of the main when a car he was trying to lap spun out and pushed him off the track. Kershaw had previously won the fast heat after finishing second in the trophy dash.

Cup Contenders Trimmed to Four

Cosmopolitan Royals will tackle London Boxing Club and University of Victoria Vikings is set to face Oak Bay after winning quarter-final matches in the Victoria and District Soccer League's pre-season McGavin Cup competition at the weekend.

Royals bounced Saanich Braves 10-0 at Blanshard Street Park, Oak Bay blanked Roadrunners 2-0 at Central Park and Vikings tumbled Victoria West seconds 3-1 at Topaz Park in Sunday encounters.

Steve Bridgeman, Fred Stephenson and Jim Marshall counted for Vikings while Jim Lynch averted a shutout for Victoria West.

Veteran Bill Hamilton scored twice for London Boxing Club, which led 3-0 at half time. Other LBC scorers were Dave Peffers, Gerry Horne, Bob Battistoni and Flay Hall.

The Royals-LBC semi is scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday at Royal Athletic Park while the Vikings-Oak Bay match will be played Sept. 28.

The McGavin Cup final will take place on Nov. 11.

Parsons' Goal Sidelines 'Peg

WINNIPEG (CP) — Vancouver Entracht scored a 1-0 overtime win over Italinter of Winnipeg to take the Western Canadian senior soccer championship Sunday.

Buzz Parsons of Vancouver scored after 25 minutes of overtime to give the B.C. team victory in the tight defensive battle.

Vancouver will now play host to Windsor, Ont., in the Canadian final on Oct. 3.

Lee Plays Paul Revere After Yanks Keep Cup

ST. LOUIS (AP) — America has retained its grip on the Ryder Cup but none other than golf's latest superstar, Lee Trevino, believes the British are coming.

Trevino, a modern Paul Revere, sounded the warning after a United States team studded with the game's biggest names fought off Great Britain 18½-13½ in cup matches ending Saturday.

"The difference was just two or three matches," said nonplaying captain Jay Hebert, whose U.S. team won seven of 16 closing singles matches and tied three others.

Britons to whom Trevino and Hebert referred include Peter Oosterhuis, a 23-year-old giant who Saturday afternoon defeated Arnold Palmer.

U.S. WIN IS 15th

The U.S. victory, the country's 15th in 19 series of matches, was already sealed when Brian Barned toppled Miller Barber 2 and 1 and 29-year-old Harry Bannerman nudged 44-year-old Gardner Dickinson by the same score.

Another British star, 27-year-old Tony Jacklin, had a luckless three days in cup competition but is certain to be a thorn for America in future matches.

"The British could have won this. And in 10 years I think they'll win it here and win it at home, too," warned Trevino.

Trevino, apparently completely recovered from a five-week-old appendectomy, helped the Americans remain unbeaten on their home soil in the Ryder Cup series Saturday by trimming Jacklin 2 up in the morning and walloping Brian Huggett 7 and 6 in the afternoon.

Jacklin battled 29-year-old J. C. Snead even until he went over par the final hole and the Americans' triumph was sealed.

After Dave Stockton toppled British youngster Peter Townsend 1 up, only Jack Nicklaus' 5 and 3 win over a tiring Neil Coles prevented the Britishers' sweep of the final four matches.

Nicklaus, in carding an outstanding back nine preceding the finish, posted his fifth straight victory following an opening loss in Scotch foursomes.

Snead, the nephew of Sam Snead, had a hand in four victories without defeat. Dickinson, unbeaten in cup matches until Saturday afternoon, was 4-1 and Palmer 4-1-1.

Britons faring the best in the 32 matches were Oosterhuis and Gallacher, who each had a hand in three victories, halving six matches.

Henry Sparkles In Gorge Victory

Victoria sides chalked up victories Saturday in a pair of pre-season Pacific Coast Soccer League exhibition matches at Royal Athletic Park.

Victoria West-United nipped Westminster Blues 2-1 in the opening match and Gorge Molsons, one of two new entries in the PCSL this season, pounded Paul's Canadians 5-1 before a sparse crowd of 349 fans.

Dan Henry, recruited from the first-division Gorge side in the Victoria and District League, emerged as the outstanding player of the day as he scored four goals.

PLAYERS EJECTED

Both Gorge and Paul's finished the match with nine players as Victoria-referee Peter Bishop sent off four players.

First to head for the dressing room after a fight were Rick Lamoureux of Gorge and Eddie Paver of Paul's. Two minutes from time, Curt Clarke of Gorge and Bill Rawson, better known as a player for Vancouver Burrards in the Western Lacrosse Association, squared off and were ejected.

Bill Sinclair gave the Blues a 1-0 lead after a defensive lapse but Russ Ball equalized the situation just before half time.

WINNING TALLY

Centre-forward Tom Forrester scored the winning goal for West-United five minutes into the second half.

Link-man Peter Nolan of New Westminster had the dubious distinction of being the first player to be sent off after making gestures to the Victoria bench and stands after becoming embroiled in several scuffles.

West-United opens the home portion of its PCSL schedule on Saturday with a match against Vancouver Firefighters at Royal Athletic Park.

Inter-Italia, the other new squad, kicked off the season Sunday in Vancouver by battling to a scoreless draw with University of British Columbia Thunderbirds in Empire Stadium.

UBC scored twice in the second half but both goals were disallowed because of offside infractions.

NDP Convention

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Area Council of the New Democratic Party held its second annual convention during the weekend, devoting most of its time to discussion of priorities for NDP involvement in civic issues.

The convention decided the Vancouver NDP should work toward achieving decentralization of power from city hall through arousal of public opinion in favor of the ward system, where an alderman would be responsible to a particular area of the city.

Has 'Too Much'

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — The government of Canada must stop subsidizing production and start programs to encourage consumption, Real Caouette, National leader of the Social Credit party said Saturday.

Caouette, during a weekend meeting of the party, said Canada's problem is not just a question of French or English, but that of having too much of everything.

Five Killed

At least five persons were killed in accidents on the Prairies during the weekend, four in traffic mishaps.

In Manitoba, Harvey Edward Halwas, 22, of Thompson was killed Saturday in a hunting accident at Soab Creek, 350 miles north of Winnipeg.

In Alberta, John Lang, 48, of Edmonton was killed when the car in which he was riding crashed into a concrete abutment on an Edmonton street.

Gertrude Frank, 29, of Calgary was killed Sunday in a two-car collision at a Calgary intersection.

In Saskatchewan, a four-year-old girl was killed Sunday night when she was struck by a car while attempting to cross a Saskatoon street. Her name was not released.

Found Safe

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Tim Adams, 8, of Calgary, was found safe Sunday night after being lost in the Sundance Canyon area of Banff National Park for 5½ hours.

Tim wandered away from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Adams, about 3 p.m. during a rain and snow storm in the resort area 80 miles west of Calgary.

The Adams notified park superintendent Steve Kun, who organized a search party of park wardens and RCMP officers.

Warden Randy Chisholm, on horseback, and equipped with a two-way radio, found Tim about 8:30 p.m. Chisholm said the boy had a sore leg and was hungry and cold, but otherwise in good condition.

Tim was found six miles away from where he had become separated from his parents.

BEER-DRINKERS lift their steins Sunday in the world's biggest beer bash — the Munich Oktoberfest. The annual festival, which commemorates the 1810 marriage of King Ludwig I of Bavaria, opened Saturday and is expected to draw 16 million visitors during its 16-day run. (AP Wirephoto)

'Soledad' Jackson Wins Book Award

NEW YORK(AP) — The Black Academy of Arts and letters presented Georgia Jackson Sunday with an award for non-fiction won by her late son, George, who was killed at San Quentin Prison last month.

Chuck Stone, who presented the award to Mrs. Jackson, said the academy's awards committee had chosen Jackson's book, Soledad Brother, for the award before he was shot down in an alleged attempt to escape from San Quentin.

"I have mixed feelings about it," she said. "These things always come too late.

"George always wanted to be a writer," she added.

B.C. News Briefs

Not Missing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bill Stus, 35, of Vancouver and his wife Margaret were relaxing at home Sunday while RCMP were organizing a search for them in the Bridge River-Lillooet area.

A friend reported them missing after they were late in returning from a hunting trip.

Man Rescued

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver man was rescued after fire destroyed his 31-foot pleasure craft off the mouth of the Fraser River. The man, whose name was not released, took to a dinghy and was picked up by a search and resuce hovercraft as his vessel burned to the waterline and sank.

Eight Briefs

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Eight briefs on a range of subjects were presented to New Democratic Party leader Dave Barrett and four fellow MLAs Saturday for a party caucus meeting.

One of the members at the session, James Lorimer of Burnaby-Willingdon, was critical of Ald. Ernie Broom of Vancouver, president-elect of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, for comments made at the close of the UBCM convention in Victoria.

Lorimer said he could not understand how Broome could charge the opposition parties with ignoring the UBCM convention, adding he was present at the convention opening and listened to at least two days of debate.

Arson Suspected

SECHELT (CP) — Arson is suspected in a fire Saturday that destroyed a third of the old Sechelt wharf. RCMP said the fire started early Saturday, was extinguished, and flared up again. Residents of Sechelt have called the wharf hazardous and said it should be repaired or town down.

Bangla Desh Group Going To the UN

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The self-proclaimed government of Bangla Desh—East Pakistan, where the Pakistan army moved to crush separatist aspirations earlier this year—is preparing to send a delegation to the United Nations General Assembly.

Bangla Desh (Bengali Nation) representatives in India say that guerrilla operations against the Pakistan army are gathering momentum as the guerrilla leadership recoups after the chaos of the weeks which followed the military crackdown of March 25.

It was announced in New Delhi that a team of seven or eight will go to the United Nations to expose the "political treachery and genocide" of Pakistan.

But whether the delegation will be allowed to take part in any debates is another question. Undoubtedly one of the major aims of Bangla Desh representatives is to prevent the issue disappearing entirely from the spotlight of world public opinion.

INDIA SHARES GOAL

That goal is shared by India as it seeks help in coping with the eight million refugees who have come pouring over the border from the Eastern wing of Pakistan since March.

The military action came a few months after Sheik Mujibur Rahman and his Awami League won an overwhelming majority of the East Pakistani seats in the Pakistan National Assembly last December.

He demanded virtual autonomy for East Pakistan. The military action followed a breakdown in talks to try to resolve the dispute.

His supporters then declared East Pakistan to be an independent state called Bangla Desh and named Sheik Mujib as president.

Bullet Deaths Confirmed

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP) — An autopsy report that nine slain hostages at Attica state prison died of gunshot wounds has been confirmed by one of two pathologists who were asked by the state to re-examine the bodies.

Dr. Henry Siegel, Westchester County medical examiner, said his finds had confirmed the report by Dr. John Edland, medical examiner for Monroe County. Edland's findings conflicted with earlier official statements that rebellious prisoners at the maximum-security facility slit the throats of some of the hostages as a police assault began last Monday.

Dr. Siegel said any further information on his findings would have to come from the state's Task Force on Organized Crime, which asked him to undertake the re-examination.

But task force spokesman Edward Moran again refused Sunday to give specific answers to questions about the violence in the prison.

"The name of the game is to conduct our inquiry, our investigation, in secret," Moran said. "The name of the game is to secure an indictment and successful prosecution. I will say nothing more than that."

Lawyers for some of the prisoners refused to match Moran's reticence, however. Several of them said prisoners were beaten after police put down the uprising.

Daniel Alterman and Joshua Roth of the National Lawyers' Guild told reporters that some prisoners were stripped and forced to crawl on hands and knees across a yard under threat of beatings after the rebellion was quelled. Several guards then beat the prisoners as they were led back into their cells, they said.

The comments from Moran and the lawyers came in separate news conferences Sunday at the gates of the prison.

In Attica, church pastors pleaded for understanding, and outsiders were criticized.

"We know tragedy, we have tasted death and grief so intense and terrifying that it is part of our history now," Rev. Charles F. Williman said in his sermon at St. Paul's United Church of Christ.

He told a reporter he was thinking of the press when he prayed "for those outsiders who have come here but have failed to grasp the depth of our grief."

HOW IT WAS

The Skier Left Out in the Cold

Some of the younger chaps in our city room have begun organizing a series of weekend skiing trips to the Forbidden Plateau this winter and so, cranking up my most ingratiating smile, I insinuated myself into the group and waited for the invitation to join.

It never came. I was conscious of some meaningful glances at my narrow shoulders and distended waist-line, the most un-athletic figure since Edna May Oliver, not to mention these prematurely silvering locks.

"Too bad you're over the hill," one of the meaner young reporters remarked, utterly quashing my hopes.

If an ironic smile played about my finely-chiselled lips as I turned away it was because my mind was going back to the winter of '64 — or was it '65? — when Fritz and I, tiring of Paris, indeed, somewhat broken on the rack of its relentless gaiety, packed our skis and boarded the Zurich Express for a month of running the high, white slopes of the Alps.

jack scott

It seems only yesterday that we took the precarious little alpine railway that climbs up through the steep Bernese Oberland with the peaks of Eiger, Monch and Jungfrau towering sternly over us, frigidly menacing yet with that ageless challenge to the spirit.

Our goal, of course, was the famous 18-mile run known to the Swiss as the Grandwaldheimacher but which our American skiing friends called, irreverently, but appropriately, "The Widow-Maker." Nowhere in the world, I venture to say, is there such a test of the skier's skill, stamina and courage.

I recall the trembling ache in my legs on that late afternoon when, having spent the better part of the day climbing, we reached at last on the Grandwaldheimacher's summit, slipped the skins from our skis and stood there looking down the terrifying drop into the valley below.

It was bitterly cold and very crisp underfoot, but a fresh fall of powder snow had dusted this sheath of ice and when, at that moment, the sun broke through over the Jungfrau I knew that conditions would be a skier's dream.

"It will be good," Fritz said in his quiet way. Then, with a wild yodel and a shout of "Ski Heil!" he plummeted away.

I stood for a moment watching him as he brazenly took the first drop straight-out, his figure lost by a plume of snow spiralling stiffly out behind him, his tracks like clean scalpel incisions in that unspoiled expanse.

Then, with a grunt, I shoved off, crouching low, getting the old familiar feeling of coiled springs in the knees, and flew down into the void. From somewhere, as if from the bottom of a great barrel, I could hear the echo of Fritz's yodel still reverberating from the surrounding mountains.

For perhaps a mile I schussed the brittle drop like an arrow, all too aware that my speed was perilously close to the point of no return, then as the Grundwaldheimacher fell away even more steeply into the cut known as Bareghorfendorffer ("The Killer") I bent into a series of giant Christianas.

Disaster beckoned at every turn and I could see that Fritz, a bright blossom of sun-pinked snow beneath me, had gone into a series of Gelandesprungs to avoid the crevasses that, only two years earlier had taken the life of the great Hans Fribourg.

When I reached the first I elected to leap it and, again, the second and the third, until I came abreast of Fritz and passed him like a bullet, my poles held clear like an angel's wings.

I could see his mouth drop and I shattered the silence with a yodel, swung into a Telemark that sent a wave of snow dust 40 feet into the frosty air and brought me to the very brink of the Devil's Drop.

Fritz came to a stop beside me, laughing in admiration at my foolhardiness and, wordlessly, we stared down into the final, staggering slope, a drop of almost 70 degrees.

"We will schuss it," he said simply.

"They say it cannot be done," I pointed out, but I knew that we would.

Afterwards those at the inn in the valley below, the old and gabled Schnarffhostelerie who had watched our descent through telescopes, said that there had never been a sight like it. "It was like watching two meteors come to earth," one of them marvelled.

I, myself, could never describe that sensation. I was aware only of the high singing, whispering sound of my skiis, the burn of the wind in my face, the strange feeling of moving slowly with the Jungfrau, the Eiger and Monch seeming to rotate about me (although, in fact, my speed was close to 80 kilometers to the hour) and, above all, the complete exhilaration of being in perfect command.

So we went, downward, downward, running abreast of each other in a world of white, wedded at last to Grundwaldheimacher.

Oh, I could have told them about that unforgettable day and perhaps then they might have asked me along to show them a few of the fundamentals on the baby slopes of the Plateau. But how could such twits conceive of skiing that tests the very soul of a man? And, besides, would they believe me?

Ask the Times

Q: Are Japan and West and East Germany members of the United Nations? If not, are they eligible now and what is preventing them from joining? What about Italy and Austria, the other Axis countries in the Second World War? Are they members too?

A: Owing to the division of Germany, neither East Germany nor West Germany are members. Japan was admitted in 1956. However, Italy joined the United Nations one year earlier and Austria became a member in 1945.

Q: I understand that Victoria has a gourmet club. Could you tell me who is eligible to join, how much the membership fees are, and whom to contact?—B.P.

A: The membership of the Gourmet Club, which was started about five years ago, is restricted to 20, all men, although there are two current vacancies. The fees are $150 a year. These cover the costs of five meals in various restaurants, four of which are stag and the other, attended by women guests. Club president is W. W. Sinclair, 3300 Exeter.

Public to View 'Exciting' New Downtown Plan

The beginnings of a $10,000 plan for Victoria's downtown area will be on public display within the next week, city manager Bill Hooson said today.

The plan has been in preparation for about six months under direction of a hired consultant, architect Harold Spence-Sales.

Work completed so far must first go before members of council who will decide how and when to make it public, Hooson said.

But he added "I'm confident we will get complete disclosure of this thing at an early date."

Various city hall officials have said the plan could provide a breakthrough in the city's downtown planning, saying earlier briefings have revealed some exciting new concepts.

However, no one will discuss details.

Hooson said the plan is not the normal printed and bound document one might expect. So far it consists of "a lot of visual material" describing trends of past and present development with some emphasis on "shortcomings" of the downtown core.

The next phase may depend on council's whishes. It would then map out the most desirable development possible in the future.

Hooson hopes to get council to agree to rent a public hall where the material can be displayed. He said the city might hire some part-time university students to conduct the display.

Spence-Sales is a former architecture professor at McGill University, Montreal, and has planned urban developments in many Canadian cities.

Delay by Union Blamed As Kuster Loses Fight

The majority of a three-man arbitration board, in a binding decision, has in effect upheld Kuster's dismissal by by the Saanich fire department on June 30, 1970, municipal personnel officer William Locker said today.

The majority of the arbitration board found that the Saanich Firefighters Union, Local 967, was guilty of unreasonable delay in proceeding with the arbitration, to the point where the employer was prejudiced, and that it was now not open to the union to pursue the matter.

Decisions of arbitration boards in grievances of this kind are final and binding, except that appeals may be made on points of law. There has been no indication to date the union will make an appeal to attempt to have the dismissal heard on its merits as opposed to the board's decision which was based on a time delay of almost a year.

The majority view of the arbitration board was given by chairman Ian Horne and Saanich representative Ken Murphy. Union representative Charles Maclean did not concur and was expected to submit a minority report.

Locker said the board felt there was an "undue delay" by the union in bringing the dismissal to arbitration. "the majority of the board felt the union erred," he said.

He said Saanich's case was mainly the delay factor — that it was almost a year before the union brought it to the municipality's attention, and this would mean almost a year's back pay if Kuster was reinstated.

KUSTER
. . . in cold

Bill Holmes, president of the firefighters local, said only that "it is still not over yet." He declined further comment.

Kuster, hired in January, 1966, and dismissed June 30, 1970, picketed the main firehall last March and April saying he was picketing the union because it hadn't pressed the issue. Later the union took up the issue and it went to arbitration.

He said he was fired because he started to wear his hair a little longer and grow a moustache.

The Saanich fire department said he was dismissed because his eyes were not up to the required standard.

The department said Kuster was told when hired his eyesight didn't meet standards but he would be accepted if he wore contact lenses. This was done until about 10 months before he was dismissed when he switched to glasses, an official said.

Kuster himself could not be located for comment today.

Aloha to Hawaii For Saanich Man In Cheque Case

An Esquimalt man who turned himself in to Honolulu police Friday pleaded guilty here today to cashing a worthless $4,450 cheque in Saanich last July.

A Saanich policeman testified that Raymond F. Kraft, 32, of 1528 Esquimalt, went to the Honolulu police department then flew back to Vancouver where he was arrested at the airport.

Judge William Ostler remanded Kraft to Sept. 29 for presentence report and sentence. He pleaded guilty to uttering.

The officer said the accused went to the Bank of Montreal, University of Victoria branch, July 27 and presented the cheque of $4,450.80 drawn on a downtown bank.

Kraft had a letter, the policeman said, purportedly signed by another person saying the money was for 50 per cent of the Aquarian Age publishing company.

The officer said the money was used by Kraft to pay for a bank loan, small bills and debts to the Saanich welfare department.

He was left with about $500, court was told.

Kraft told police he had gone to Salt Lake City, Utah, then returned to Victoria before going to Honolulu since July. The policeman said Kraft told officers "things had built up" and he had committed the offence in despair.

Publishers Hold Meetings In Secret

Leading Canadian daily newspaper publishers are in Victoria for five days of business meetings this week — all closed to the press.

The occasion is a meeting of executives of the co-operative news-gathering agency, Canadian Press, being held in conjunction with a conference of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers' Association.

A CDNPA spokesman said the sessions "are strictly concerned with business matters; these are never open to the press."

Although some had been expected, there were no representatives on hand from Canada's fourth-largest daily, the Toronto Telegram. Publisher John Bassett announced Saturday the Telegram was going out of business.

The sessions began with a CDNPA executive meeting Sunday night, followed by Canadian Press meetings today, Tuesday and Wednesday. Final meeting will be that of the CDNPA board Thursday morning.

STUDENT SHINERS RAISE $8,760

Shinerama '71 made it over the top Saturday.

Co-ordinator Greg Fraser said the campaign goal of $8,500 to aid research of cystic fibrosis was achieved as shoe-shiners from the University of Victoria and student nurses from two hospitals raised $8,760.

About 450 shiners took part, Fraser said, about 50 more than last year. The money raised was far above the $7,000 raised last year.

The Victoria shiners outshone their Vancouver counterparts, Fraser said. The Vancouver effort raised more than $12,000 but less shiners took part and $3,000 was raised by advance donations.

Pound Keepers Robert Holmes, Albert Oost with friend

Common Sense, Understanding Useful Pound-Keepers' Tools

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

"You say a cat is stuck high up in a tree, ma'am? Well, my advice is leave it there and if it's still there in a day or so give us another call."

As he put down the phone Saanich pound keeper Bob Holmes laughed: "We get calls like that all the time but there's no point going out there and climbing the tree — the cat would only go higher.

"Besides, who ever heard of a cat dying up a tree?"

It's this sort of basic common sense and understanding of animal behavior that a pound keeper needs. Not to mention tact, discretion, a sense of humor and the ability to know when to apply the law rigidly and when to bend it a little.

One Example

A youngster is taking a normally well-behaved German shepherd for a walk but the dog becomes boisterous when it meets another friendly neighborhood mutt, takes off and ends up fouling someone's lovely green lawn.

Technically, the owner is at fault because a section of the bylaw clearly states no one shall allow a dog to be on a highway or public place "unless the same is accompanied by and is under the effective control of a competent person in charge thereof, or is led or confined on a leash or chain."

Liable to Fine

So a summons could be issued, and anyone violating any provision of the bylaw is liable to a fine of between $10 and $200.

But in practice, Oost explained, he would probably warn the owner to exercise better control in future.

"We try to be as fair as possible and it's only the persistent offenders we take a firm line with," he said.

Weekdays and some weekends Oost and Holmes are out patrolling Saanich streets in their vans, mainly looking for canine strays and offenders. But they are also responsible for all itinerant creatures, from horses which break out of paddocks to pet skunks which acquire a wanderlust.

Dogs obviously on the loose or roaming, with no sign of the owner in the vicinity, are taken to the pound which is operated on a contract basis for Saanich by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, at its Napier Lane premises.

If the dog has a licence tag the pound keeper will make every effort to get in touch with the person, Oost said. "If I can't get through during the day I often phone from my home in the evening so that they can come and claim their animals as soon as possible."

Fee Scale

When he or she does come along to pick up the dog, there's a $5 impoundment fee plus $2 a day for board. Also, of course, the licence has to be paid if it hasn't been already.

The fee scale ascends by $5 steps for subsequent impoundments up to the fourth ($20) but then the fifth capture carries a $30 fee and the sixth soars to a hefty $60.

Animals unclaimed after four days are turned over to the SPCA for disposal as the society decides. But Holmes estimates that of the 50 to 60 dogs which Saanich impounds every month the majority — "I'd say at least 80 per cent" — are claimed by their owners.

"As a rule people in this area are pretty good to their dogs," he said. "There are exceptions, of course — families where the husband and wife are out to work all day and the dog is left to fend for itself on the street.

"A lot of these are the sort of people who should never keep a dog in the first place, and when we take it into the pound they look on it as a convenient way out and do nothing about claiming."

One big problem, both pound keepers admit, is the owner who keeps an unspayed bitch which in turn attracts a lot of keen and often quarrelsome boy friends. That's when even the usually placid, home-bound mutt takes to wandering.

Owners Warned

"In such cases we try to warn dog owners in the neighborhood so they can keep a closer watch on their dogs," Oost said. "But all the same, if I see six or seven dogs running about the area where there's a female I can't ignore that."

To alleviate the problem, Saanich waives the current year's licence fee — $15 for an unspayed female — if the owner can produce a vet's certificate to show the operation has been carried out.

The pound keeper's job is nothing if not varied. Once, Oost recalled, he had to go to a school playground where a myopic white snow owl was reeling around in a bit of a daze, causing quite a furore. He caught the bird, took it up to Mount Douglas and released it in the trees.

Then there was the time a couple of years ago when a pig escaped from the truck which was taking it from Wilkinson Road jail to the slaughter house.

Panicky Porker

The incident occurred at the corner of Wilkinson and Burnside. Holmes, who went to help chase the panicky porker, still laughs at the memory.

"A lady went and got a fish-net and a couple of guys held this while a guard from the jail dove on it full-length, just like he was making a football tackle. The pig was squealing . . . it was the funniest thing you ever saw."

Education Needs Probe Planned

A provincial commission will tour B.C. this fall to investigate public needs in education and to determine the role of parent-teacher groups.

The commission is sponsored by the Provincial Parent-Teacher Federation and has been organized by Dr. Herman Wallin, an educational consultant on the faculty of UBC. It will be funded by the provincial government, the B.C. Teachers Federation and the Educational Research Institute of B.C.

Bill Stavdal, Community Information Officer for the Greater Victoria School Board, has been asked by the commission to serve as secretary. Approval is needed from the board at its meeting tonight.

Stavdal said today the commission will seek new forms of parent involvement in education. "It will basically be a re-structuring of the PTA movement," he said.

Membership in parent-teacher groups across the province has fallen dramatically, he said and the provincial body wants to find out why this has appened and in what ways parents want to become involved with the educational process.

"Parents have indicated they care most about things like special education, drug education and the philosophy of education," he said. "We want to get the parents involved at the school level, the school district level and the provincial level."

Chin often troubled area on face

Complexion brush recleanses chin

Your Complexion Needs Time, Care

By REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

According to dermatologists, the chin is frequently the most troubled area of the face. It often collects oil, is scratchy dry, or eruption prone.

Whether it's square, pointed, rounded dimpled or cleft, the chin is there for all to see. It's not easy to camouflage. Experts insist most girls are good about cleansing. However, the "drip pan" of the face — where all suds and lotions collect, is given only a quick swipe and wipe by some.

The chin usually stands up to more vigorous cleansing than the delicate area around the eyes. Check your dermatologist about the following tips. Wash face thoroughly. Then, use a baby-soft complexion brush to recleanse your chin. Hold the brush firmly by the handle, and move it in a rotary fashion to massage-wash. Rinse thoroughly.

Where Is Helen Walker? . . . Her Message Has Been Found

elizabeth forbes

Friend of mine has sent me a clipping from a Seattle newspaper that contains a story so intriguing I'm going to pass it on to you.

On one condition however. That, after reading it and if you happen to live in a house built in the early days of this century, you promise not to go out and start breaking into the veranda posts in search of hidden messages.

It seems that back in 1912 in West Seattle, a modest bungalow was nearing completion. Owners were Mr. and Mrs. Edgar G. Walker. Their family included a girl, named Helen, and two boys.

The carpenter in charge of the work (by the name of Keyes) must have been an imaginative sort of fellow, He told the 16-year-old Helen that people sometimes wrote messages to place in the porch post of a new home.

Wrote Letter

Helen, no doubt at the romantic age, took Keyes up on that suggestion. She wrote a letter, dated May 21, 1912, and with the help of the carpenter placed it in the hollow centre of a porch post.

In July this year, the present owner of the bungalow, Gordon Rich, a carpenter, was doing some remodelling. He took down the corner post on the veranda, discovered it was hollow and, to his amazement, found Helen's message, hanging on a stout nail.

The letter, still easily read, was addressed "to whoever finds this, please open and read."

In it, Helen explained about Mr. Keyes and his suggestion and here intention to take it up "just for ducks."

She said her father was away working in Vancouver, B.C. That her chum's name was Mildred Robe and that she lived in Granite Falls.

That she was a sophomore attending West Seattle High School and taking English, French, physiography, penmanship and commercual arithmetic. And that her birthday was October 2.

Trace Family

When the letter was discovered and turned over to the Seattle newspaper, one of its reporters tried to trace the whereabouts of the Walker family.

He got no further than the 1916 directory. After that, the family was not listed.

The story was then publicized, in the hope, I imagine, of tracing the author of the letter.

If she is still alive, Helen is now in her 75th year.

Where is she? What would be her reactions today? There are all kinds of conjectures in this very personal glimpse into the past.

The fact that her father once worked in Vancouver even gives the story a link with British Columbia's past.

There is even the remote possibility that someone right here in Victoria may have known the family.

There's only a short time left (zero hour is September 30) for those who are not property owners to reaffirm their right to vote in forthcoming municipal elections.

These include tenant and resident electors, who so often do not realize they can vote on other than money matters.

Must Reaffirm

Even if their names were on last year's voters list, they must reaffirm their intention to vote this year.

Tenant electors are men or women who have been tenants in occupation of premises continuously for six months prior to registering to vote. Resident electors are those of voting age who have lived continuously for not less than six months within the city or municipality prior to registering.

These categories include renters of homes or apartments, wives or husbands of property owners, young people voting for the first time, and anyone living in boarding residence who meets the qualifications.

Main places to register are at City Hall or any of the municipal offices.

In addition, members of the Association of Women Electors of Greater Victoria will man registration tables in Eaton's, close to the Douglas Street entrance, all this week for tenant and resident voters in Victoria City.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday they will be in Woolco, Shelbourne Shop Easy and Royal Oak Econo-Mart, to register Saanich voters.

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: When we have company for dinner, my father asks them in front of me how would they like to hear me play the piano. What can they say? So I have to play the piano for them. I didn't mind it so much when was younger because it was cute, but I am 15 years old now, and it's embarrassing.

I have told my dad I would rather not play for company any more, but he asks me anyway. I know he's proud of me, but it is evident to everyone in my family (except him) the guests are bored and they could care less how I play the piano.

What should I do?—Daddy's Little Pianist.

DEAR PIANIST: Appeal to your father again, and enlist the support of your family. PS: Your company is lucky. Ours had to listen to my twin sister and me play violin duets until we were 18 years old.

DEAR ABBY: My problem sounds something like a letter out of your column, but here it is: I have a very good friend (call him "Bill") whom I've known all my life. We are more like brothers than friends. Bill married a girl I'll call Sue six years ago. She's a terrific girl and we three get along just fine.

Well, Bill and Sue didn't want any children for the first three years of their marriage, but for the last three years they've been trying without success. They saw several doctors who agreed that Sue was okay, but the trouble was Bill's.

Last week, when I was at Bill and Sue's for dinner, they knocked me cold with the suggestion that I father Sue's child! Bill said he would prefer bringing up the child of his wife and best friend than adopting one of unknown origin. He said it was not unlike artificial insemination, only the test tube phase was eliminated and he'd know who the father was.

Abby, I've always had a special thing for Sue, but only in my dreams, and I couldn't bring myself to go through with such a scheme, and I told them so. They thought I was foolish. What do you think?—Middleman.

DEAR MIDDLE: I think you're right, and they are foolish.

DEAR ABBY: Our son was playing ball and accidentally broke a huge picture window in our neighbor's home. I'll call these neighbors the Smiths.

The Smiths immediately taped the window and put boards over it so nobody would get cut. That evening my husband went over there and expressed his regrets and gave the Smiths the money to get the window replaced. The Smiths are very well off and could have afforded to replace the window themselves, but we felt responsible.

Well, it has been over three months and that window is still taped and boarded, and it is a terrible eyesore to this lovely neighborhood. Since the Smiths accepted the money from my husband, aren't they obligated to fix the window? Have you any suggestions on how we can get them to do it? —Mad in L.A.

DEAR MAD: Of course they should repair the broken window at once. Remind them! Your mistake was giving them the money. You should have made arrangements to replace the window at once, and paid for it.

PAULINE GRAVES

When you plan your child's room let yourself go. Indulge in bright colors and thematic decor, ideas you probably would not consider for other areas. After all, you probably will keep the scheme for only a few years, until the child grows out of this particular age group.

Such a gay, thematic room is pictured here designed by Darrell Howe. Obviously for a boy, the room tends toward the motor, evidenced by the strong checked panel, reminiscent of the checkered flag symbolic of auto racing.

Although inlaid wood forms the squares and stripes, the same pattern could be depicted with paint. Going a step further, why not play smooth and heavily textured fabrics against each other, or go into other materials, such as vinyls or laminated plastics. The possibilities are enormous, You are limited only by our imagination.

You will find other good ideas here. For instance, there is a 22-inch by 22-inch opening into the next room, which is identical. This pass-through opens onto 20-inch-deep ledges in each room, and they function as desk-tables. The boys can run their toy cars through the pass-through, hand books and papers back and forth, and generally maintain communication, while keeping their privacy.

A floor-to-ceiling mirror covers the balance of the wall. The desk goes across the face of it, extending the desk surface to 80 inches, and functioning as a safety device.

Lisa May Thody, 8 months, and mother Mrs. Sandra Thody admire dahlia

Dahlias Steal The Show

Some members dressed in costumes of the 1890s in honor of the B.C. Centennial. The need for a horticultural society here was first suggested in 1872. The group held its first show in August of 1902, in the Douglas Summer Gardens.

Almost every kind of fall flower, from tiny pom pom dahlias to giant chrysanthemums, were on display. Among the 753 exhibits was a yellow prize-winning rose called Grandmere Jenny, entred by Percy Raven, chairman of the Roses group of the V.H.S.

Raven has been growing roses here since 1920. He pointed out that Grandmere Jenny is the ancestress of the international award winning Peace Rose.

A special section in the hall was set aside for children's flower arrangements. These exhibits may have lacked the perfection of the adult entries, but they made up for it in imagination.

The prize winning childrens' entry, called Goldrush, featured gold and bronze crysanthemums in a brown stone whiskey jug.

He Wants More Than Shot Glass To Measure His Life in Future

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI) — Kenneth A. is a middle-aged alcoholic seeking a life measured by more than a shot glass.

Kenneth, an Albuquerque resident with a private pilot's licence and a variety of well-paying job skills, is among the more than 1,800 alcoholics who have entered a new kind of treatment in the past year.

"Kenneth has come to us for help seven times in the past year. He comes in scratched up more times than not. Once he suffered head injuries in an airplane crash. The other times may have been fights or accidents," said Larry Homan, program chief of the nation's only alcoholism program created to treat medical, mental and social problems of chronic drinkers.

"Kenneth's record shows that at least twice we've been able to motivate him and he's been sober for at least three of the past 12 months," Homan said. "It's not a lasting thing with him yet, but it may be someday."

Many Enter

Many patients enter the rehabilitation and detoxification centre of Albuquerque's alcoholism treatment program voluntarily. Some are too drunk to walk when they decide to take the cure and ask to be carried in by friends or relatives. Others are found asleep in city bars and streets by police and choose the clinic instead of the drunk tank.

They know the doors of the centre are unlocked and they can leave whenever they wish. Most stay to be dried-out and helped toward recovery.

"Our purpose is to develop and maintain a continuous relationship with the patients and to bring their drinking under control," program director Fred Kotzen said.

"This is contrary to Alcoholics Anonymous and other programs that preach 'no more drinks, ever.' Here, we are satisfied if the patient doesn't drink as much as before and if he's able to stay out of trouble with the police," Kotzen said.

The program, the only alcoholism treatment unit in the United States to unite in one facility a team of physicians, psychologists and social workers, has a 30 per cent rate of "satisfied progress," chief social worker Mario Narro said.

Drinking Reduced

"We have had more than 1,800 different patients during the past 16 months," Narro said. "Thirty per cent of those have progressed satisfactorily. They're not cured but their drinking has been significantly reduced."

"Alcoholism is like cancer. It is not considered cured until five years from the last drink," he said. "Our samples show 19 per cent of our patients are no longer drinking. We have an additional 18 per cent on an anti-alcoholism drug that we know are not drinking. We feel about 45 per cent of the patients are in the process of recovering."

The program was funded through a Department of Vocational Rehabilitiation grant and the Model Cities program. The treatment centre opened its doors April 1, 1970, in a former four-storey brick hospital. A few hours later, its first patient was admitted.

No Prisoner

"We emphasize during our first session with the patient that he is not a prisoner," Kotzen said. "We let them know the program is voluntary but we attempt to keep them from walking out without medical advice."

Kotzen's staff includes 142 full-time employees. Some never finished high school and were trained in the clinic. Physicians take turns staying at the centre through the night.

Records at the centre show the average age of patients is 44 years for men and 43 for women. More than 11 per cent, however, are under 21 years of age, the legal drinking age in New Mexico.

"Almost 11 times as many men as women come here, not because women drink less but because the woman in America is protected," Kotzen said. "The police will send a woman home instead of arresting her. Women drinkers also are picked up by men in bars and not left to sleep in the streets."

To ease the compulsion for liquor the clinic offers the drug antabuse. The drug interferes with the normal degradation of alcohol in the body. Antabuse patients become violently ill if they drink within up to two weeks after a dosage.

"Taking antabuse is an indication of motivation by a patient to change his condition," Homan said. "An alcoholic on antabuse has to plan ahead to drink since it may take up to 14 days to get it out of the system. It's not a miracle drug nor a cure for alcoholism but it does eliminate impulsive drinking."

2 Rescued in Strait

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two men were in good condition today after spending half an hour in the waters of Georgia Strait when their 16-foot dinghy capsized.

Twenty-year-old John Franklin and Brian Conroy, both of Vancouver, were spilled into the water Sunday night. They were rescued by a British Columbia Ferry when a crew member spotted the flashlight with which they were signalling.

The two were taken to Nanaimo.

Victoria Youths Open Boutique

DUNCAN — Take Bill Bailey's talent in making leather clothing, add Richard Bissett's knowledge of tooling leather and other handicrafts, and you have the main ingredients of the Fawcett store, three miles south of Duncan.

Bailey and Bissett, both 20 and from Victoria, opened the shop a little more than two months ago.

They said they wanted a change from the Victoria scene and decided to introduce the first boutique of this kind in Duncan.

"There is too much competition in this field in Victoria," Bissett said. Specialties of the store are the leatherwork done by the two men; posters, home-made toys, beadwork, waterbeds and other general handicraft items.

Although response from the public has been good Bissett and Bailey said they will have to get a job to support themselves.

CLASSES TO START OCT. 1

New Workshop to Aid Artistic

DUNCAN — The aim of the newly opened Studio Workshop here is to cater to anyone interested in developing their artistic talents.

Bob and Grace Cooke said they opened their shop with the desire to help people turn their "gee, I wish I could's into I wills."

"And it is those people we are aiming at — The ones who are not afraid to try and develop their talents," explained Cooke.

The school will offer music instruction in piano, theory, vocal and chorus, all taught by Mrs. Cooke. On the visual side there will be instruction from Cooke in the basic drawings, oils, water color, velvets and perspective.

One of the main points of the school will be its flexibility, the couple stressed. Located on the corner of Trunk and Allenby Roads, the school will be opened throughout the day for people to work individually. Scheduled classes will begin Oct. 1.

"Eventually we would like to see the studio become the Island centre for the performing and graphic arts," Cooke said. He explained that the program for the second year would include instruction in dancing, drama and other instruments.

Cooke has previously taught at art centres in Montreal, Victoria, and Calgary, while his wife has been teaching privately in the district as well as the past five years at Queen Margaret's School, Duncan.

Greenpeace Message Radioed by Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — The Greenpeace mission to protest a proposed U.S. nuclear test off Alaska doesn't have Prime Minister Trudeau's endorsement, but obviously has his sympathy.

Mr. Trudeau's office released the text of a radio message Monday that it had tried to relay to the 12 persons aboard the halibut boat on Saturday.

The mission, which includes scientists and ecologists, was reported headed for the Gulf of Alaska Sunday, towards Amchitka Island where the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission plans to detonate a five-megaton nuclear device during October.

Mr. Trudeau's message, which the ship couldn't pick up Saturday because of bad weather conditions, said "there can be no mistake as to the depth of Canadian public concern" over the proposed test.

The Canadian government had informed the U.S. government that it could not agree with the proposed testing and believed that "all such tests should be halted."

The message said the proposed underground test in the Aleutian Islands had been the subject of numerous consultations between the Canadian and U.S. governments.

"I have reasons to believe that the U.S. administration is fully aware of our views."

Ben Metcalfe, spokesman for the crew of the mission aboard the Canadian halibut boat Phyllis Cormack, said Sunday he wanted to know if Mr. Trudeau's message had constituted recognition of the purpose of the mission.

The message made no mention of direct support for the mission itself or Mr. Trudeau's thughts on its advisability.

It acknowledged that his office had informed him that the mission had tried to reach him last week, and outlined the government's opposition to the test.

The Buyer Protection Card.

With it you can drive your 1972 American Motors car for 1 year or 12,000 miles, and if anything goes wrong and it's our fault, we'll fix it free.

Buying a new car hasn't always been the great experience it's supposed to be. Sometimes it was downright discouraging.

Like, if the guys at the factory forgot to tighten something and the dealer overlooked it. Clunk, you got an old oversight with your new car.

And to add insult to oversight, when you wanted it fixed sometimes you had to pay for it. And perhaps you paid for a rental car too, while yours was tied up for service.

Now then. We at American Motors, have determined not to let that sort of thing happen. And not just in the early weeks of ownership but for a full 52 weeks or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first.

So we've put together a programme called the Buyer Protection Plan. It has been designed to give you, the buyer, protection from the kind of trouble that sometimes comes with a new car.

Here's how it came about.

First we took a long hard look at our factory where the cars are put together. We asked car owners for their criticisms. We got them. We got busy on them.

We set up a Management Quality Reporting Committee. A complicated title meaning shape up or ship out.

We discussed with our dealers the kind of things that they might do to back up our efforts. Like giving every car a thorough road test.

We looked at our car warranty and decided that it could be made a lot simpler and a lot more meaningful.

We questioned the need for buyers of our product to pay for rental cars when our product needed service.

We also realized the need for better communication between our factory, our people in the field, our dealers, and most of all the people who buy and drive our products.

And the result of all this mind-bending and soul-searching is detailed for you on the pages that follow.

How you'll get the quality we promise you.

1. Us. Our responsibility at the factory was crystal clear. Improve the quality of our cars.

Some of the areas that we went to work on included engines, electrical systems, heater and air conditioning units, seats, sound deadening, front end suspension and brake systems.

In many cases we improved components. In all cases we improved attitudes about installing those components.

Today, none of us takes quality control for granted. The guy who installs something on the line knows we're all putting our reputation on the line.

Next on the list was a checking system, to make doubly sure that everything got tightened up before the car was shipped out.

And the result is a high quality car.

2. Our Dealers. Assuming that all goes well at the factory and your car is delivered in top condition to the dealer... is something that we can't afford to assume.

So we've put together an in-depth dealer Pre-delivery Service Procedure. We pay the dealer to take every car we send him for a quality assurance check-ride. If he finds a problem. He fixes it. He puts every car through mandatory inspections, signs a certificate and places it on the sun visor. How will you know that the car's been through its Pre-delivery Service Procedure? You've got the dealer's signed certification.

3. How you are protected in writing. Our 1972 12 month or 12,000 mile Guarantee covers the entire car except for tires (guaranteed by tire manufacturer) and emission control services. All we require is that the car be properly maintained and cared for under normal use and service.

Then if anything goes wrong and it's our fault, we'll fix it free. Like engine or automatic transmission tune up. Brake and clutch adjustments. Wheel alignment and balancing. Mechanical or body adjustments. Spark plugs. Ignition points. Condensers. Clutch and brake linings. Automatic transmission bands and clutch plates. Right down to little things like light bulbs, wiper blades, belts and hoses.

We build a quality car. We are confident in its quality.

That's why we can offer you such a simple, direct and comprehensive guarantee.

4. If same-day service cannot be completed, a free "Loaner Car" will be provided.

When your 1972 American Motors car comes in for guaranteed repair work and service the necessary work will be done quickly and done well.

In addition, if a participating dealer

The 1972 Hornet Protected by American Motors Buyer Protection Plan

Hornet is the definitive compact car. Here's what we mean: Definition 1. Compact size. 108 inch wheelbase. Room for 5 adults in comfort. Definition 2. Compact economy. A standard 232 cu. in. 6 cylinder engine that gives good mileage without sacrificing highway power. Definition 3. Compact styling. Hornet is cleanly, intelligently styled. No surplus ruffles. No gimmickry. Definition 4. Compact handling. In turns, in parking lots, in heavy traffic Hornet responds quickly, manoeuvres easily. Definition 5. Compact price.

The 1972 Gremlin

Protected by American Motors Buyer Protection Plan

When you buy a Gremlin you're buying the most distinctively styled sub-compact. But don't let the high style fool you, the price is low. And driving a Gremlin is even more fun than looking at one.

Gremlin has the practical advantage of an economical 6 cylinder engine, which makes Gremlin practical on high speed expressways, too. And Gremlin's engine has been designed for a long, productive life under all North American driving conditions.

For 1972 Gremlin continues to give you room, durability and a low price tag. With an added feature for the adventurous . . . a V8 engine with a full synchro 4-speed transmission.

Gremlin 1972. As always, we invite you to have fun with it.

The 1972 Sportabout

Protected by American Motors Buyer Protection Plan.

To compare Sportabout to station wagons would be unfair. For one thing, you have to look really close to see where the sporty styling ends and the practical side takes over. For another thing, no one else in North America builds a wagon that's compact sized (108 inch wheelbase), compact priced. So the unique Sportabout for 1972 will remain unchallenged as the most beautiful little wagon you can buy. With one more beautiful addition. An optional interior designed by Gucci. That fact won't mean too much to male buyers but for the woman who has admired the distinctive Gucci leatherwork in Vogue magazine, owning a Gucci Sportabout will be nothing short of haute compact.

Certain items illustrated are optional.

finds it necessary to work on your car for more than one day he'll provide you with a loaner car at no cost.

Buyers of 1972 American Motors cars will have a dealer behind them and a car underneath them.

5. We'll even pay for your last resort.

Having built the finest cars we've ever built; having paid our dealers to deliver them in A1 condition; having guaranteed every nut, bolt and wire; and having helped eliminate the inconvenience of overnight servicing by providing free loaner car facilities ...we have done one more thing.

We've installed a special toll-free Consumer Hotline at our head office in Brampton, Ontario.

So if we have overlooked something you can tell us where to look.

If something was missed when the dealer put his quality check on your car, we'll get on it.

If the most straightforward protection policy in the industry doesn't make sense to you, we'll make sure you understand it.

If a participating dealer can't give you the courtesy of a free loaner car we'll find out why.

In other words, if any problem you encounter is not resolved to your satisfaction by our dealer or local American Motors office then you can call us on our Hotline. Free.

To get a person to person version of the Buyer Protection Plan we invite you to visit the American Motors Dealer nearest you and plan to drive one of his 1972 models.

1972 New Car Guarantee

When you buy a new 1972 car from an American Motors dealer, American Motors (Canada) Limited guarantees to you that, except for tires, it will pay for the repair/replacement of any part it supplies that is defective in material or workmanship.

This guarantee is good for 12 months from the date the car is first used or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first. All we require is that the car be properly maintained and cared for under normal use and service in the 50 United States or Canada and that guaranteed repairs or replacements be made by an American Motors dealer.

This guarantee is, to the extent not prohibited by law, in lieu of all other guarantees or warranties, express, implied or implied in law, of American Motors (Canada) Limited or others, including implied warranties of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose.

The 1972 Matador

Protected by American Motors Buyer Protection Plan

Matador is the most amazing car in our line. Its overall length and its low price place it with the intermediate cars. But the ease with which you enter and exit and the interior roominess both front and back are only comparable to the more expensive full size cars. Matador's engine is designed to be economical to operate and easy to maintain. Its standard 232 cu. in. 6 makes Matador surprisingly responsive. Handling is quick and sure footed. You can get Matador's unique roominess, performance and agility in your choice of sedan, wagon or hardtop.

The 1972 Ambassador

Protected by American Motors Buyer Protection Plan

Ambassador is the full sized, standard priced car that's built with the kind of craftsmanship and attention to detail that puts it firmly in a class by itself.

So perhaps it's not too surprising to learn that every new Ambassador comes with the following luxury features as standard equipment. Air conditioning. Automatic transmission. A new and smoother 3 speed automatic. A V8 engine. For reliable performance and power. Even on low lead gasolines. Power brakes. All desirable features on any large car. Check the workmanship. Check the luxury features. Experience the roominess, comfort and smooth ride. You'll buy Ambassador for all the best reasons.

The 1972 Javelin.

Protected by American Motors Buyer Protection Plan.

For 1972 Javelin sports a new and bolder grill that adds to the sculptured Italian lines. The basic roomy dimensions remain unchanged, which means you can share the excitement of Javelin with three or four friends . . . in complete comfort. And still enjoy the handling and manoeuvrability of a proven track car. Performance? What can you say about performance when Mark Donohue is grabbing headlines all across the continent with his Trans-Am Javelin.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

YOUR HEALTH Dr. Walter Alvarez

Anyone who is scientifically inclined and is able to read fairly technical English might find much to interest him in a book called "Man and Memory: Breakthroughs in the Science of the Human Mind," by D. S. Halacy Jr. The most wonderful computer in the world is our brain — a highly complicated apparatus with many of its workings not understood. As Halacy points out, we do not yet know much about the connection between the structural brain with its billions of microscopic cells, and our processes of learning and remembering and thinking and having ideas.

I have often been amazed by the fact that a man with a brain tumor can have an operation in which almost half of his brain is removed, and still he is able to go back to practising medicine or law, performing almost as well as he did before his operation. And then I will see another man who, after a "little stroke" in which a tiny artery in his brain probably got plugged up with a clot and a very small amount of brain tissue was destroyed, may be unable to think clearly and may be so mentally dulled that he can never again do a day's work at his office or store. In many a case his wife will tell me that he is so changed in his personality that he is no longer her old friend and lover.

The memory is an amazing thing: for example, I have been blessed all my life with an excellent memory, but now at times, since I have reached 80, it takes me a couple of minutes to remember the name of a dear friend or the name of a commonly used drug. But still, many a time I will have an experience such as I had the other evening: My wife was working a crossword puzzle and she said to me, "As a boy, you lived in Hawaii; what is the word for 'skill' in Hawaiian?" And instantly, I said, "akamai." And then I marvelled, because I left Hawaii in 1903 and I am sure that since then I have had no need for the word. How could it have been stored for 68 years in my brain, unused, and then how could I find it and express it as a word, all in a few seconds?

Also amazing to me is how I can remember with great vividness a fever dream I had when I was three years old. Also, when one patient, perhaps in a thousand seen at the Mayo Clinic some 30 years ago, interested me much, he made such an impression on me that I can still see him sitting in a certain room, and I can remember the essential details of the medical story that he told. Just how such memories are recorded and stored in the brain is still not understood.

My friend, Dr. Wilder Penfield, one of the greatest neurosurgeons today, found that if he touched and stimulated a certain area in the brain, the person would have a certain memory — the same memory — over and over again, similar to replaying a tape or reshowing a portion of a movie film. One day Dr. Penfield was operating on the brain of a man who complained that sometimes when his nerves were working badly, he heard a hallucination in the form of a man's voice that he came to know as "Charlie." When Dr. Penfield saw a bit of brain that looked diseased, he stimulated it electrically, and the man, under local anesthesia, said, "Hey; there's Charlie!"

Halacy tells of all the efforts that are now being made by able research neurologists to improve the memory and intelligence, especially of aging people. He tells of a drug — magnesium pemoline — that is now giving promise of someday being able to improve the failing memory of an aging person. Scientists are also trying to understand the brain better as more is learned about computers and the chemistry of the nervous system. The author tells also of astonishing experiments in which scientists have shown that some of the training that has improved the intelligence of one little animal can be passed on to another little animal simply by injecting some of the material of the brain of the first animal into the second animal.

This book will be fascinating to anyone who, like me, has often been amazed by the strange and wonderful things that the mind and the memory can do. "Man and Memory" was published by Harper and Row, 49 East 33rd St., New York, N.Y., and it costs $6.95.

Fuel Supply Wiped Out

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Communist sappers slipped into the outskirts of Phnom Penh today and wiped out two-thirds of Cambodia's civilian fuel supply, while in South Vietnam Viet Cong sappers inflicted heavy casualties in five attacks just outside of Tay Ninh City.

Officials' reports said 21 South Vietnamese troops were killed and 64 wounded in co-ordinated mortar and commando attacks on the headquarters of the South Vietnamese 43rd Task Force and two other positions ranging from two to five miles northwest of Tay Ninh and about 10 miles from the Cambodian border.

The South Vietnamese command said 52 Communist troops were killed and 25 weapons captured in a night-long battle.

It was the third time in five days that South Vietnamese forces have been dealt heavy losses in co-ordinated attacks by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces.

In Phnom Penh, about 30 sappers with rocket launchers blew up 15 large oil storage tanks, striking a heavy blow to Cambodia's struggling economy.

GO UP IN FLAMES

The tanks, containing millions of gallons of gasoline, diesel and fuel oil went up in a roar of flames. Black smoke billowed more than 100 feet into the night sky and fire lit up the northern quarter of the Cambodian capital.

Fires were still burning out of control at noon, spouting high-octane aviation gasoline and threatening to ignite new explosions.

The fires erupted when about 20 Communist sappers, who approached two tank complexes from the west by boat across marshlands, fired bazooka-type rockets into several tanks. Blazing gasoline and other fuels poured out and spread the blaze to other tanks.

The tank depots, owned by the Esso and Shell oil companies, are located on the west bank of the Tonle River. An oil company official said at this stage it was impossible to estimate the full extent of the damage.

Navy Ships Returning To Esquimalt

The Esquimalt-based HMCS Qu'Appelle and HMCS Provider are returning to port after a four-week absence, with Qu'Appelle scheduled to dock at 3 p.m. Thursday.

Because of a call at San Diego, the Provider will be delayed until next Monday, returning to the dockyard at 3 p.m.

Dependants of the ships' crews will be allowed to enter the yard at 2:45 p.m. in order to greet the ships on arrival.

While at sea, the Qu'Appelle and Provider were deployed in a surveillance exercise involving Soviet warships.

HEROIN HAUL

NEW YORK (AP) — "Obviously the work of top professionals," said the head of the U.S. narcotics bureau, describing the discovery of 200 pounds of heroin concealed in an imported Jaguar car.

Agents seized the cache, valued at $40 million, and arrested five persons on narcotics smuggling charges Sunday in what was termed the second-largest heroin seizure ever made here.

John E. Ingersoll, director of the bureau of narcotics and dangerous drugs, said the heroin was cleverly concealed in the Jaguar which arrived here last Wednesday aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth 2.

He said the heroin was packed in one-pound glassine bags that were hidden under a false floorboard, also filled an empty section of the transmission and were stuffed in hollow compartments in the doors.

"It appeared as if they put the heroin in and then built the car around it," said one agent.

"This is obviously the work of top professionals, because by outside examination you could not tell that the car had been dismantled to secrete the heroin," Ingersoll said.

Charged with conspiracy to smuggle drugs were Jean Pierre Andre Uguen, 36, of Marseille; Etienne Charles Gunther and his wife Raymonde, both 33, of Paris, and two Cuban refugees, George Warren-Perez, 48, and Luis Gomez Oretega, 37, both of whom now live in North Bergen, N.J.

Scientists Find Deadly Chemical In Defoliants Used by B.C. Hydro

Defoliants of a type once declared harmless by B.C. Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum have been found to contain quantities of a chemical more deadly to unborn animals than any other known chemical.

The findings were made by researchers at the federal food and drug directorate in Ottawa, embro-toxicologists Dr. K. S. Khera and Dr. J. A. Ruddick.

The chemical is a constituent of 2-4-5-T and to a lesser degree, of 2-4-D, widely used by B.C. Hydro to clear rights of way and by the forest industry to defoliate alders.

It is known to scientists as 2,4-7, 8-Tetrachlorodibenzo-P-dioxin and has been found in North American Foods including samples of margarine.

Tests by Khera and Ruddick showed that as little as four micrograms per kilogram of body weight of the chemical, when fed to pregnant rats, killed the unborn young. The tests are continuing.

DRANK GLASS OF 2-4-D

Shrum in a demonstration in July, 1970, drank a glass of 2-4-D to show his confidence in the safety of it.

He also said he was prepared to drink a glass of 2-4-5-T which is banned for some uses in Canada and the United States.

Shrum's demonstration was to counter criticism of the use of the defoliants by ecologists and environmentalists.

He described the criticism as "alarmist propaganda."

John White, president of Victoria SPEC, said that while Shrum has a long way to go before he gets a baby, he (Shrum) should be more careful of what he says.

"We have never urged a complete ban on the defoliants, but asked that it be rigidly controlled and used sparingly," he said. "We have been called alarmists for saying this."

CONTROLLED

"But 2-4-D and 2-4-5-T are not the only chemicals which should be rigidly controlled," he added. "Picloran is another — a long lasting chemical. So far nothing has been done about this."

Shrum was not the only man to attack ecologists for their stand on the use of 2-4-5-T.

In August, 1970, Edmond Packee, a forester working for MacMillan Bloedel, in a letter to the press, attacked Dr. Robin Harger, then SPEC president, who condemned B.C. Hydro for its plans to spray right-of-way in the Squamich area.

Hager is one of the professors whose contract was not renewed by the University of Victoria. He is now with the University of British Columbia.

Harger had said there was evidence the herbicide caused deformities in newborn children.

Packee replied: "I believe this is a scare tactic which is designed to add to the confusion. Evidence indicates that no substantiated damage has occurred to animal offspring nor has there been any interruption to animal phsicalogical processes."

SOUND JUDGMENT

Rory Finnigan, biologist with the B.C. Fish and Wildlife Branch, said Harger is a man of "sound judgment" and only spoke when he was sure of himself.

"I'm sorry his contract was not renewed by the university," he said.

Use of the defoliants 2-4-D and 2-4-5-T had also the support of Federal Environmental Minister Jack Davis.

Davis in the Commons last April said a considerable amount of research had already been done on the sprays, but no unfavorable ecological effects had so far been discovered from their use.

Biologists at the time took Davis to task, claiming the chemicals had profound ecological effects if not used with care.

VIET TESTS

Actually the chemicals were suspected of being embro-toxic (harmful to the unborn) long before the two Canadian researchers completed their tests on rats.

In 1969, U.S. scientists in Vietnam where the defoliants were used extensively in the countryside, said they suspected the chemicals could produce gross birth defects similar to those caused by Thalidomide.

School Board to Act On Committee Idea

The Greater Victoria school board will be asked tonight to authorize a citizens' advisory committee on the use of corporal punishment in public schools.

The advisory committee concept has already been approved by the board and it is expected the authorization of the study of public opinion on corporal punishment will be passed withut incident. The recommendation comes from the board's education committee.

The committee system is the culmination of efforts by the board, and particularly Community Information Officer Bill Stavdal, to find a way to involve the public to a greater degree in formulation of education policy.

Interested people will be asked to attend the initial meeting, at which a committee of 20 people, chosen by lot, will be assigned the task of determining public opinion on the issue of corporal punishment.

Stavdal said today there has been confusion by some people of the role of this committee of 20. It is merely to find out the community's opinion on a subject, not to act as representative of the community, he said.

"We know already that corporal punishment is a subject almost everyone has an opinion on, either one way or the other," Stavdal said. "We're looking for the best possible assessment of public opinion on it."

The committee, after its initial meeting — expected to be Sept. 29 in the commons room of the Ewing Building at Camosun College — will advertise its meetings and will invite opinon form anyone in the community.

"We want different shades of opinion," Stavdal said, "not just if people are for it or against it."

The committee will report its findings to the school board after it has finished its hearings and the board will then act.

HOME GARDEN

Now's Time for Spring Bulbs

By HILDA BEASTALL

Even though your garden has masses of summer bedding plants still blooming, the early spring flowering bulbs must be put in before the end of this month.

The earlier in ty ground, the better the results. They won't flower any earlier in spring — that is governed by the inherited flowering time of the variety — but if bulbs are kept out of the soil long enough to get soft they probably won't flower at all.

Small bulbs, like snowdrops, winter crocuses, chionodoxas, tritelelas (now knownas ipheions) and scillas should go into the spaces where they will not be disturbed for years and will form colonies as they increase. They should have been planted before August ended.

Hilda

Hyacinths are the most fragrant of the spring bulbs. Because of their higher price (due to slowness of increase) they will be planted only in small groups, but keep them near a favorite spring path or entrance to the house.

Put a few wallflowers near them for added perfume.

If you wish spring flowering biennials to bloom with bulbs, plant them first. The wallflowers, forgetmenots or English daisies should be about a foot apart in groups, hot straight lines, and the narcissus bulbs planted midway between.

Bonemeal is a good slow-acting fertilizer to mix into the soil before planting time, for it will be gradually available as the roots reach out into the soil.

Use a trowel for this kind of bulb planting, not a dibber. Only when field planting by the hundreds should bulbs be dropped into furrows and covered without resetting by hand.

With the trowel make a hole wide enough at the bottom for the bulb to sit upright and firmly on the soil; there must be no pocket of air below it or the bulb will rot during winter.

If you don' like to see name labels, at least make a rough plan of your bulb plantings with variety names printed.

As the blooms open, friends are sure to ask: "What is the name of those? I haven't seen them before."

Remember when planting the narcissus bulbs (and these include the trumpet-type daffodils, short cups, flat crowns, pink varieties, doubles and the collarettes) they prefer sunshine although most will do quite well in dappled sun and shade during spring days.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

If one could put his finger on the exact point where the average bridge player undergoes a qualitative change and becomes a good bridge player, I believe that point would be where the average player is no longer immersed solely in his own cards; and, simultaneously, he begins to pay close attention to the bidding of the opponents, and the clues contained therein.

In this deal, we have an example of the expert mind at work. Had his East-West opponents not bid at all (in theory), South would almost surely have failed to fulfill his game contract. But they did bid — or, rather, one of them did — and South was able to utilize this fact to fulfil his contract.

Both sides vulnerable. East deals.

Opening lead: Ace of ◇.

Declarer then led a trump to his ten, after which he cashed the trump nine, picking up the outstanding pieces. Next came the six of clubs, and when West followed suit with the deuce, dummy's ace was put up. Great was declarer's joy when East reluctantly dropped the king on this trick. The rest of the tricks now belonged to the declarer.

Declarer was extremely lucky in catching East with the singleton king of clubs. But if there be those who think perhaps he "peeked" at East's hand and saw therein the club king, it was not so. His play was the only logical one. It just happened to turn out that Lady Luck was on his side.

West's initial response had been a tell-tale one: he had "passed" East's opening bid. Thus West did not have even six points. And West's opening lead had been the diamond ace.

From declarer's point of view, it was impossible for West to be the possessor of the club king. If he had this card, he surely would not have passed originally. Therefore East had to have the club king; and a club finesse just had to lose. Hence the spurning of the finesse because even the faintest of hopes is better than no hope.

Tom put down his paper. "It must have been a great game last night," he said. "How do you stand now for the season?"

"Could be worse," replied Andy. "So far we've lost a quarter of our games, won a third of them, and we've drawn two more than we've lost."

How many games had they played?

(Answer Tuesday)

Friday's answer: 30 miles to Bob's place.

Frustrations Of Indians

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

(First of a Series)

After hours of reviewing budgets and discussing specific problems of housing, sanitation and unemployment, Tsartlip band manager Tom Sampson shrugs his shoulders and smiles.

"You know, so many people ask, 'Why can't you Indians improve yourselves?' But when I look at these figures, I can't believe it. You can't ask a starving person to give you money."

Sampson's frustration is not unique. Indians are poor. They know it. Non-Indians know it. The department of Indian Affairs knows it. Newspapers write about it, and the poverty continues.

The only difference between Sampson and most other people on the Tsartlip reserve in Central Saanich is that he knows what it would take to achieve a minimum living standard.

As band manager, it is his job to keep on top of all reserve projects, inform band members about spending priorities, maintain records for use of the band council which sets policy, and execute council decisions.

Band managers have their fingers on the financial pulse of their reserves. The pulse has been erratic for decades.

Of the 290 people living on the Tsartlip reserve at Brentwood Bay, fewer than 25 have full time jobs.

Tsartlip band members share 49 houses, sometimes three families to a unit. Only 18 of these homes have indoor plumbing.

Sampson estimates a minimum of 39 new homes must be boy. He remembers 20 persons to a room, getting up at 3 a.m. to catch clams for the next day's dinner, and surviving on little more than bread for weeks.

In the mid-1950s, the Tsartlip band had only one well. If a house caught fire in winter it simply burned down. Today, there is municipal fire protection.

Sampson estimates a minimum of 39 new homes must be built to bring living standards up to acceptable levels. At existing rates, it will take the Tsartlip band about 20 years before these 39 homes can be built.

The situation for the 104 persons at the Cole Bay reserve in North Saanich is little different. Band manager Don Williams says 10 more new homes are needed in addition to the three which are being built this year.

The Tsawout band with 192 members on the reserve in East Saanich has 40 homes, is building four more and has to install indoor plumbing in 16 houses.

No new homes have been built for the Tseycum reserve's 35 persons in Patricia Bay for nearly 20 years. The Indian affairs department determines housing budgets and distributes the money without consulting individual bands.

For 1971, no housing money was budgeted for the Songhees and Esquimalt bands, yet these adjacent reserves have 152 members.

Being an Indian is not a racial matter. Indian status is granted by provisions of the federal Indian Act. A total of 248

INDIANS ARE POOR and everyone knows it, says Tsartlip band manager Tom Sampson, but the only thing that comes of the knowledge is the question, "Why can't you Indians improve yourselves?" Says Sampson: "You can't ask a starving person to give you money." The financial pulse of the Tsartlip band, for one, has been barely flickering for decades with no hope of improvement. CHINA UN ISSUE NEARS SHOWDOWN

NEW YORK — Three major issues — the seating of Communist China, debt and naming of a new secretary-general — will dominate the 26th meeting of the United Nations starting Tuesday. (See Page 2 for details.)

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission recommended following the controversial 1969 atomic test on Alaska's Amchitka Island that some government agency seek to learn the motivation for the "hysterical anti-test campaign in British Columbia and other parts of Canada."

Senator Mike Gravel (Dem. Alaska) made public the report on AEC public relations activities related to the test and said it confirmed his "worst suspicions about the dangerous attitude within the agency, which discounts all legitimate criticism of its programs."

Gravel, a leading critic of that test and the bigger test blast proposed for Amchitka this fall, said the report was sent to him Sept. 10 by the controller-general of the U.S. general accounting office. He had requested the office to mak a report to him on the AEC's "activities in promoting the (1969) Milrow and (the proposed) Channikin underground nuclear tests in Alaska."

The AEC report said the study of Canadian opinion should be made "as a means of judging whether similar opposition is likely in the future and perhaps to find means to counteract such opposition."

PROTEST DIRECTED?

It adds: "It seems unlikely that the activity in Canada was entirely spontaneous, or that it resulted entirely from news coverage—although as news media gave attention to developments, the activity in Canada appeared to mushroom.

"A study might reveal how the protests were inspired or financed; by whom; whether they resulted from a generally anti-U.S. attitude; or were centred entirely on AEC."

An AEC spokesman said today the report represented the views of one man, now retired, and that the recommendations have not been acted upon. It was uncovered during the investigation by the general accounting office, a congressionally-created agency with broad powers to investigate government operations.

Gravel, in a Senate speech Wednesday, said the AEC report throughout "justifies its extensive public relations ef-

NEW YORK (AP) — A bomb exploded in the ground-floor office of the permanent mission of the Democratic Republic of The Congo to the United Nations today. Mission employees escaped unharmed but three passersby, two children and their mother, were injured by flying glass.

Firm Blames Imports

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) —General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced today it will be reducing its combined work force at five Ontario plants by about 1,355 during the winter.

Japanese competition was given as one of the main reasons.

The company said the maximum number of workers that could be affected is 1,355 of a total work force of 20,400 at the five locations.

A statement from the company said employees will be notified Oct. 1 that they will be subject to layoff beginning Nov. 1.

ATTRITION CUTS TOLL

The company said that because of retirements and resignations, it is anticipated that the number to be laid off will be "substantially less than 1,300."

Nearly all employees laid off will be eligible for a company-operated layoff benefit program which, combined with unemployment insurance, brings benefits to about 90 per cent of regular pay for up to about a year.

The statement noted that sales of cars by overseas manufacturers have accounted for about 16 per cent of total sales in the United States and about 26 per cent in Canada.

GM's North American passenger car sales for August totalled 12,807 this year, up about 3.3 per cent from the previous August.

Spokesmen for Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. and Chrysler Canada L d. said no layoffs were planned. The Ford and Chrysler spokesmen said Canadian plants were being operated at capacity.

TWO GIRLS WOUNDED BY POLICEMAN'S GUN

QUEBEC (CP) — Two teen-aged girls were wounded on an Upper Town street Saturday night by a bullet from the revolver of a policeman attacked by a group of youths.

The bullet, fired during the scuffle, passed through the calf of one girl bystander and lodged in the foot of the other. Both were treated in hospital.

The incident happened when a policeman, surrounded by the youths objecting to the arrest of a person rattling a traffic sign, fired a warning shot into the air. His arm was grabbed and the second shot wounded the girls.

Star Pays Telegram $10M For Subscription List

TORONTO (CP) — Publisher Beland Honderich of The Star announced today his newspaper has purchased the subscription lists of the dying Toronto Telegram for $10 million.

In a letter to shareholders published on the front page of the newspaper's night edition, Mr. Honderich said:

"Toronto Star has accepted an offer to purchase the Toronto Telegram subscription list for $10 million.

"Publisher (John) Mr. Bassett advised us that The Telegram is losing approximately $1 million a year and he has been unable to find a buyer who is prepared to take over the business as a going concern. In these circumstances, he feels he has no option but to discontinue operations."

Mr. Honderich also told shareholders The Star has decided to lease the Telegram plant and presses. He said Mr. Bassett's announcement Saturday that The Telegram is folding means a major jump in circulation and advertising volume for The Star, Canada's largest newspaper and the Telegram's chief rival in Toronto's afternoon market.

STAR EXPANDS

"To handle an expected increase in circulation and advertising volume, the company expects that it will be necessary to expand production facilities at its new plant which is now nearing completion at 1 Yonge St.

"The company has made arrangements to lease the Telegram plant until an additional press can be installed in the Star's new plant."

The Honderich letter did not say whether the $10 million included lease payments for the Telegram presses and plant.

The Star has a circulation of 376,000. The Telegram is the fourth largest English-language newspaper in Canada with a circulation of 226,000. Toronto's morning newspaper, The Globe and Mail, is second at 265,000 and Vancouver Sun third with 233,000.

Mr. Honderich's letter followed a statement earlier in the day from Mr. Bassett that the press lease was for two years.

Mr. Bassett, who announced Saturday that the 95-year-old newspaper would stop publishing in the near future because of financial losses, put a notice on the Telegram bulletin board today answering the council's charges.

"There has apparently been some suggestion that I was negotiating to sell the assets of the Toronto Telegram over

16 MILLION PAPERS KEPT OFF STREETS

LONDON (AP) — Millions of Britons were without their main daily newspapers today as publishers shut down the presses over a pay dispute. The only paper Londoners could buy was the Communist Morning Star.

The Newspaper Publishers Association ordered Britain's eight national dailies and two local London evening papers closed until a dispute is settled with a printer's union. The 10 papers have a combined circulation of about 16.5 million.

More than 30,000 printers, journalists and other newspaper employees were affected by the shutdown.

Appeal Target: 'Over the Top'

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

In just three short words — "Over the top" — realtor Eric Charman sums up his optimism about the results of the 1971 United Appeal campaign.

Correction: for optimism read conviction. The way Charman tells it, he's not, like so many appeal organizers, trying to shore up his own misgivings with brightly cheerful forecasts.

When he blandly says the campaign this year is going to reach its $758,723 goal, despite the knowledge it has done so only four times in the past 13 years, it's like a statement of fact. A positive declaration of what will happen.

And the attitude is contagious, as Charman revealed in an interview. "We have a regular slogan now among the division chairmen," he said. "When I pick up the phone they say 'Hi, it's O.T.T. here' — over the top."

Back in May, Charman promised there would be a thorough revamping of the campaign's fund-raising techniques, and now he is out to prove he meant it.

CORPORATIONS

"Take just one example, the corporations and professional people," he said. "I've sent out 3,000 letters and I'm hoping that 60 per cent or better will reply with contributions. Already the response from the lawyers and doctors is terrific."

In past years it would have taken 60 canvassers on this approach alone, with all the time-washing effort involved in personal calls. With the new method, Charman said, all the appropriate chairmen have to do is send canvassers to those who don't reply.

"An awful lot of time has been wasted in the past. No one is going to be asked to do anything in this campaign unless I am convinced his or her time is going to be expended to the full."

Residents Evacuated As Apartment Burns

VANCOUVER (CP) — Residents of a luxury apartment building were evacuated early today as a four-alarm fire destroyed the entire centre section of The Maples, the largest of seven separate buildings in the Arbutus Gardens apartment development in the residential Kerrisdale area.

Among members of the approximately 50 families evacuated from the burning building was accountant-engineer John Hagen, who gave the following account:

"There didn't seem to be much until firemen put their axes through the roof to try to get at the fire. Then the whole thing exploded. It was pretty spectacular."

He said the fire apparently began about 5:15 a.m. in the kitchen of a second-floor suite.

From there, said Hagen, it spread up through the ceiling and into the roof. The roof over the foyer collapsed, but fire walls separating three wings of the building prevented anything more serious than smoke damage to suites in those areas.

Those evacuated from the three wings were allowed to return about 7:30 a.m. after firemen had reduced the blaze to smoldering embers.

There were no injuries.

Mrs. John Fairburn, whose house is located across the street from The Maples, provided a haven for the evacuees until they could return to their suites or arrange other accommodations.

The temperature at 6 a.m. was 45 degrees with clear skies.

IRA USING DUM-DUMS IN BELFAST SNIPING

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A sniper firing dum-dum bullets today struck a British soldier in the back, critically wounding him, a British army spokesman said.

Dum-dum bullets, outlawed by almost every nation, are softnosed bullets with cross cuts on the nose and expand when they hit an object, tearing a gaping hole.

The spokesman said it was the first known use by the IRA of dum-dum bullets in Northern Ireland. The shooting was at an observation post on the fringe of Londonderry's Bogside district.

HOW IT WAS

The Skier Left Out in the Cold

Some of the younger chaps in our city room have begun organizing a series of weekend skiing trips to the Forbidden Plateau this winter and so, cranking up my most ingratiating smile, I insinuated myself into the group and waited for the invitation to join.

It never came. I was conscious of some meaningful glances at my narrow shoulders and distended waist-line, the most un-athletic figure since Edna May Oliver, not to mention these prematurely silvering locks.

If an ironic smile played about my finely-chiselled lips as I turned away it was because my mind was going back to the winter of '64 — or was it '65? — when Fritz and I, tiring of Paris, indeed, somewhat broken on the rack of its relentless gaiety, packed our skis and boarded the Zurich Express for a month of running the high, white slopes of the Alps.

It seems only yesterday that we took the precarious little alpine railway that climbs up through the steep Bernese Oberland with the peaks of Eiger, Monch and Jungfrau towering sternly over us, frigidly menacing yet with that ageless challenge to the spirit.

Our goal, of course, was the famous 18-mile run known to the Swiss as the Grandwaldheimacher but which our American skiing friends called, irreverently, but appropriately, "The Widow-Maker." Nowhere in the world, I venture to say, is there such a test of the skier's skill, stamina and courage.

I recall the trembling ache in my legs on that late afternoon when, having spent the better part of the day climbing, we reached at last on the Grandwaldheimacher's summit, slipped the skins from our skis and stood there looking down the terrifying drop into the valley below.

It was bitterly cold and very crisp underfoot, but a fresh fall of powder snow had dusted this sheath of ice and when, at that moment, the sun broke through over the Jungfrau I knew that conditions would be a skier's dream.

"It will be good," Fritz said in his quiet way. Then, with a wild yodel and a shout of "Ski Heil!" he plummeted away.

I stood for a moment watching him as he brazenly took the first drop straight-out, his figure lost by a plume of snow spiralling stiffly out behind him, his tracks like clean scalpel incisions in that unspoiled expanse.

Then, with a grunt, I shoved off, crouching low, getting the old familiar feeling of coiled springs in the knees, and flew down into the void. From somewhere, as if from the bottom of a great barrel, I could hear the echo of Fritz's yodel still reverberating from the surrounding mountains.

For perhaps a mile I schussed the brittle drop like an arrow, all too aware that my speed was perilously close to the point of no return, then as the Grundwaldheimacher fell away even more steeply into the cut known as Bareghorfendorffer ("The Killer") I bent into a series of giant Christianas.

Disaster beckoned at every turn and I could see that Fritz, a bright blossom of sun-pinked snow beneath me, had gone into a series of Gelandesprungs to avoid the crevasses that, only two years earlier had taken the life of the great Hans Fribourg.

When I reached the first I elected to leap it and, again, the second and the third, until I came abreast of Fritz and passed him like a bullet, my poles held clear like an angel's wings.

I could see his mouth drop and I shattered the silence with a yodel, swung into a Telemark that sent a wave of snow dust 40 feet into the frosty air and brought me to the very brink of the Devil's Drop.

Fritz came to a stop beside me, laughing in admiration at my foolhardiness and, wordlessly, we stared down into the final, staggering slope, a drop of almost 70 degrees.

"We will schuss it," he said simply.

"They say it cannot be done," I pointed out, but I knew that we would.

Afterwards those at the inn in the valley below, the old and gabled Schnarffhostelerie who had watched our descent through telescopes, said that there had never been a sight like it. "It was like watching two meteors come to earth," one of them marvelled.

I, myself, could never describe that sensation. I was aware only of the high singing, whispering sound of my skiis, the burn of the wind in my face, the strange feeling of moving slowly with the Jungfrau, the Eiger and Monch seeming to rotate about me (although, in fact, my speed was close to 80 kilometers to the hour) and, above all, the complete exhilaration of being in perfect command.

So we went, downward, downward, running abreast of each other in a world of white, wedded at last to Grundwaldheimacher.

Oh, I could have told them about that unforgettable day and perhaps then they might have asked me along to show them a few of the fundamentals on the baby slopes of the Plateau. But how could such twits conceive of skiing that tests the very soul of a man? And, besides, would they believe me?

Public to View 'Exciting' New Downtown Plan

The beginnings of a $10,000 plan for Victoria's downtown area will be on public display within the next week, city manager Bill Hooson said today.

The plan has been in preparation for about six months under direction of a hired consultant, architect Harold Spence-Sales.

Work completed so far must first go before members of council who will decide how and when to make it public, Hooson said.

But he added "I'm confident we will get complete disclosure of this thing at an early date."

Various city hall officials have said the plan could provide a breakthrough in the city's downtown planning, saying earlier briefings have revealed some exciting new concepts.

However, no one will discuss details.

Hooson said the plan is not the normal printed and bound document one might expect. So far it consists of "a lot of visual material" describing trends of past and present development with some emphasis on "shortcomings" of the downtown core.

The next phase may depend on council's whishes. It would then map out the most desirable development possible in the future.

Hooson hopes to get council to agree to rent a public hall where the material can be displayed. He said the city might hire some part-time university students to conduct the display.

Spence-Sales is a former architecture professor at McGill University, Montreal, and has planned urban developments in many Canadian cities.

Delay by Union Blamed As Kuster Loses Fight

The majority of a three-man arbitration board, in a binding decision, has in effect upheld Kuster's dismissal by by the Saanich fire department on June 30, 1970, municipal personnel officer William Locker said today.

The majority of the arbitration board found that the Saanich Firefighters Union, Local 967, was guilty of unreasonable delay in proceeding with the arbitration, to the point where the employer was prejudiced, and that it was now not open to the union to pursue the matter.

Decisions of arbitration boards in grievances of this kind are final and binding, except that appeals may be made on points of law. There has been no indication to date the union will make an appeal to attempt to have the dismissal heard on its merits as opposed to the board's decision which was based on a time delay of almost a year.

The majority view of the arbitration board was given by chairman Ian Horne and Saanich representative Ken Murphy. Union representative Charles Maclean did not concur and was expected to submit a minority report.

Locker said the board felt there was an "undue delay" by the union in bringing the dismissal to arbitration. "the majority of the board felt the union erred," he said.

He said Saanich's case was mainly the delay factor — that it was almost a year before the union brought it to the municipality's attention, and this would mean almost a year's back pay if Kuster was reinstated.

. . . in cold

Bill Holmes, president of the firefighters local, said only that "it is still not over yet." He declined further comment.

Kuster, hired in January, 1966, and dismissed June 30, 1970, picketed the main firehall last March and April saying he was picketing the union because it hadn't pressed the issue. Later the union took up the issue and it went to arbitration.

He said he was fired because he started to wear his hair a little longer and grow a moustache.

The Saanich fire department said he was dismissed because his eyes were not up to the required standard.

The department said Kuster was told when hired his eyesight didn't meet standards but he would be accepted if he wore contact lenses. This was done until about 10 months before he was dismissed when he switched to glasses, an official said.

Kuster himself could not be located for comment today.

Pound Keepers Robert Holmes, Albert Oost with friend

Common Sense, Understanding Useful Pound-Keepers' Tools

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

"You say a cat is stuck high up in a tree, ma'am? Well, my advice is leave it there and if it's still there in a day or so give us another call."

As he put down the phone Saanich pound keeper Bob Holmes laughed: "We get calls like that all the time but there's no point going out there and climbing the tree — the cat would only go higher.

"Besides, who ever heard of a cat dying up a tree?"

It's this sort of basic common sense and understanding of animal behavior that a pound keeper needs. Not to mention tact, discretion, a sense of humor and the ability to know when to apply the law rigidly and when to bend it a little.

One Example

A youngster is taking a normally well-behaved German shepherd for a walk but the dog becomes boisterous when it meets another friendly neighborhood mutt, takes off and ends up fouling someone's lovely green lawn.

Technically, the owner is at fault because a section of the bylaw clearly states no one shall allow a dog to be on a highway or public place "unless the same is accompanied by and is under the effective control of a competent person in charge thereof, or is led or confined on a leash or chain."

Liable to Fine

So a summons could be issued, and anyone violating any provision of the bylaw is liable to a fine of between $10 and $200.

But in practice, Oost explained, he would probably warn the owner to exercise better coritrol in future.

"We try to be as fair as possible and it's only the persistent offenders we take a firm line with," he said.

Weekdays and some weekends Oost and Holmes are out patrolling Saanich streets in their vans, mainly looking for canine strays and offenders. But they are also responsible for all itinerant creatures, from horses which break out of paddocks to pet skunks which acquire a wanderlust.

Dogs obviously on the loose or roaming, with no sign of the owner in the vicinity, are taken to the pound which is operated on a contract basis for Saanich by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, at its Napier Lane premises.

If the dog has a licence tag the pound keeper will make every effort to get in touch with the person, Oost said. "If I can't get through during the day I often phone from my home in the evening so that they can come and claim their animals as soon as possible."

Fee Scale

When he or she does come along to pick up the dog, there's a $5 impoundment fee plus $2 a day for board. Also, of course, the licence has to be paid if it hasn't been already.

The fee scale ascends by $5 steps for subsequent impoundments up to the fourth ($20) but then the fifth capture carries a $30 fee and the sixth soars to a hefty $60.

Animals unclaimed after four days are turned over to the SPCA for disposal as the society decides. But Holmes estimates that of the 50 to 60 dogs which Saanich impounds every month the majority — "I'd say at least 80 per cent" — are claimed by their owners.

"As a rule people in this area are pretty good to their dogs," he said. "There are exceptions, of course — families where the husband and wife are out to work all day and the dog is left to fend for itself on the street.

"A lot of these are the sort of people who should never keep a dog in the first place, and when we take it into the pound they look on it as a convenient way out and do nothing about claiming."

One big problem, both pound keepers admit, is the owner who keeps an unspayed bitch which in turn attracts a lot of keen and often quarrelsome boy friends. That's when even the usually placid, home-bound mutt takes to wandering.

Owners Warned

"In such cases we try to warn dog owners in the neighborhood so they can keep a closer watch on their dogs," Oost said. "But all the same, if I see six or seven dogs running about the area where there's a female I can't ignore that."

To alleviate the problem, Saanich waives the current year's licence fee — $15 for an unspayed female — if the owner can produce a vet's certificate to show the operation has been carried out.

The pound keeper's job is nothing if not varied. Once, Oost recalled, he had to go to a school playground where a myopic white snow owl was reeling around in a bit of a daze, causing quite a furore. He caught the bird, took it up to Mount Douglas and released it in the trees.

Then there was the time a couple of years ago when a pig escaped from the truck which was taking it from Wilkinson Road jail to the slaughter house.

Panicky Porker

The incident occurred at the corner of Wilkinson and Burnside. Holmes, who went to help chase the panicky porker, still laughs at the memory.

"A lady went and got a fishnet and a couple of guys held this while a guard from the jail dove on it full-length, just like he was making a football tackle. The pig was squealing . . . it was the funniest thing you ever saw."

Publishers Hold Meetings In Secret

Leading Canadian daily newspaper publishers are in Victoria for five days of business meetings this week — all closed to the press.

The occasion is a meeting of executives of the co-operative news-gathering agency, Canadian Press, being held in conjunction with a conference of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers' Association.

A CDNPA spokesman said the sessions "are strictly concerned with business matters; these are never open to the press."

Although some had been expected, there were no representatives on hand from Canada's fourth-largest daily, the Toronto Telegram. Publisher John Bassett announced Saturday the Telegram was going out of business.

The sessions began with a CDNPA executive meeting Sunday night, followed by Canadian Press meetings today, Tuesday and Wednesday. Final meeting will be that of the CDNPA board Thursday morning.

Aloha to Hawaii For Saanich Man In Cheque Case

An Esquimalt man who turned himself in to Honolulu police Friday pleaded guilty here today to cashing a worthless $4,450 cheque in Saanich last July.

A Saanich policeman testified that Raymond F. Kraft, 32, of 1528 Esquimalt, went to the Honolulu police department then flew back to Vancouver where he was arrested at the airport.

Judge William Ostler remanded Kraft to Sept. 29 for presentence report and sentence. He pleaded guilty to uttering.

The officer said the accused went to the Bank of Montreal, University of Victoria branch, July 27 and presented the cheque of $4,450.80 drawn on a downtown bank.

Kraft had a letter, the policeman said, purportedly signed by another person saying the money was for 50 per cent of the Aquarian Age publishing company.

The officer said the money was used by Kraft to pay for a bank loan, small bills and debts to the Saanich welfare department.

He was left with about $500, court was told.

Kraft told police he had gone to Salt Lake City, Utah, then returned to Victoria before going to Honolulu since July. The policeman said Kraft told officers "things had built up" and he had committed the offence in despair.

Ask the Times

Q: Are Japan and West and East Germany members of the United Nations? If not, are they eligible now and what is preventing them from joining? What about Italy and Austria, the other Axis countries in the Second World War? Are they members too?

A: Owing to the division of Germany, neither East Germany nor West Germany are members. Japan was admitted in 1956, however, Italy joined the United Nations one year earlier and Austria became a member in 1945.

Q: I understand that Victoria has a gourmet club. Could you tell me who is eligible to join, how much the membership fees are, and whom to contact?—B.P.

A: The membership of the Gourmet Club, which was started about five years ago, is restricted to 20, all men, although there are two current vacancies. The fees are $150 a year. These cover the costs of five meals in various restaurants, four of which are stag and the other, attended by women guests. Club president is W. W. Sinclair, 3300 Exeter.

STUDENT SHINERS RAISE $8,760

Shinerama '71 made it over the top Saturday.

Co-ordinator Greg Fraser said the campaign goal of $8,500 to aid research of cystic fibrosis was achieved as shoeshiners from the University of Victoria and student nurses from two hospitals raised $8,760.

About 450 shiners took part, Fraser said, about 50 more than last year. The money raised was far above the $7,000 raised last year.

The Victoria shiners outshone their Vancouver counterparts, Fraser said. The Vancouver effort raised over $12,000 but less shiners took part and $3,000 was raised by advance donations.

Education Needs Probe Planned

A provincial commission will tour B.C. this fall to investigate public needs in education and to determine the role of parent-teacher groups.

The commission is sponsored by the Provincial Parent-Teacher Federation and has been organized by Dr. Herman Wallin, an educational consultant on the faculty of UBC. It will be funded by the provincial government, the B.C. Teachers Federation and the Educational Research Institute of B.C.

Bill Stavdal, Community Information Officer for the Greater Victoria School Board, has been asked by the commission to serve as secretary. Approval is needed from the board at its meeting tonight.

Stavdal said today the commission will seek new forms of parent involvement in education. "It will basically be a re-structuring of the PTA movement," he said.

Membership in parent-teacher groups across the province has fallen dramatically, he said and the provincial body wants to find out why this has appened and in what ways parents want to become involved with the educational process.

"Parents have indicated they care most about things like special education, drug education and the philosophy of education," he said. "We want to get the parents involved at the school level, the school district level and the provincial level."

B.C. Hysteria 'Promoted'

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

(First of a Series)

After hours of reviewing budgets and discussing specific problems of housing, sanitation and unemployment, Tsartlip band manager Tom Sampson shrugs his shoulders and smiles.

"You know, so many people ask, 'Why can't you Indians improve yourselves?' But when I look at these figures, I can't believe it. You can't ask a starving person to give you money."

Sampson's frustration is not unique. Indians are poor. They know it. Non-Indians know it. The Department of Indian Affairs knows it. Newspapers write about it, and the poverty continues.

The only difference between Sampson and most other people on the Tsartlip reserve in Central Saanich is that he knows what it would take to achieve a minimum living standard.

As band manager, it is his job to keep on top of all reserve projects, inform band members about spending priorities, maintain records for use of the band council which sets policy, and execute council decisions.

Band managers have their fingers on the financial pulse of their reserves. The pulse has been erratic for decades.

Of the 290 people living on the Tsartlip reserve at Brentwood Bay, fewer than 25 have full time jobs.

Tsartlip band members share 49 houses, sometimes three families to a unit. Only 18 of these homes have indoor plumbing.

As a boy, he remembers sleeping 20 persons to a room, getting up at 3 a.m. to catch clams for the next day's dinner, and surviving on little more than bread for weeks.

In the mid-1950s, the Tsartlip band had only one well. If a house caught fire in winter it simply burned down. Today, there is municipal fire protection.

Sampson estimates a minimum of 39 new homes must be built to bring living standards up to acceptable levels. At existing rates, it will take the Tsartlip band about 20 years before these 39 homes can be built.

The situation for the 104 persons at the Cole Bay reserve in North Saanich is little different. Band manager Don Williams says 10 more new homes are needed in addition to the three which are being built this year.

The Tsawout band with 192 members on the reserve in East Saanich has 40 homes, is building four more and has to install indoor plumbing in 16 houses.

No new homes have been built for the Tseycum reserve's 35 persons in Patricia Bay for nearly 20 years. The Indian affairs department determines housing budgets and distributes the money without consulting individual bands.

For 1971, no housing money was budgeted for the Songhees and Esquimalt bands, yet these adjacent reserves have 152 members.

Being an Indian is not a racial matter. Indian status is granted by provisions of the federal Indian Act. A total of 248

INDIANS ARE POOR and everyone knows it, says Tsartlip band manager Tom Sampson, but the only thing that comes of the knowledge is the question, "Why can't you Indians improve yourselves?" Says Sampson: "You can't ask a starving person to give you money." The financial pulse of the Tsartlip band, for one, has been barely flickering for decades with no hope of improvement.

Senator Uncovers Request for Probe

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission recommended following the controversial 1969 atomic test on Alaska's Amchitka Island that some government agency seek to learn the motivation for the "hysterical anti-test campaign in British Columbia and other parts of Canada."

Senator Mike Gravel (Dem. Alaska) made public the report on AEC public relations activities related to the test and said it confirmed his "worst suspicions about the dangerous attitude within the agency, which discounts all legitimate criticism of its programs."

Gravel, a leading critic of that test and the bigger test blast proposed for Amchitka this fall, said the report was sent to him Sept. 10 by the controller-general of the U.S. general accounting office. He had requested the office to make a report to him on the AEC's "activities in promoting the (1969) Milrow and (the proposed) Cannikin underground nuclear tests in Alaska."

The AEC report said the study of Canadian opinion should be made "as a means of judging whether similar opposition is likely in the future and perhaps to find means to counteract such opposition."

PROTEST DIRECTED?

It adds: "It seems unlikely that the activity in Canada was entirely spontaneous, or that it resulted entirely from news coverage—although as news media gave attention to developments, the activity in Canada appeared to mushroom.

"A study might reveal how the protests were inspired or financed; by whom; whether they resulted from a generally anti-U.S. attitude; or were centred entirely on AEC."

An AEC spokesman said today the report represented the views of one man, now retired, and that the recommendations have not been acted upon. It was uncovered during the investigation by the general accounting office, a congressionally-created agency with broad powers to investigate government operations.

Gravel, in a Senate speech Wednesday, said the AEC report throughout "justifies its extensive public relations ef-

NEWS BRIEFS

Fewer Troops

New Violence

DUBLIN (UPI) — Breton nationalists, living in exile here, said today they had launched a new campaign of violence in Britanny to win independence from France.

Could Benefit

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States decision to free the dollar from gold could benefit Canada's commercial position Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said today.

Mission Bombed

NEW YORK (AP) — A bomb exploded in the ground-floor office of the permanent mission of the Democratic Republic of The Congo to the United Nations today. Mission employees escaped unharmed but three passersby, two children and their mother, were injured by flying glass.

IMPORTS FORCE GM LAYOFF

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) —General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced today it will be reducing its combined work force at five Ontario plants by about 1,355 during the winter.

Japanese competition was given as one of the main reasons.

The company said the maximum number of workers that could be affected is 1,355 of a total work force of 20,400 at the five locations.

A statement from the company said employees will be notified Oct. 1 that they will be subject to layoff beginning Nov. 1.

The reason was "production changes required in view of projected market conditions influenced importantly by sales of foreign cars, particularly Japanese."

ATTRITION CUTS TOLL

The company said that because of retirements and resignations, it is anticipated that the number to be laid off will be "substantially less than 1,300."

Nearly all employees laid off will be eligible for a company-operated layoff benefit program which, combined with unemployment insurance, brings benefits to about 90 per cent of regular pay for up to about a year.

TWO GIRLS WOUNDED BY POLICEMAN'S GUN

QUEBEC (CP) — Two teen-aged girls were wounded on an Upper Town street Saturday night by a bullet from the revolver of a policeman attacked by a group of youths.

The bullet, fired during the scuffle, passed through the calf of one girl bystander and lodged in the foot of the other. Both were treated in hospital.

The incident happened when a policeman, surrounded by the youths objecting to the arrest of a person rattling a traffic sign, fired a warning shot into the air. His arm was grabbed and the second shot wounded the girls.

Appeal Target: 'Over the Top'

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

In just three short words — "Over the top' — realtor Eric Charman sums up his optimism about the results of the 1971 United Appeal campaign.

Correction: for optimism read conviction. The way Charman tells it, he's not, like so many appeal organizers, trying to shore up his own misgivings with brightly cheerful forecasts.

When he blandly says the campaign this year is going to reach its $758,723 goal, despite the knowledge it has done so only four times in the past 13 years, it's like a statement of fact. A positive declaration of what will happen.

And the attitude is contagious, as Charman revealed in an interview. "We have a regular slogan now among the division chairmen," he said. "When I pick up the phone they say 'Hi, it's O.T.T. here' — over the top."

Back in May, Charman promised there would be a thorough revamping of the campaign's fund-raising techniques, and now he is out to prove he meant it.

CORPORATIONS

"Take just one example, the corporations and professional people," he said. "I've sent out 3,000 letters and I'm hoping that 60 per cent or better will reply with contributions. Already the response from the lawyers and doctors is terrific."

In past years it would have taken 60 canvassers on this approach alone, with all the time-wasting effort involved in personal calls. With the new method, Charman said, all the appropriate chairmen have to do is send canvassers to those who don't reply.

"An awful lot of time has been wasted in the past. No one is going to be asked to do anything in this campaign unless I am convinced his or her time is going to be expended to the full."

Star Pays Tely $10M For Subscription List

TORONTO (CP) — Publisher Beland Honderich of The Star announced today his newspaper has purchased the subscription lists of the dying Toronto Telegram for $10 million.

In a letter to shareholders published on the front page of the newspaper's night edition, Mr. Honderich said:

"Toronto Star has accepted an offer to purchase the Toronto Telegram subscription list for $10 million.

"Publisher (John) Mr. Bassett advised us that The Telegram is losing approximately $1 million a year and he has been unable to find a buyer who is prepared to take over the business as a going concern. In these circumstances, he feels he has no option but to discontinue operations."

Mr. Honderich also told shareholders The Star has decided to lease the Telegram plant and presses. He said Mr. Bassett's announcement Saturday that The Telegram is folding means a major jump in circulation and advertising volume for The Star, Canada's largest newspaper and the Telegram's chief rival in Toronto's afternoon market.

The Star has a circulation of 376,000. The Telegram is the fourth largest English-language newspaper in Canada with a circulation of 226,000. Toronto's morning newspaper, The Globe and Mail, is second at 265,000 and Vancouver Sun third with 233,000.

Mr. Honderich's letter followed a statement earlier in the day from Mr. Bassett that the press lease was for two years.

Mr. Bassett, who announced Saturday that the 95-year-old newspaper would stop publishing in the near future because of financial losses, put a notice on the Telegram bulletin board today answering the council's charges.

"There has apparently been some suggestion that I was negotiating to sell the assets of the Toronto Telegram over

Residents Evacuated As Apartment Burns

VANCOUVER (CP) — Residents of a luxury apartment building were evacuated early today as a four-alarm fire destroyed the entire centre section of The Maples, the largest of seven separate buildings in the Arbutus Gardens apartment development in the residential Kerrisdale area.

Among members of the approximately 50 families evacuated from the burning building was accountant-engineer John Hagen, who gave the following account:

"There didn't seem to be much until firemen put their axes through the roof to try to get at the fire. Then the whole thing exploded. It was pretty spectacular."

He said the fire apparently began about 5:15 a.m. in the kitchen of a second-floor suite.

From there, said Hagen, it spread up through the ceiling and into the roof. The roof over the foyer collapsed, but fire walls separating three wings of the building prevented anything more serious than smoke damage to suites in those areas.

Those evacuated from the three wings were allowed to return about 7:30 a.m. after firemen had reduced the blaze to smoldering embers.

There were no injuries.

Mrs. John Fairburn, whose house is located across the street from The Maples, provided a haven for the evacuees until they could return to their suites or arrange other accommodations.

The temperature at 6 a.m. was 45 degrees with clear skies.

IRA USING DUM-DUMS IN BELFAST SNIPING

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A sniper firing dum-dum bullets today struck a British soldier in the back, critically wounding him, a British army spokesman said.

Dum-dum bullets, outlawed by almost every nation, are softnosed bullets with cross cuts on the nose and expand when they hit an object, tearing a gaping hole.

The spokesman said it was the first known use by the IRA of dum-dum bullets in Northern Ireland. The shooting was at an observation post on the fringe of Londonderry's Bogside district.

2 Rescued in Strait

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two men were in good condition today after spending half an hour in the waters of Georgia Strait when their 16-foot dinghy capsized.

Twenty-year-old John Franklin and Brian Conroy, both of Vancouver, were spilled into the water Sunday night. They were rescued by a British Columbia Ferry when a cre member spotted the lashlight with which they were signalling.

The two were taken to Nanaimo.

Victoria Youths Open Boutique

DUNCAN — Take Bill Bailey's talent in making leather clothing, add Richard Bissett's knowledge of tooling leather and other handicrafts, and you have the main ingredients of the Fawcett store, three miles south of Duncan.

Bailey and Bissett, both 20 and from Victoria, opened the shop a little more than two months ago.

They said they wanted a change from the Victoria scene and decided to introduce the first boutique of this kind in Duncan.

"There is too much competition in this field in Victoria," Bissett said. Specialties of the store are the leatherwork done by the two men; posters, home-made toys, beadwork, waterbeds and other general handicraft items.

Although response from the public has been good Bissett and Bailey said they will have to get a job to support themselves.

CLASSES TO START OCT. 1

New Workshop to Aid Artistic

DUNCAN — The aim of the newly opened Studio Workshop here is to cater to anyone interested in developing their artistic talents.

Bob and Grace Cooke said they opened their shop with the desire to help people turn their "gee, I wish I could's into I wills."

"And it is those people we are aiming at — The ones who are not afraid to try and develop their talents," explained Cooke.

The school will offer music instruction in piano, theory, vocal and chorus, all taught by Mrs. Cooke. On the visual side there will be instruction from Cooke in the basic drawings, oils, water color, velvets and perspective.

One of the main points of the school will be its flexibility, the couple stressed. Located on the corner of Trunk and Allenby Roads, the school will be opened throughout the day for people to work individually. Scheduled classes will begin Oct. 1.

"Eventually we would like to see the studio become the Island centre for the performing and graphic arts," Cooke said. He explained that the program for the second year would include instruction in dancing, drama and other instruments.

Cooke has previously taught at art centres in Montreal, Victoria, and Calgary, while his wife has been teaching privately in the district as well as the past five years at Queen Margaret's School, Duncan.

Greenpeace Message Radioed by Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — The Greenpeace mission to protest a proposed U.S. nuclear test off Alaska doesn't have Prime Minister Trudeau's endorsement, but obviously has his sympathy.

Mr. Trudeau's office released the text of a radio message Monday that it had tried to relay to the 12 persons aboard the halibut boat on Saturday.

The mission, which includes scientists and ecologists, was reported headed for the Gulf of Alaska Sunday, towards Amchitka Island where the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission plans to detonate a five-megaton nuclear device during October.

Mr. Trudeau's message, which the ship couldn't pick up Saturday because of bad weather conditions, said "there can be no mistake as to the depth of Canadian public concern" over the proposed test.

The Canadian government had informed the U.S. government that it could not agree with the proposed testing and believed that "all such tests should be halted."

The message said the proposed underground test in the Aleutian Islands had been the subject of numerous consultations between the Canadian and U.S. governments.

"I have reasons to believe that the U.S. administration is fully aware of our views."

Ben Metcalfe, spokesman for the crew of the mission aboard the Canadian halibut boat Phyllis Cormack, said Sunday he wanted to know if Mr. Trudeau's message had constituted recognition of the purpose of the mission.

The message made no mention of direct support for the mission itself or Mr. Trudeau's thiughts on its advisability.

It acknowledged that his office had informed him that the mission had tried to reach him last week, and outlined the government's opposition to the test.
